SUMMARY.

Mr. Balfour supports Lord Lansdowne's House of Lords Reform Bill, which he considers goes far enough.

Mr. Balfour said the pitiful beggarly modicum of responsibility given by the Veto Bill would be quite ineffective.

He accused the Government of gross and palpable inconsistency.

The Australian example of the referendum for obtaining public opinion was strongly praised by Mr. Balfour.

A steamer has arrived at Liverpool with a large cargo of pork and other foods from China.

Four hundred members of the Commons have formed themselves into a committee to promote the Anglo-American peace movement.

The freedom of the city of Edinburgh is to be conferred on Mr. Andrew Fisher.

All Australian officers in England, either on duty or on leave, are to be included in the Coronation ceremonies.

The report of the Scottish Agricultural Commission on Australia has been issued.

The Commissioners say that they found an unsatisfied demand for labour everywhere, in city and country.

There was strong competition at the wool sales in London on Thursday.

It is reported that assistance for the Albanians against the Turks has been organised in Italy, but the story is contradicted.

There is a period of quiet at Juarez following the recent battle. General Nevarro is a prisoner.

Further violent scenes occurred at the Camorrist trial between Abbatemaggio and the Neapolitan Camorra leader.

The Canadian Government has agreed to guarantee the railway line from Montreal to Port Arthur.

The distance is 993 miles. The liability on the line is £7,000,000.

The Canadian Government's insistence as to wages has stopped tenders for warship construction on the Pacific Coast.

The King and Queen on Thursday attended a theatre for the first time since their accession.

Mr. Ernest Shackleton's appeal for funds for the Mawson expedition is reported successful.

A motion for the reduction of Mr. Lloyd-George's salary was moved in the Commons.

The motion was to enable discussion on alleged delay in collecting income tax.

Mr. Lloyd-George stated that the delay had been due to the mistakes of an official.

The Government was asked yesterday to build homes adjacent to tram depots for use of the tramway service employees.

The Acting Treasurer did not make any promise, but he said he would inquire if any land is available.

The Anglican Synod passed a resolution protesting against the Royal Agricultural Show being held in Holy Week.

The Victorian Treasurer states that the State's foreign order for 40 locomotives is owing to a large and unforeseen demand.

The Government contract with Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins for 20,000 tons of steel rails is at £8 per ton.

An additional blast furnace and a considerable quantity of new machinery are being installed at the Lithgow ironworks.

The Federal Cabinet yesterday reviewed a draft agreement for the transfer of the Port Augusta-Oodnadatta railway.

There is a scarcity of sailors in Melbourne. Three ships with full cargoes of wheat are hung up.

A [illegible] expert for the Commonwealth has been recommended for appointment at [illegible] a year and expenses.

The Postmaster-General's reports on the early closing of post-offices do not justify reversion to the former arrangements.

Melbourne telegraphists say they are as badly off under the Public Service Commission's classification scheme as before.

Preference to unionists was refused by Mr. Justice Higgins in his award for the Federated Engine-drivers and Firemen.

A New Zealand orchard inspector says bitter pit is caused by a microscopic fungus, and not by codlin moth spray.

An aeroplanist predicts that in future battles will commence with duels between the opposing aeroplanes scouting for armies.

The Anglican Synod yesterday appointed a committee to consider the obtaining and training of candidates for the clergy.

Grave charges have been made against the Bathurst Municipal Council concerning the sale of diseased cattle.

The local pastures protection board is requesting the Board of Health to restrict the council permitting their sale.

The congress of Chambers of Commerce is urging arrangement of an Australian-Vancouver mail service.

Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane are, in the interests of trade, advocated as ports of call.

Of 188 candidates who presented themselves in April for examination for census work 154 were successful.

It was decided at a meeting yesterday to hold a motor show during Metropolitan Week.

A motor gymkhana is also to be held in two months.

At the inquiry into the Government Architect's Department Mr. Vernon strongly protested against the procedure.

He described the putting up of rival tradesmen as witnesses as un-British on the part of the Auditor-General's Department.

The Acting Treasurer is proposing legislation to enable the Government to build dwellings to be sold to tenants.

He hopes to be able to sell them to the tenants at weekly payments of 10s.

Bricks for the buildings will come from the Government brickworks.

A deputation interviewing the Acting Chief Secretary yesterday endorsed the Government proposal to institute State-owned ferries.

The Minister said the Government intended doing something, and shortly the committee would come forward with a plan.

The Minister for Agriculture has a favourable view of the irrigation scheme of Mr. Willis, of Coonamble.

The Acting Premier yesterday received a deputation from the Sydney Labour Council on the question of the cost of living.

Mr. Holman promised to consult his colleagues as to the appointment of a Royal Commission of inquiry.

Latest census returns show increases of over 2000 at Wagga, 10,000 at Hartley, and 7000 at Lithgow.

The population of Manly and Pittwater has more than doubled since 1901.

A Melbourne bricklayer yesterday fell from a building and broke one of his legs. He was forewarned of the accident by a dream.

A suburban train ran into some trucks at Adelaide yesterday. A carriage was smashed and it caught fire.

The Postmaster-General invites users of telephones who have complaints to meet him on Monday.

The vestibule of the Town Hall has been selected, and the Minister and the chief electrician will hear charges.

The Federal Government has purchased from the Victorian Government land near Melbourne at £40 10s an acre for field artillery purposes.

Good rains are reported from various parts of the State, and cold conditions prevailed yesterday, the temperatures being under 70.

Little or no rain has fallen in the central and west of the Darling.

The market on 'Change yesterday was generally buoyant in the case of silver stocks.

Gold and tin, on the other hand, were lifeless.

In the afternoon the silver market continued firm, but the reverse was the case with copper.

Weather.—Still more rain on coast and tablelands, but more particularly on the central and southern parts. Strong southerly winds, fine inland and colder generally.

INCOMPARABLE

"JOSSEFORS" AND "MERLIER"

SUEDE GLOVES.

NO BETTER MAKES KNOWN.

THEY ARE OFFERING TO-DAY

AT ALMOST HALF PRICES

AT FARMER'S.

Seemingly wonders will never cease at Farmer's! Following on our several fortunate purchases comes the crowning triumph in special value-giving. It will be a unique period in the history of the most famous Gloves known to Fashiondom.

The manufacturers of the Peerless "Jossefors" and "Merlier" Gloves have dissolved partnership, and in the terms of the dissolution the famous "Jossefors" and "Merlier" Trade Marks die.

Our Buyer was successful in securing the last parcel made under the old names at a special clearing price, and as we receive them we are handing them on to our patrons—at almost half usual prices.

These Suede Gloves possess every essential—Quality, Durability, Shapeliness, Smartness, and Style.

The quantity is limited, and the demand will be great, so we urge patrons to secure just what they require as quickly as possible.

BLACK AND WHITE, SUEDE ONLY.

THE TWO FASHIONABLE SHADES.

12-Button Length, plain points. Usual Price, 12/9; TO-DAY, 7/6 pair.

BEAUTY THE FIRST GIFT.

"MAZARA" SKIN FOOD.

A Skin Food endorsed by Sydney's leading Analyst must be pure; recommended by the same authorities, it must possess merit. MAZARA does not bring the skin out in blotches and blackheads, and does not cause a growth of hair. MAZARA is the safest, purest, and most beneficial preparation of all Skin Foods for beautifying the skin.

Price, 2/6 and 4/6 per jar.

FARMER'S, SYDNEY.

AUSTRALIA IS IN DANGER.

A SCIENTIST

told us the other day that the Rocks and the Ridges are washing into the Eastern Valleys, which will become

A VAST INLAND SEA.

And in the meantime you will require to study your Health and Appearance by purchasing SUITABLE DRESSES FOR THE WINTER.

"OUR DAILY SPECIAL LINE."

IMITATION REINDEER GLOVES—

TO-DAY, 2/6; USUALLY 2/11.

SEE OUR BARRACK-STREET WINDOW.

They are Imitation Reindeer Skin Gloves, a strong double fabric that will withstand hard wear, and retain its good appearance. They are a perfect imitation of the Real Leather in appearance, but possess the advantage of washing more satisfactorily, and of giving much better wear than any real Leather Gloves at the same price. This statement is strengthened by our guarantee that every pair sold will prove satisfactory in these respects. They have two dome fastenings, and may be had in colours—White, Drab, Brown, Slate, with sewn backs. For a good strong Winter Glove you cannot do better than buy a pair of these.

TO-DAY 2/6; USUALLY 2/11.

The Special Price Reduction lasts for To-day. Those who cannot call should despatch orders immediately on receipt of this announcement, and we will execute it at the Reduced Price, and send post free.

SOMETHING GOOD

IN UNDERWEAR!

These under-garments of ours are pure wool, natural in colour, and undyed—and are woven specially for us by one of the most exclusive British Mills.

The shirts have the sleeve ends and bottom edges ribbed to prevent them unravelling—and there are no seams to irritate the skin.

The wool in them is thoroughly preshrunken, and though we have a standing guarantee to replace any garment that shrinks, we never have a single complaint on this score.
Neither in price nor weight are these garments heavy.

UNDERSHIRTS, 7/6 each.

UNDERPANTS, 7/6 each.

THE HERCULES SPECIAL.

Motor boating is not expensive; not anything like so expensive as a motor-car. The hull of a pleasure boat costs little, and the engine has been coming down in price, until to-day you can get a "Hercules" Special, complete equipment, 4 to 6 h.p., for the very reasonable sum of £60.

So you see that for a small outlay you can become possessed of a nice little pleasure boat, that will give you and your friends infinite amusement.

Call and see our models; we have also the "J.H.M." and "De Dion" Engines.

MEN WHO KNOW

say that the DEPENDABLE ATLAS is a better engine than any other of its class they have ever seen. Most of them became Atlas Owners as soon as they found it out. The rest are doing so as fast as we can supply the engines. Are YOU one of those who know? If you're not, it's your fault. It costs nothing to find out. Just come around and ask to see the engine give its evidence. You'll be a better judge of marine engines value after you've seen an Atlas demonstration.

THE JERSEY CITY STANDARD MARINE OIL ENGINES.

Mr. Norman Wheatley (Plantation Owner) of Gizo, Solomon Islands, writes:—

"Having thoroughly 'tried out' a 25-h.p. 'JERSEY CITY STANDARD' Engine for two years, under all conditions, I want TWO 'JERSEY CITY STANDARDS,' of 50-h.p. each, for a schooner I am building; also two 8-h.p. 'JERSEY CITY STANDARDS' for smaller vessels. In my opinion, these Engines 'STAND ALONE,' and I will have no other make."

The above speaks for itself.

These Engines are GUARANTEED to develop 25 per cent. more horse-power than rated at.

Fitted with WHISTLE, MECHANICAL LUBRICATOR, GEAR-DRIVEN DYNAMO, and dozens of other improvements found on no other engine.

AUSTRALIAN ORCHESTRAL COLLEGE.

Direction Downs Johnstone. Office and Studios, Albert's Music Warehouse, 137-9 King-street, city.

Lessons Day or Evening, in the following subjects:—PIANO, VIOLIN, 'CELLO, VIOLA, MANDOLINE, THEORY, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, CANON, FUGUE COMPOSITION, CHAMBER MUSIC, ORCHESTRATION, Voice Production, and Singing.

Special Engagement of Mr. ALFRED HILL, R.C.M.L. (from the Royal Conservatorium of Music, Leipsic).

The Well-known Musician, Conductor, and Composer, Mr. Alfred Hill has been engaged as Principal Teacher and Supervisor to the AUSTRAL ORCHESTRAL COLLEGE.

Mr. Hill is pre-eminently suited to fill this important position, having had five years' training at the world-famous Leipsic Conservatorium. Mr. Hill is well known throughout the colonies as a Conductor and Composer. Among other appointments he conducted the Sydney Liedertafel for five years. His compositions include "Hinemoa" Cantata, produced by the Sydney Philharmonic Society, under Signor Hazon, "Maori Symphony," "Scotch Sonata" (Violin and piano), played by Ovide Musin, the famous violinist, throughout his world's tour; his operas, "A Moorish Maid" and "Tapu," the latter produced by Mr. J. C. Williamson; and his songs, sung by Madame Albani, Watkin Mills, Kennerley Rumford, and Ada Crossley are too well known to need mention.

Mr. Hill will head the teaching staff at the College, and besides teaching himself will supervise the work of the institution generally, and conduct the ensemble classes, the Austral Orchestra, and Operatic Society.

Prospectus obtainable on application to ALBERT and SON, or College Office (ground floor), Albert's Music Warehouse, King-street.

THE AUSTRAL STUDENT'S SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

Mr. ALFRED HILL, the eminent CONDUCTOR, COMPOSER, and TEACHER, having taken charge of this Orchestra has altered its aims and scope. It will now be considered as an Orchestral class to prepare players for professional and large amateur Orchestras. Only the STANDARD OVERTURES, SUITES, SYMPHONIES, etc., will be studied, and particular attention will be paid to matters of TECHNIQUE, TONE, ATTACK, and PHRASING.

Students other than those belonging to the College may become members on payment of £1 1s per term. Applications for membership invited.

For Prospectus and all information, apply to College Office (ground floor), Albert's Music Warehouse, King-street, city.

The capabilities of all students tested by appointment with Mr. Alfred Hill.

A GIGANTIC PRODUCTION IN ADDITION TO THE USUAL PROGRAMME.

THE FALL OF TROY.

IN SOME SCENES THERE ARE OVER EIGHT HUNDRED ACTORS.

The realism of every scene, particularly those which show the destruction of Troy, is marvellously depicted.

SYNOPSIS.—PART I.

PROLOGUE.—Homer sings to the Greeks of the exploits of the Heroes of the Trojan War.
Menelaus, King of Sparta, takes leave of his wife, Helen.
Paris, son of Priam, King of Troy, comes as Ambassador to the Court of Menelaus.
The love of Paris for Helen.
Paris carries away Helen with the help of Venus, Goddess of Love.
Menelaus hears of his loss, and declares war on Troy.
The Siege of Troy. The Assault of the Greeks repelled.
Wondrous scenes of attack and defence.

PART II.

The Greeks begin to return to their country, leaving under the Walls of Troy an enormous wooden horse.
The Trojans, thinking the Greeks will not return, carry the horse into the town.
Part of the wall is dismantled for this purpose.
The Greeks learn from a spy the success of their stratagem, and return in their galleys.
Warriors emerge from the horse at night, and set the town on fire.
The Greeks enter by the dismantled gate.
The Trojans put to the sword.
Paris and Helen survey the burning city. A wondrous staging.
Menelaus slays Paris. The end of Troy. Fall of the King's Palace.
THE FINEST SCENE EVER FILMED.

IF YOU MISS SEEING THIS PHOTO-PLAY YOU MISS SEEING ONE OF THE MOST MARVELLOUS AND REALISTIC PRODUCTIONS EVER SHOWN.

MANAGERIAL NOTE.—We would again draw the public's attention to the fact that our prices of admission are the same as charged in America and England. We guaranteed the public that with their support we would show everything that was good in Photo-play productions. That we have kept our word is proven by our thousands of regular patrons.

MUSIC FOR THE MASSES.
Music has a charm for everyone, and the new method of learning the PIANO or ORGAN is so simple that a person of any age can now become an accomplished player, without having any previous knowledge of MUSIC.
NEW METHOD.
The Stave represents the keyboard of the PIANO, the black lines represent the black keys on the Piano, and the white keys are represented by the notes in the spaces between the black lines. Time and expression are just the same as in the old method, therefore the pupil reads music at sight in first lesson. The new method dispenses with learning of SHARPS, FLATS, SCALES, or EXERCISES; all the drudgery of years of theory is entirely dispensed with, and the pupil plays tunes in first lesson. It is sufficient when such critics as Professor Marshall Hall, of Melbourne, says: "Ingenious and splendid for the MASSES."
Herr Scharf, Australia's Leading Pianist, says: "I would teach my own CHILD the new method."
To give the public some idea of the progress of the new method, during the past 18 months, 346 branches have been opened in the Commonwealth of Australia, employing 603 teachers, and over 30,000 pupils have been instructed how to play the Piano during that time. We have an instructress to receive the public and prove to them by giving a free lesson that all we claim to do is a fact.
We guarantee to teach you to play the Piano perfectly in 8 lessons, from perfect music, or refund your FEE. Pupils Enrolled Daily.
FEE, £1/1/- FOR 8 LESSONS; BY POST, £2/2/-.
MUSIC INCLUDED. HOURS: 10 to 9 DAILY; SAT., 10 to 1.
Don't be sceptical. Call and have this wonderful method explained to you.

PHOTOGRAPHY FROM THE CLOUDS WITH KODAK CAMERAS.
During the week the Kodak Camera has been invading the skies, with the result that many fine pictures have been appearing in several of the daily papers and illustrated weeklies.
The representative of the Daily Telegraph used Kodak film.
The representative of the Evening News and T. and C. Journal used a No. 4 Speed Kodak with Kodak film.
The photographer for the Sydney Morning Herald and Sydney Mail also used the No. 4 Speed Kodak with Kodak film.
The Kodak Camera is first and foremost in everything. First in the introduction of the roll film idea, first with the daylight development scheme, first for compactness, simplicity, and efficiency.

PART I.—HUGH LYNCH'S STORY.

CHAPTER I.

I am writing this in prison.

I don't know that anyone will ever read it, but, if anyone ever should, he need not picture to himself a cell in Portland or Wormwood Scrubs, with a gas-jet, and a Bible, and a spy-hole in the door, and a warder walking up and down outside.

It is a very different sort of prison that holds me, Hugh Lynch—thirty-one years of age, and good for nothing any more—this dead, damp, choking-hot "north-western" afternoon. The walls are corrugated iron, whitewashed, and very clean; there is a sleeping-mat on the floor, and a pillow, and a box, and a tin basin. The window looks out upon the open sea.

I could break through it, or the floor, with a penknife any night—supposing Wilks, the gaoler, had not left the door open, as he generally does. Wilks is lazy, and does not much like the bother of having a white prisoner; he put me on parole the first day I was here, so that he should not be troubled to look after me.

A cheap parole, truly. Where could a man escape to in British New Guinea, as it remains even in this last quarter of the nineteenth century—an unexplored wilderness of cannibal savages, about the last place on the face of God's earth?

But I would stake my freedom that this wild country will be a great colony some day.

Who knows it as I do? Who has paid so for what he knows? Half drowned a dozen times on the river bars; nearly eaten by alligators oftener than I could remember; speared by a black brute in Orangerie Bay; caught and tied up for cooking on Ferguson Island; starved to a skeleton exploring in the Owen Stanley Range; down with fever gold-hunting in the woodlarks, in the Louisiades, up the Mambare River—Well, I'm not writing a boys' adventure book, but I never read one that had half the adventures in it I have had in this out-of-the-way, back-of-God-speed, dark, devilish hole of a British New Guinea.

. . . Which, in spite of all the names I call it and all it has done to me, I can't help liking, even yet. That's the way with us in New Guinea—we sow for someone else to reap.

What have I reaped out of my six years in the country? Well, that is what I set out to write; I shall come to it by-and-by.

The days here are so long, in spite of the odd jobs of whitewashing, gardening, and grooming given me by the gaoler, that I have felt obliged to make some occupation for the empty hours. I begged an old ledger, only a quarter filled, from Wilks to-day, and in that I am going to write down, day by day, as time may serve, the whole truth about my wretched story, partly for my own employment, and partly because——

No, I won't write that second "because." I don't care if she ever does know; I don't care if she is dead. No more about her. I write to please myself—no one else.

How quiet the prison is! It is the hottest hour of the afternoon; the parrots have ceased their screaming in the bush that lies behind the hill; the leatherheads have not yet begun their evening squawking and scandalising among the palm-tree tops. All the native prisoners are out working on the roads; Wilks, I suspect, is taking an afternoon nap after his midday "comforter." There is not a sound but the humming of the surf on the coral reef, a long way out at sea, and the little ruffle of the waves breaking on the beach below the gaol.

Port Moresby is out of sight round the corner—half-a-dozen tin bungalows with stilty legs and big verandahs; offices, some of them, a store or two, a house or two—that is all. And here, on the grass below the "capital," stands the gaol, my home.

Who and what am I, and why am I here? A page copied out of Wilks' rough and ready prison register will answer. I'm not a young lady in a novel, so I cannot very well describe myself, but I think Wilks has done it accurately enough.

"Lynch, Hugh. White. Age, 31. Nationality, Irish. Crime, manslaughter. Sentence, two years.

"Description: Height, 5ft 8½in. Hair, dark red, very thick. Face much tanned. Eyes small, greyish-brown. Clean shaved. Wide mouth, good teeth. Nose short and irregular. Small ears. Exceptional development of muscle all over. Somewhat round-shouldered.

"Marks: Knife scar on left shoulder, spear mark right thigh. Tattooing: Dragon left forearm; mermaid, red and blue, on back; snake (blue) encircling right upper arm; 'Panchita M.,' centre of chest; 'Amour eternal, 1887,' enclosed in circle (red) over left breast; girl's head in a crescent moon (blue) over the fourth rib, right side. Device apparently erased with acid, just above.

"Speaks French and Spanish, also Motuan, and several other New Guinea dialects."

. . . I had just got so far, when the doctor came in on a visit of inspection. He was a little drunk, as usual, and very pleasant; I think his grammar was rather worse than usual (when an Irishman is vulgar be sure he's an Ulsterman, like M'Gonigal), and he was much inclined to talk. He took Wilk's ledger off the floor, where it lay, while I was copying seated on my mat, and began to read it aloud with shrieks of laughter. Wilks, who had followed, stood sheepishly looking on, his mouth full of afternoon tea.

"Nose irregular," read the doctor—"exceptional muscular development. Them two things hangs together, me boy; you're apt to find an irregular nose with an arm and a chest like yours, and the rid hair that shows the fiery timper. 'Round-shouldered'—Ignorramus! did j'ever see a Herkewls with the carriage of a Ganymede, now?"

"No, sir, certainly not, sir," says poor Wilks, hopelessly muddled.

". . . Speaks Spanish—Panchita—speaks French—'Amour eternel'—girl in a crescent—girl, or something about a girl, burned out—knife wound on the left shoulder—and them hangs together, too, ye Lutherian! Why, it's a biography ye've written here, Wilks. Manslaughter—hm! hm! Give us a sup of the tea ye have in your quarters, Mr. Gaoler, with the flavouring that I perceive ye've been adding to it, and we'll let the lad alone; after all, we don't an-natomise a criminal before he's dead, even in British New Guinea."

I was afraid the doctor would begin overhauling my manuscript, but he never even glanced at it—he has more refinement of feeling than his grammar might lead one to expect. He walked out of the cell, still laughing, and Wilks followed him, carrying the register with him. It ought never to have been there, but there is not much prison discipline in Port Moresby.

Alone again in my little whitewashed box, with not a sound to disturb me but the dry rustle of the palms outside, I sat and thought for a long time, looking out at the flat blue sea. There was a lakatoi on it a little while ago—a huge canoe with immense, curved, bat-like wings, skimming along towards Paga Hill. There was a thin black stream, far out at sea, followed by a long crystal wake—that was an alligator going after the lakatoi. I watched them both out of sight; the sea is empty now, and I have taken up my pen again.

I think that the doctor spoke the truth. Wilks has written a pretty large slice of my autobiography for me. I'll let it go at that.

Three years before the mast at sea—a year in Ecuador and Bolivia—another in Tahiti and New Caledonia—another in Australia—six in New Guinea—that's the tale in the rough. A gentleman to begin with, a County Clare lad meant for the army, and brought home from his tutor's at 18 to be told that his father was dead, his property muddled away, and himself a beggar—that was the beginning of life for Hugh Lynch. I had an uncle on my mother's side (she had died long before the black days came on us, thank God!), and he found a place for me in a Liverpool warehouse as a junior clerk. I kept the place just ten days. The eleventh day found me berthed in the forecastle of a 500-ton brig bound for Buenos Ayres—entered on the books as an able seaman, and well worth my wages, too—I hadn't sailed my father's yacht round Ireland and up to Stromness for nothing. As for the senior clerk in Pettigrew's, of Water-street, he probably got a couple of new front teeth from the dentist near the Town Hall, next Saturday, and I don't think the split in his lip would bother him for more than a day or two. All things considered, he was lucky.

Was I?

Well, for the next few years, "all the kingdoms of the earth, and the glory of them" were mine. If I paid the price one is supposed to pay I got what I paid for. They say the devil is fond of cheating you out of the goods you've bought. He did not cheat me.

There's a good deal one does not care to think of in cool blood about the history of those years. If I told the story of the knife scar that I shall carry to my grave, and the story of the little wooden cross in the big barranco beyond La Paz that goes with it—if I wrote down everything that happened in that mutiny off the Chilian coast, who sank the Senorita, and why; and what you'd find tied to the mainmast if you got a diving dress and went down to look, and why I would not take the Governorship of the island if it were offered me to go back and live in Tahiti—if I wrote all that, and the rest that I haven't touched on, there'd be more biography on the paper, and of a queerer kind than ever any Colonial professes to have found on my skin. You see, I had the education of a gentleman, and the muscles of a strong man in a circus, and the salt drop in the blood that drives to wandering. Mix these together, and you'll get a stew with pepper in it. There has been nothing mean or dishonest in my life, but I'm afraid that is the very best my very best friend could say for me. And it I have not succeeded in unclassing myself altogether I have gone a long way towards it. Whether that is an advantage or not is one of the things I have never been able to decide. At all events, it is so, beyond altering. Of no class, no country, no home, and no future—that is what I am, and where the "Red Gods" have led me at the last.

And now for the story:

It begins three years ago, when I came into Port Moresby to look for a wife. I had taken up the prettiest little group of islands a man ever saw, ten or fifteen miles from the mainland of the north-east coast, and had planted them with cocoanuts. There was pearl shell in the centre lagoon, and fine Turkey sponge near the outer reef, and hawksbill turtle all over the place.

I had had a house built of native materials, a little brown home like a bird's nest, set among the big palms that had been growing on the island for half a century, with my young trees behind it, and the beach and the lagoon before. After a long day overseeing the work of the boys, I used to light my pipe and sit on the verandah, watching the sun go down over the Barrier Reef in a blaze of colours that no one would believe, if I could describe it, and listening to the jumping of the fish in the still water below.

The head boy would be busy making curry and tea for me in the cookhouse. When he had done he would lay my table, and go off to his own little hut at the back of the island, where his Motuan wife would be waiting for him, with the sago hot from the fire in a wooden bowl, and the white cocoanut cream in another, set out on the floor mat. And there was a fat little brown baby, that used to roll about at the foot of the verandah ladder, and shriek when it saw its father coming down the avenue of palms. I've heard it many an evening, when I had finished early and gone out for a walk round the island. It used to put me into the blues, that and the look of Bogi sitting cooking on the floor, with the light of the hurricane lamp behind her.

Some of the other boys had wives with them, too—I never prevented their bringing their girls along, it helped to keep them contented—and, what with one thing and another, my smart little house used to look solitary and empty to me of evenings. It was the first real home I had had since I was a child, that island plantation, but it did not seem homelike.

Well, the end of it was that one day I provisioned my cutter for a long trip, told my head boy I shouldn't be back for some weeks, gave him a fathom of instructions and the keys of the store, and set sail out of the lagoon for Port Moresby. What with calms and head winds it took me near three weeks to get there, being the north-west season; but I did arrive at last, and tied up the Bird of Paradise to the new jetty, intending to live in her cabin till I had bought my stores and had a look round the township and found a pretty little girl from Hanuabada or Elivara to take back to Clare Island—so I had called my small property after my native county at home.

THE LOST IPHIGENIA.

This was a risky card to play, and she knew it. But it was her last, and Madame played with a splendid courage.

"For Lothnar!" Lady Holdfast straightened herself, dropped her hands from before her face. "For Lothnar!" she repeated. "For his sake! For the sake of the man who—" She got up and approached Madame Costanza. "Do you know what that man did to me—what he did to me? I was so young, I knew nothing—a little fool. He came like a fire across my life, and left—nothing.

"You asked me just now if I had children. I said to myself: Does a dead woman have children? I was glad to be dead: it was peace at least. Now you come, calling me to life again—Life is torture! You have blown on the fire under the white ash, and it burns, it burns."

Madame Costanza's large, warm, forceful clasp once more seized upon the slender hands.

"But you will sing—you will sing!" she said.

Sarolta looked into the hawk-like eyes, devouring and commanding, fierce in their desire. Once more she felt herself in the grip of the artist's ruthless egoism. So that Art be served, what mattered the suffering, the sacrifice? Nay, if from the tortured soul should rise a purer cry, was it not all gain? An overwhelming sensation of helplessness stole over her.

"Yes," she said, like one hypnotised, "I suppose I shall sing."

And out of her unexpected surrender sprang unexpectedly a fierce desire. Yes, she would sing—if only once again. The red still burned under the white!

Madame drew a gasping breath of relief, plumped down on the sofa, and drew the other beside her.

"You have given me a pretty fright!" she ejaculated.

But though "Sarolta" had thus consented, "Lady Holdfast" had still many things to discuss, and conditions to impose, which she did with restored calmness and a great deal of determination. She had deliberately cut herself aloof from the artist's life; and even with Sady correspondence had languished. She knew nothing, would know nothing, of what had happened at Frankheim after her flight. But now she questioned!—Lothnar had left the place, very shortly after herself, she was now informed; had taken a sudden horror of it, had fled to the Tyrol, where he had lived in complete seclusion, seeing only Webel and a few other picked friends. The little town had languished, forlorn; but the Master had recovered what was life to him, his inspiration. The last year the Trauer Symphonie had occupied his every thought.

"If I sing—" said Sarolta ponderingly, at last, "it must be as Sarolta Vaneck. If Dr. Lothnar has heard of my marriage——"

"He has not!" screamed the other. "Why, ma pauvre enfant, that monster of genius, if you think he has as much as asked after you, or any of his singers! Bah, with that one, it is only when you are wanted that you are remembered."

She spoke out of the intensity of her desire, not meaning to be brutal, but at the look upon Sarolta's face she caught herself up, and went on in softer accents:

"Voyons, Sarolta—how could he have heard anything, when in Frankheim itself not a soul knows of you and your Sir John! Does not this very telegram prove his ignorance?"

Lady Holdfast fixed her glance searchingly upon the speaker's face—but Madame's eyes were the mirror of a very honest soul—then gave a little sigh:

"If it is understood, then, that my married name is not to be brought into it, not to be made known——"

"Nothing more simple, my dear. As for Lothnar, I shall simply wire:

"'I have found Sarolta; she consents.'"

"Wait a moment," said Lady Holdfast. She laid her white hand, with its sparkling weight of rings, upon the singing-mistress's cheerfully gesticulating arm. "There is yet another point; I will study the part with you, and attend one rehearsal at Frankheim before the performance, but that is all; except for this, I will not meet Dr. Lothnar."

This was the signal for the good lady to jeter les hauts cris—what she would have described as "the high cries." But Lady Holdfast was immovable. They could have an understudy in case at that one rehearsal she failed to please the composer. She would herself pay the understudy, should there be any difficulty on the score of money.

Madame Costanza gazed at her, pursing her lips.

There fell a silence; and in the silence, the teacher's expressive countenance became set into lines of sadness that were almost tragic, Frank, impulsive creature as she was, there were unexpected delicacies and reticences in her nature. She never spoke of the sorrows of her own life—neither would she seek to probe the wounds of another. What had Lothnar done to this child?

"You have suffered much, ma fille," she said at last. Her deep voice vibrated. It was as if all the passionate grief of her own existence had awakened in sympathy. Then her unconquerable optimism rose uppermost once more.

"But one sings none the worse for that—believe me," she added cheerfully.

"I knew you would tell me so," said Sarolta, with a little angry laugh.

Madame surveyed her again in silent reflection—prudently; then she gave another turn to the conversation:

"And you really expect me to make conditions with Lothnar? Conditions with Lothnar, juste ciel."

"It is for him to accept or refuse," said Sarolta. If the composer could not trust them both sufficiently, there was no more to be said.

"Well, well," cried the other, who had too good a knowledge of human nature not to know when she was beaten; and who possessed the quality, so useful in life, to be able to make the best of a compromise. "He must trust us—he shall trust us—or let him go hang."

Then, with the glee of a child, she prepared for departure.

She was sorry not to see ce bon Sir John, but she must be back in London that night—and no doubt she would meet him soon.

"For you will come to Paris and work? Ah, it is a marvel, that Symphony. You will not regret it, my little Sarolta. To bury such a talent as yours. Pity you will not see Sady. Yes, she is in America, my love. Did you not know? She has had a success over there with her linnet notes and that winning personality of hers—and has she told you?—No, I will not be indiscreet, but there are rumours that she and your cousin Mosenthal——"

"What," cried Sarolta, a gleam of mirth in her eyes—"What, poor little Chop? . . . . How dare he aspire so high?"

"My dear, he's already a great little man, on his own. He and Sady have been touring the States together. Tut, my dear, you know nothing. He has a future, I tell you."

"He has indeed, if Sady cares for him," said Sarolta softly.

As Madame was driven through the autumnal mists, back to Chilburgh station, she pondered deeply upon Sarolta's attitude. "She has cut herself away from the past as completely as she possibly can. Not even with Sady (Sady, her little providence) has she kept up relations. The Mosenthals are well pensioned, I have no doubt, but it is quite clear she has not laid eyes on one of them since her marriage. Ah, mais, what ugly things people must say of her, who do not know—it is not baseness, it is not ingratitude, it is not the mean shame of the new fine-lady for the poor relations, it is not that she finds it more to her advantage to keep up with an Isleworth or a fat Lady Caroline. . . . no, no, it not want of feeling—it is that she feels—too much, la pauvre petite. It is that she is afraid of herself; it is the sick shrinking from old association, the nausea of the past in one who has too cruelly suffered. Sac-a-papier. What, then, did he do to her, that monster of genius? And she had my photograph on the writing-table."

Madame Costanza had professed herself fully confident of success with Dr. Lothnar; nevertheless, it was somewhat to her surprise that she received next day the Master's acceptance of Sarolta's conditions—acceptance without a single comment. The excellent lady promptly, however, took much pride to herself.

"He knows he can trust Costanza," she said gorgeously.

When Lady Holdfast, up in the North, read the singing-mistress's jubilant telegram, a voice within her said:—

"He knows he can trust Sarolta.' '

Sir John Holdfast brought his wife to Paris with the unalterable generosity of temper which characterised all his dealings with her. He left his pheasants without a murmur, and with amiable mendacity declared it was "great larks to be in Gay Paree."

Madame Costanza, her shrewd eye upon him, wondered many a time what lay under that still boyish affability of demeanour. It was quite clear to her that the whole affair was an anxiety to him. But then it seemed to her that all his relations with Sarolta were tinged with anxiety. There were lines about his mouth and eyes which spoke not only of doubtful thought, but of endurance, of long patience.

"It is my belief," said Madame to herself with profound conviction, "that the young man is an angel."

As for Sarolta's voice—though the teacher grumbled and vowed that they had terrible work in front of them, and that she was only just in time to prevent what was worse than murder, in her heart she was enchanted with it.

"My dear," she wrote to Sady, "it is a marvel. I could cry out all the eyes of my head to think that anything so divine has been lost to the world."

In the early days of November Sir John and Lady Holdfast and Madame Costanza took the road to Frankheim. It was arranged that Sir John was to part company with them at Stuttgart to facilitate the scheme of Sarolta's incognito, and that he would only rejoin his wife after the concert.

"Oh, I say, but you won't mind my getting a ticket and coming to hear you?" he asked wistfully. "I'd like to hear you, you know."

"Of course not, Johnny," she said with the sweetness which Madame Visconti felt was such a surface thing.

"But you'll keep the secret," proceeded she, after a pause, drawing her dark brows together. She pulled off her wedding ring and gave it to him. "This would lead to questions," she said. "At Frankheim I am Sarolta Vaneck, nothing more—you'll remember that."

"Oh, yes, I'll remember," assured Johnny. He put the ring in his pocket, rubbed his crisp brown head, and looked at her dubiously; but he made no remonstrance.

"He would make the perfect husband for a professional!" reflected the teacher. "What a pity he should be so rich!"

It was a very different journey from that which the girl had taken two years before in her second-class carriage, under Frau Hegemann's grim guardianship. As far as Stuttgart Lady Holdfast travelled with all the accessories of wealth and rank; the reserved carriage, the cushions, the sable rug, the dainty tea basket, the ministration of well-trained servants, the obsequiousness of railway officials—and above all, Johnny, Johnny, who knew the exact angle at which his wife's head liked to rest; who knew the amount of air it was safe to admit in the carriage; Johnny, who never obtruded his personality, yet had an instinct like a woman's for the precise moment when he might be of use. It was all accepted as a matter of course. Once or twice Madame Costanza, though she blessed the circumstances which facilitated her own desire, felt as if she could shake the spoilt, indifferent wife.

"If Costanza had been like that!" thought the lady, whose matrimonial experience had been stormy.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Sarolta exchanged never a word with Dr. Lothnar on the day of the final rehearsal; he did not appear among the singers—only took his place at the orchestral desk. It was a dull November afternoon, and though, after the German fashion, the theatre was well warmed, the general impression was one of gloom and chill. At the best of times a rehearsal is a dismal affair; the great empty spaces that should be full of responsive human presences, the shrouded seats, the half lighting, the workaday clothes of the professionals, the strange sounds of instruments and voices in the void that seems to engulf without giving back.

But Sarolta was not nervous—she felt singularly mistress of herself and of the situation; a different entity in every way from that Sarolta who had feared and hoped, rejoiced and suffered, with such intensity.

Yet when Lothnar hurled himself into his seat with the well-remembered headlong impetuosity—when, without salutation to anyone, he seized his baton, held a moment's absorbed communion with himself, swept the orchestra with a lightning glance, and then lifted his arm—she knew that Madame Costanza had been right, and that the old Sarolta, Sarolta the singer, was not dead; that under the white ash the red fire still burned. She had a sudden sense as if life had been in abeyance these two years; as if her heart was going to beat again that had been so still; blood about to leap through her veins once more. But she caught at her fiercely earned self-control; she faced the old self with all the hardness of the new.

"I will not tremble and yield. I will not be his creature, his instrument, to play upon. I will hold my soul my own, and his music that I give out I will give out in my own way." So she spoke to herself and fought with herself; while that music's tragic splendour (Madame had well defined it) rose about her like the waves of a mighty sea, beating upon every nerve and sensibility, as the storm wind beats on the solitary mountain-pine.

But Sarolta's strength had been gathered also in bitterness apart, in silent endurance, in utter disillusion. That is the strength that tells.

When she stepped quietly forward to her place, at the appointed moment, her pulses were steady; she knew that she would not fail.

The stage was crossed by a couple of glaring lights that flung equally dense shadows. Of deliberate purpose she halted within the circle of those unsparing rays, and she knew that Lothnar instantly flung his gaze upon her with a light in his eyes that seemed almost as searching. Then the nervous hand she knew so well measured the slow opening notes of her sad song.

Dr. Josiah Oldfield, speaking on mental forces as a cure for disease, said he remembered that when he was a medical student a man came to him at the hospital for treatment to his hand, and he gave him an ointment something like lard. In a few days he returned saying he was cured, and remarked how much better the treatment was in that hospital than that which he received at Leicester. It often happened that a patient said to a doctor: "That medicine I had last week did not do me so much good as what you gave me before. It was not the same colour." It was probably the same medicine, but with less of the colouring matter. Falling in love was a most efficacious cure for illness. He had observed with the greatest interest cases of women who, after having been under treatment, said, "You need not come any longer, doctor, I am going to get married." Bad temper was one of the most serious causes of dyspepsia.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

MODERN DRAMATISTS.

Ashley Dukes writes a serviceable little book on "Modern Dramatists," which should be specially welcome in Australia, where modern drama is never seen. The author is very modern indeed. He excludes Sudermann and Sir Arthur Pinero, and gives some criticism of them, as it were, under protest. Nor does he lay stress on "schools." Everything finely imagined is of necessity real, and everything real is a symbol. What the theatre needs is free spirits and good workmen. It is the irony of fate that the "modern," so far as he establishes himself, becomes a classic. Ibsen and Nietzsche join the tradition against which they so vehemently fought. Yet the term modernity does express a quality, dynamic and developing. It is often the future projected into the present. The author begins with the influence of Ibsen. Ibsen served an apprenticeship to Dumas, and now France serves an apprenticeship to Ibsen. For Ibsen is so real that a London critic once called him suburban. Suburbia is real—that is its tragedy. Yet Ibsen did not despise either actor or audience, nor did he write prefaces to his plays. Bjornson and Strindberg naturally follow Ibsen. The first wrote about twenty plays, half-way between poetry and the pulpit. Strindberg was a virile force independent of Ibsen, and almost as vigorous a thinker; while in art he is closer to Shakespeare, because he is closer to the eternal. Nietzsche admired him immensely. The German theatre is now, says the author, the most cosmopolitan in the world, and it rather than the library is the centre of intellectual life. There is always a welcome for the problem play, whatever the problem may be. In Germany Bernard Shaw is a popular author. Sudermann, who owes something to Sardou and something to Scandinavia, was hailed as a pioneer because he offended the censor. "Magda," says the critic, is sultry, stagey, sentimental to the point of nausea. From Sudermann to Hauptmann we pass from the pedlar to the poet; but poetry is not drama. Wedekind used to be the last word of daring. He is a cross between the eccentric and the man of genius. Bernard Shaw, Granville Barker, Galsworthy, and the obvious Europeans are also passed in review. (Dymock.)

RANDOM RECOLLECTIONS.

A. G. C. Liddell's "Notes From the Life of an Ordinary Mortal" (Murray) is a sufficiently readable budget, covering men and things in the last half of the nineteenth century. The author was born in 1846, and educated at Eton and Oxford. He then read for the Bar, and served on several important commissions. Later he held various official positions, and came in contact with most of the leading men of the day. He has thus ample material out of which to make a book. When he was a little boy, Professor Owen was a next-door neighbour, and Sir Henry Taylor, the poet, lived close by. It was about that time that Owen modelled the antediluvian monsters for the Crystal Palace—a banquet was given inside the megatherium. Liddell went to Eton in 1859, and on February 22, 1862, received his only swishing, which shows that he must have been either good or clever. When he went up to Oxford, Balliol was a small college, but its staff was brilliant, including amongst others Jowett, Riddell, Newman, and T. H. Green. After being admitted to the Bar, the author did circuit work more or less for 15 years. He also did law reporting for the "Times," and he was an amateur painter of some repute. He chats familiarly about many eminent persons, such as Arthur Balfour, George Curzon, Charles Bowen, Edward VII. as a child, and A. G. C. Liddell from six to 60. As usual in books of this kind, there is nothing very quotable: even the great lions roar ever so mildly. (Robertson's.)

REVOLUTIONARY IRELAND.

Dr. R. H. Murray gives a solid contribution to history in "Revolutionary Ireland and its Settlement" (Macmillan). The period covered is 1688 to 1714, and in particular the author treats this part of Irish history from the point of view of European policy. Often, indeed, its episodes could be better understood at Paris than at Dublin. When Louis XIV. sent James to Ireland he hoped the war would last ten years, and with William so employed he would be free to pursue his designs on Spain. That plan failed, but for long after France used Ireland as a means of attacking England in the rear. Such a view gives coherence to a very puzzling phase of history, and it has the support both of Dr. Bury and Dr. Mahaffy. The latter contributes a readable and characteristic introduction. He deplores the quasi-political histories of Ireland that issue from the press every year, but fears that a laborious and impartial treatise is not a very promising venture in these days. Yet Irish history is no mere appendix to that of England. He proceeds to ask whether the deep-seated antagonism between the two countries is one of race or of religion. The two he thinks intertwine; but is religion more than the symbol of race? At any rate, the heritage is a bitter one even in Ireland itself. Mahaffy remarks that he had been brought up to expect a slow pacification with the progress of modern enlightenment, but he cannot but say that that expectation has been disappointed. Clergy and flocks on both sides, though less violent, are growing narrower and more bigoted in their opinions. Dr. Murray's narrative is thorough and solid, and is based for the most part on minute study of contemporary documents. The European view-point is carefully kept, and adds not a little to the usefulness of the work.

THE THIBETAN STEPPES.

Mr. W. N. Fergusson writes an interesting travel book in "Adventures, Sport, and Travel on the Thibetan Steppes" (Constable). The expedition was due in the first place to Lieutenant Brooke, who crossed from Shanghai to Thibet in 1906, and again in 1908, at the end of which year he was unfortunately murdered in Lolo Land. The records collected by the gallant young officer who thus came to an untimely end were placed in Mr. Fergusson's hands. Brooke was born in 1880, and educated at Repton. He served in the Yeomanry during the South African war, and in 1900 joined a regiment of Hussars. He soon, however, found himself attracted to scientific exploration, and qualified for the fellowship of the Royal Geographical Society. He went to Thibet to investigate the Upper Brahmaputra, but, being prevented from crossing the Indian frontier by a very mistaken international convention, he made the attempt from the north. An adventurous journey resulted, the narrative of which is here excitingly told. Part of the journey was shared in by the author himself, an explorer of no mean repute. Lolo Land, where Brooke met his fate, is a small stretch of country in the heart of Sechwan, which remains independent, and is still unexplored. The inhabitants are a warlike, savage race, who have been gradually hemmed in by the Chinese. These latter from time to time undertake farcial expeditions into Lolo Land, naturally with no result except the showing up of the incompetence of the officials concerned. It was just after one of these attacks that Brooke entered the country, accompanied only by two interpreters and three coolies. When he had been missing about three weeks the rest of the party began to get anxious. It was soon learned that the little expedition had been cut to pieces, apparently as the result of a misunderstanding with a chief who had appeared friendly enough on the way up. The narrative thus ends on a tragic note; but for the rest it is very bright and readable.

CONCERNING SHEPHERDS.

Adelaide Gossett has hit on an out-of-the-way subject in "Shepherds of Britain" (Constable). This is a sort of anthology of the simple life and general glorification of the sheep. W. H. Hudson, Richard Jeffries, Rider Haggard, Walter Skeat, and many other unexpected persons deal with the shepherd and his flock, including accounts of the various breeds. There are many anecdotal quotations about the intelligence and habits of the animal. The shepherd and his dog occupy another section, and the whole veracious history of those dogs is cunningly set forth. Next we proceed to the wool harvest, the care of wool, and the labour of the loom. The art and craft of shepherding are followed by the shepherd at play, and finally we come to the sacrificial sheep. The book is admirably produced, and may be recommended to all who take a quasi-literary interest in a useful and deserving fellow-creature.

LONDON CLUBS.

The history of London clubs is decidedly an attractive subject, and Mr. Ralph Nevill has managed to extract some good material from it. He begins with the rather over-written origin of clubs and coffee-houses. The evolution of the club from the coffee-house is well known, but, as the author says, in the process much of the old conviviality has been lost. "Sir," Dr. Johnson might well say on entering a modern house, "This may be a palace, but it is no club." In the early eighteenth century there were some 2000 coffee-houses in London, but perhaps the only one that remains substantially as it was is the famous "Cheshire Cheese," half-way up Fleet-street. It dates from shortly after the Restoration, and replaced a tavern familiar to Shakespeare. Dr. Johnson was a typical clubman of his age, and he was the founder of quite a number of social clubs. The author proceeds to recount the history of the existing homes of clubland in turn. Clubland grew rapidly in extent all through last century, and now in London it numbers about 200,000 inhabitants. One result is that even the fashionable West End clubs have lost much of their old prestige. The author's anecdotes are nowhere so bright as to be quotable, but they meander on in a sufficiently agreeable fashion.

CORONATION PRAYER BOOKS.

The University Presses of Oxford and Cambridge issue the "Forms of Prayer" for general use on the occasion of the Coronation of George V. and Queen Mary in editions from a penny upwards. Similarly they issue "The Form and Order" of the service that is to be performed, and of the ceremonies that are to be observed on the same occasion in the Abbey Church of S. Peter, Westminster, including the preparation, the entrance into the church, the Recognition, the Litany, the Communion Service, the Sermon, the Oath, the Anointing, the Presenting of the Spurs and Sword, the Investing with the Armilla and the Royal Robe, the Delivery of the Orb, and various other quaint forms of ritual sanctified by time. There are no doubt many people who will be pleased to possess themselves of one of these souvenirs of the occasion. Moreover, the Oxford Press forwards a number of specially prepared editions of the Book of Common Prayer, in various styles and bindings, including the Coronation Service, any one of which would be, it is to be hoped, a daily reminder of the event. It is needless to say that these are beautifully printed and suitably bound.

RECENT FICTION.

W. Heinemann issues a popular three and sixpenny edition of Tolstoy's masterpiece, "War and Peace," a novel that here runs to 1536 closely printed pages. The use of thin paper, however, leaves the volume a comfortable size. The edition is translated in a most capable fashion by Mrs. Garnett. It is certainly no mean publishing feat to compress the original three volumes into one without curtailing the text. A novel of such length needs leisurely reading, but it is one of the world's few great books.

Christopher Heath's "Peter's Progress" (Blackwood) is a breezy story about a subaltern in the Punjab. There is rather a cleverly contrived picture of social and military life in India, and, of course, a complication in hearts; though this is treated in comedy fashion. Peter came very close to tragedy when he had to leave his regiment, but Phil stuck to him bravely, and he had his reward.

Rosaline Masson's "Nina" (Macmillan) is a prettily contrived love story. The setting is Scottish. An unknown woman gives birth to a child at the house of the village doctor, and this child is brought up by a grim old Highland maid, who presently, losing her fortunes, takes a situation at Lord Ormiston's country seat. Here the High Church curate falls in love with Nina, and so does Jack Thirlmere, Ormiston's nephew. Of course, in the end Nina's father was found, and a happy marriage ensued.

A. Whisper's "The Sinister Note" (Blackwood) is a rather dragging story about some very commonplace people who had very commonplace adventures in Spain. There is plenty of local colour, however, and the author evidently knows his Spain. The love episodes of Miguel and Susan are well handled. Unfortunately Susan was more or less engaged to a certain Tom, who had wanted to marry her off and on ever since she came out. The sinister note comes in with a very undesirable priest.

Alfred Carey's "Vic Victa" (Greening) is a very mixed comedy, in which mysterious Indians flit in and out of a very ordinary love story. It seems that a wicked rajah wished to abduct Vic and make her into a sort of Indian divinity, but an English boy who had been himself abducted in infancy foiled the foul plot. Mr. Carey is a very versatile and clever man, who has succeeded in all sorts of directions—but the novel is hardly one of them.

Evelyn Mountjoy's "Demetrius and Daisy" (John Long) is a light-minded story, specially dedicated to light-minded readers. Daisy is a bright young woman, first met with at a French hotel, and she decides for purposes of matrimony and otherwise to masquerade as the widow of a wine merchant. Over the border, in Germany, she met Demetrius, who had been very improperly drinking beer and champagne. He soon got into many ridiculous situations for her sake, though he was a commonplace and very matter-of-fact young Englishman. He was lucky she did not want to marry him; but his respectable family was spared that misfortune.

Robert Wason's "The Steering Wheel" is another good example of American fiction. All the world's a car, and all the men and women would-be chauffeurs. Private affairs, important enough in themselves, are merely cogs of some large car of destiny. As this car tears along the road of circumstance all depends on the steering wheel. The struggle to hold it makes the drama of life. "Don't forget," said the president of the new combine, "I am to dictate its policies. I have not changed my principles one jot. I still believe in universal brotherhood, I still have sympathy with suffering humanity, and I am still going to devote the balance of my life to bringing about a condition wherein poverty will be impossible, and crime an indication of insanity." What the others said was "One good fight with the unions will line him up for the rest of his life." What Kate said behind the screen was, "And will you love me this way always?" (George Robertson.)

SHORTER NOTICES.

Mr. Foster Fraser's recent book has prompted a "Foreigner" of thirty years' domicile in Australia to record his opinions of "Australia and Australians." On the whole he takes up the cudgels in our defence. We have been accused of too much self-confidence, but, as the author says, we are often placed in circumstances where hesitation spells defeat. We simply have to get along. The writer finds us smarter at our work than most races he has met, though we are less thorough than some. Apropos of smartness, he tells the story of the fishing small boy, whom an expostulating Sunday school superintendent asked if he knew where little boys went who fished on the Sabbath. "Yes, I do," replied the child, "but I'm not going to tell you; you can go and bait a place for yourself."

The "Souvenir Series" issued by Jack again shows the remarkable enterprise of this publisher in producing cheap illustrated books. Each eighteenpenny volume contains thirty-two maps and a plan. The pioneers of the series give a capital descriptive account of London and Paris respectively. The plates are uniformly of the highest excellence, and in the choice of subjects good judgment has been displayed. A wide popularity for the series ought to be assured.

Cassell and Co. issue a popular reprint of Arthur Lloyd's "Every-day Japan," which had much success on its first appearance two years ago. The author was engaged in teaching in Japan for a quarter of a century, and he writes brightly about almost every conceivable aspect of Japanese life. The book is one of the most informing of its kind, and in the present edition the numerous photographs are preserved. The publishers are to be congratulated on the new edition.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The Austral String Quartet (Messrs. Cyril Monk, Alfred Hill, S. Vost Janssen, and Carl Gotsch), at their opening concert next Thursday evening will perform, for the first time here, Alfred Hill's "Maori" Quarter in B Flat. The New Zealand composer, some of whose music is to be introduced in London during the Coronation festivities, has made a close and sympathetic study of Maori lyric modes. In such works as his Maori Symphony, "Hinemoa Cantata," "Tapu," comic opera, and Sonata for Piano and Violin, he has caught the poetic spirit of the people—a race of warriors, emotional, rhetorical, rich in song and tradition. The themes in the new quartet embrace a Tangi (lament) and a "Waiata" (dance). The latter is expressed in a theme of barbaric energy, and a second subject of feminine grace. The opening melody of the Lament was obtained by the composer from an old heroine, who in her youth had fought in the ranks of the Ngapuhi tribe in their desperate struggle against the English. The new work is, in fact, essentially romantic, and on that account will appeal all the more strongly to lovers of Chamber Music.

The destruction of the stage of the Edinburgh Empire Palace Theatre during the present week illustrated the practical advantage of the iron shutter and asbestos curtain with which playhouses are now generally provided. There was no panic after the metal screen had fallen, and the audience filed out in good order. Both men and beasts unhappily perished in the conflagration behind the scenes. The cablegram furnishes a pathetic word-picture of Lafayette, who fell whilst rescuing his favourite horse, his exit being apparently blocked by a lion that "went mad"—the most reasonable act of its life—and refused to face the flames. Mr. Tom Graves, who makes his Sydney debut in the "Gay Gordons," to-night, was appearing at the London Hippodrome last year at the same time as Lafayette, and witnessed a scene of tragi-comedy, of which that same lion was the hero, and a sharp little charwoman the heroine. The royal beast was suddenly revealed at large upon the stage, just as the curtain had fallen after a matinee. Some attendant had probably forgotten to latch the gate of the cage. Lafayette at once assembled a score of stage-hands with pitchforks, and other weapons, to frighten the animal back again. Much shouting, coupled with a fixed determination not to get too close to the growling monster, with such remonstrances as "Don't Shove me on to 'im, Bill," caused Mr. Graves and other artists perched in safety on coigns of vantage, the most exquisite amusement. Ultimately, the lion backed into the green-room, where a slip of a sharp-featured cockney charwoman was cleaning a window. "Now then, you boys, just clear that nasty brute out again. I 'ates the smell of 'im, and I won't 'ave it." As the cleaner advanced rapidly with her brooms and pail with undaunted front, the lion slunk out again into his cage, and three cheers were given for the woman who had shown the men "how to do it." It seems that "the long arm of coincidence," as Haddon Chambers phrased it in "The Idler," brought Mr. Graves six months later within "coo-ee" of another escaped lion in Melbourne. Fasola, the Indian fakir, was the proprietor in this instance, and, as will be remembered, the beast walked out of Rickards's Opera House, strolled down Collins-street, and was ultimately recaptured in the vestibule of adjacent offices.

"Nobody's Daughter" was produced for the first time in Australia at His Majesty's Theatre, Perth, on April 30, by the Hamilton, Plimmer, and Denniston Company, and proved an instantaneous success. The new play is by "George Paston" (Miss E. M. Symonds), and is a strong comedy-drama, which ran for eight months last year in London. Briefly put, it deals with the story of Mrs. Frampton (Mrs. Brough) who, before her marriage 17 years earlier, had a daughter, Honora May (Miss Lizette Parkes), since brought up by a trusted nurse (Miss Tempe Pigott). The girl's father, Colonel Torrens, returns from India, and persuades his one-time sweetheart to take her daughter into her own house. There Mr. Frampton (Mr. Plimmer), the wealthy director of pottery works, never rests until he finds out who Honora really is; and the moral upheaval which ensues forms the central situation of the play. "Nobody's Daughter," which made a deep impression, will open the H.T.D. Company's season at the Princess's Theatre, Melbourne, on June 10, and Adelaide, and other places, including Hobart, will be visited. The Sydney Season will open at the Palace Theatre with the new piece on September 30. Mr. Allan Hamilton has now booked a fresh tour, extending into May, 1912, so that the clever H.P.D. combination threatens to become permanent, towards which end several new, high-class pieces are being acquired in London. Mr. Allan Hamilton's "Why Men Love Women" Company, headed by Miss Frances Ross and Mr. Conway Wingfield, is now successfully touring New Zealand.

Mr. William J. Coad, a young professional violinist of this city, who has been studying for 18 months past, under the famous virtuoso and teacher, Cesar Thomson (Brussels Conservatoire), at Brussels, writes from that city, under date of March 24. His first concert season in Europe was spent at Vienna, and he remarks of his second (in the Belgian capital) that whereas visiting stars used to make four or five appearances in Vienna, they rarely give more than one concert, or, possibly, two, in Brussels. Consulting one of Breitkopf's publishing managers, the opinion was expressed that the Belgian public was not essentially musical, as in Paris, and that it was the large English community that mostly supported the virtuosi of renown. Mr. Coad points, nevertheless, to the Cabaret Artistique, a restaurant which boasts a well-trained little orchestra and a large pipe organ, as an agreeable "local product," where a great many clever unknowns get a hearing, with the result that "voices of the future" occasionally delight the ear. Prices represent a mere trifle, and as there are no intervals, people talk during. "Talk during" is the writer's own expression, and in Captain Cuttle's words, should be "when found made a note of!" Mr. Coad heard a number of great artists once during the season. Mischa Elman gives big readings, but is rough, considering his rank—Kreisler he acclaims as the "king of fiddlers"—perfect in everything. Amongst pianists he heard Sauer, Rosenthal, Gabrilovitch, and Friedberg. In opera he heard Claude Debussy's "Peleas and Melisande," and Strauss's "Elektra," and though both works were ultra-modern, they proved as far apart as the poles. The former, in spite of its discords, was extremely refined, whilst nothing could be noisier, or more overbearing, than the latter—each requiring an infusion of the other's qualities.

Mr. Fred. Winn, the stage manager, newly arrived here with the "Gay Gordons," is a Sussex man, and started his stage career as a call-boy at the old Theatre Royal, Brighton, in the days of Mrs. Nye Chart's long and famous management. The beginner threw this up reluctantly to secure more schooling, and did not resume until he was of age, when he toured with the late E. H. Brooke, in "The Silver King," with Miss Cissy Grahame as Nellie Denver. After a year or two of stock work, Mr. Winn toured South Africa (1889) with the late Lionel ("Lal") Brough's company, and he visited the Cape a second time with George Edwardes' musical comedy company during the Jameson Raid. About this time the comedian was prominent in musical plays, and from 1899 to 1905 he was in management in England with J. C. Piddock (the baritone of the "Scarlet Feather" in Australia), and for four and a half years played old Cyrus Gilfain, in "Florodora" all over the United Kingdom. Mr. Winn's favourite characters, however, are Hilarius in "La Poupee" and old Mr. Hook in "Miss Hook of Holland." The latter part he played on tour in Frank Curzon's company, with Miss Isabel Jay in the name-part, and the piece ran eight weeks in Manchester, which is almost a record for musical comedy in that great city, where there are too many theatres, and too many suburban houses, for the longer runs of Sydney and Melbourne.

ROBUR TEA.

HOW TO MAKE TEA PROPERLY.

It is just as easy to make it properly as it is to make it indifferently—just the same trouble, but not the same satisfaction; so why not make it properly?

(1) Boil the water you use in a clean kettle—kettles get dirty just the same as other pots and pans. To clean a kettle boil a handful of washing soda in it about once a month, and then thoroughly rinse it out.

(2) Make sure that the water you intend to make your Tea with is fresh—in other words, every time you make Tea put fresh water on to boil—water that has been boiled twice does not make good Tea.

(3) Rinse out your teapot with hot water just before you intend to make Tea, and let the hot water remain in the teapot long enough to thoroughly warm it, then empty the water out and measure in your Tea.

(4) The instant the water in the kettle comes to a boil wet the Tea—if you allow it to boil away for a long time before you make your Tea it becomes hard, and when it is hard doesn't draw the goodness out of the leaf.

(5) Allow the tea to draw for about 5 or 6 minutes. Allow it to draw the full time, or you don't get all the goodness out of the tea, and be careful not to allow it to draw too long, or it spoils.

(6) Should you happen to require a cup or two more than the teapot holds, don't add a spoonful of fresh tea to the already exhausted leaves, but wash the teapot out and make a fresh pot of tea.

(7) Don't wet your Tea with a little water with the idea that a small drop of very strong Tea filled up with hot water will make as good a cup of Tea as if made to the necessary strength right away, because it does not. A certain quantity of water is needed to extract all the goodness out of a certain quantity of Tea, and so if you don't put in sufficient water right off you don't get all the goodness out of your Tea.

(8) Put your milk into the cup before you pour the Tea into it.

(9) Add sugar to sweeten to your liking.

(10) One spoonful of leaf is usually considered about the right quantity to make sufficient Tea for each person. "Robur" being more saving than Ceylon or ordinary blended Teas, you don't need to put quite as much in.

NOW LET US TELL YOU ABOUT ROBUR TEA.

It is absolutely pure Tea, classed into four distinct grades—the difference between the various grades being almost entirely a matter of fineness of flavour, or number of cups that one grade will make more than another. They are all packed in the same inexpensive, clean way, in packets and tins, the grade of Tea contained in each package being indicated on the label.

"SPECIAL GRADE"

is the finest quality tea known. It is simply impossible to get anything better anywhere. It recently won the gold medal at the Paris Exhibition, and is generally used by Experts, Connoisseurs, and those who buy the best of everything. Are you one of these? If so, Robur Special Grade will delight you.

"NO. 1 GRADE"

is not only fine, rich, juicy, pure tea, with a beautiful flavour, but it is also very saving tea to use. Those who buy it regularly find that it pays them, because it takes less leaf to make a pot of good tea than it does of Ceylon or ordinary blended tea.

NO. 2 GRADE"

is rich, full mellow, tea, considerably above ordinary quality, and is a good all-round tea for everyday family use.

NO. 3 GRADE."

This is the cheapest grade. It is not fine, nor is it common; it s just pure wholesome tea, with fair flavour. Thousands of families have used this grade for years, and they dont want anything better.

Should your grocer not have in stock the grade you want, ask him to get it for you. If he is an obliging, up-to-date man, he won't keep you long without it.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY LUCY.)

Veto Bill in Committee.—Coronation Sightseers.—Dry Rot in Big Breweries.

WESTMINSTER, April 7.

The pace at which the Parliament Bill is dragging its way through committee in the House of Commons disposes of the expectation, if indeed anyone cherished it, that the stage would be passed before adjournment for the Easter recess. The Opposition make no secret of their purpose to put off as long as possible the evil day when the bill shall be added to the Statute Book. To that end they have framed nine hundred amendments, which, being printed, many times exceed the bulk of the measure under discussion. The Chairman of Committees occasionally descending into the field, scythe in hand, cuts down an acre or two of the overgrowth. But what is that among so many? There remains ample opportunity of maintaining a continuous flow of speech from the time Mr. Emmott takes the chair till from sheer exhaustion progress is reported.

What the Opposition bitterly complain of is the stern refusal of Ministerialists to take a hand in their little game. It vastly increases the difficulty of the situation when one side has all the talking to itself. In addition to the chronic difficulty of having no argument to advance, they have none to answer. Meanwhile the Ministerialists, though they decline to waste time in debating purely obstructive amendments, are always at hand when the division bell rings, and the Government majority is steadily kept up at or about the round hundred. The Opposition are resolved to force Ministers to bring the closure into systematic use, in order that they may be in a position to say that the bill was carried only by the device of gagging the House of Commons. This aspiration will be gratified shortly after the bill is taken in hand again on resumption of the sitting after a brief recess. Ministers mean to carry the bill through, and when, after a period of forbearance, it is made unmistakably clear that their purpose can be effected only by employment of the closure, the closure will be relentlessly used.

Preparations for viewing the spectacle of the Coronation are already in full course. All the best sites have already been secured by speculators, and pick of front seats is being temptingly offered to the sanguine public. Amongst institutions that will adventitiously profit by the occasion are churches, hospitals, and clubs. Many of these are situated at the best points along the route of the procession. At the Coronation of King Edward, while money was made at most of the temporary stands erected, others lost owing to disposition to stand out for big prices. There is generally a slump on the penultimate day, and wary folk who have not been in a hurry to commit themselves obtain seats at surprisingly low rates. The Reform Club, whose spacious frontage makes possible a fine view of the cortege passing along Pall Mall, has made arrangements whereby members may bring one guest, the price of a couple of tickets being five guineas. This seems sufficient; but as it includes breakfast and luncheon, it is cheap compared with the rates demanded at equally well-placed grandstands, where provision for creature comforts is not thrown in. Anyhow, the list of places, necessarily limited in number, was no sooner opened than it was filled.

Another form of entertainment highly popular is a Channel trip in connection with the naval review, that will hold a foremost place in the events of Coronation week. Most of the big ocean-going steamship companies are making arrangements to be represented at the review. In some cases the directors, combining private hospitality with openings for business, are reserving a certain number of staterooms and dining-room tables for their guests. The rest of the accommodation on board the ship will be at the service of the public, who for a cruise extending from Friday evening to Monday morning will pay fares varying from six guineas to £17 10s, according to the position of their cabin. The Government have chartered three of the biggest P. and O. liners for the use of members of both Houses of Parliament and their wives.

Historic interest pertains to the firm of Barclay and Perkins, the latest of the great brewing concerns which have found it necessary to make drastic reduction of capital. The brewery, which still stands in Southwark, was originally the property of Dr. Johnson's friend, Mr. Thrale. It was in connection with this business the lexicographer wrote the classical phrase about "the potentiality of growing rich beyond the dreams of avarice." £130,000 was the sum Barclay the banker, in conjunction with Mr. Bevan and Mr. Gurney, gave for the property when, 150 years ago, it came upon the market. At that time it was bringing in a revenue of something between £15,000 and £16,000 a year. When, fifteen years ago, the business was launched as a limited liability company under the title of Barclay, Perkins, and Co., it was shown that for the four previous years the average annual profits had exceeded £220,000. The public made a great rush for shares, which were offered at almost niggardly rates, compatible only with a concern whose security was comparable with that of the Bank of England. Debenture stock, paying 3½ per cent., was issued at 105, 4 per cent. £10 preference shares being offered at £11. They severally went up to premiums of £15 and £3. As for the ordinary shares, the original proprietors, to the indignation of would-be investors, took them all for themselves.

In this respect they followed the precedent set by the other great brewery firm of Meux with which the family of the late Lord Tweedmouth was closely connected. The public were permitted to take a share in the business in the form of debentures and preference shares bearing modest interest, the Tweedmouths and their connections retaining the ordinary shares. When the Chief Liberal Whip, Mr. Marjoribanks, inherited the Tweedmouth peerage and property, he found himself in receipt of a comfortable £46,000 a year from the brewery. The break-up of the concern, which happened ten or a dozen years ago, involving the drying-up of this source of revenue, was the first blow that led to the tragedy of his sudden retirement from public life, and the domination of an affliction that happily ended in early death.

The once pleased possessors of the ordinary shares in Barclay Perkins find themselves in the same financial position. By the scheme of reconstruction of the company the ordinary shares, of a nominal value of £100 each—at one time easily saleable at double that sum—will be reduced to £1. This represents a loss exceeding a million sterling. On the whole revaluation of the company's assets discloses a loss of 2½ millions. Of course the Government, with Mr. Lloyd George in the forefront, is at the bottom of this bad business. At least that is the inference hinted at in the circular addressed to preference shareholders, and is made much of in some of the papers. This may serve political purpose. It will not deceive the hapless shareholder. The present Government has been in power only for six years, and Mr. Lloyd George's first Budget is to-day but a sturdy two-year-old. As the figures set forth by the directors show, Barclay's have been in a bad way for at least ten years. With them, as with the other great breweries which have recently crumbled down, the dry rot is directly traceable to the alluring but fatal policy of acquiring what are called tied-houses. Fifteen years ago, when this frenzy was at its height, leases and freeholds of desirable public-houses were bought up by the brewers, who, in competition with each other, paid fabulous prices. Overloaded with these burdens, exceedingly few meeting interest charges on capital invested, successive financial disasters, that have brought privation to many homes, were inevitable.

A MOUNTAIN INDUSTRY.

THE WOLGAN VALLEY.

(BY S. A. C.)

Back from the Lithgow Valley some 15 miles is the deep gorge of the Wolgan, running roughly parallel, about east and west. Approached either by coach over the grand Wolgan Gap from Wallerawang, or by private railway from Newnes Junction, it is not so well-known nor so often visited as it might otherwise be, and will be. Visitors to Katoomba or Blackheath who have two days and a night to spare might enjoy wonderful scenery and gain a revelation of the State's resources at the same time by taking the trip.

From Newnes Junction the private railway of the Commonwealth Oil Corporation, at a fare each way of 5s, carries you a journey of some 33 miles to the rising town of Newnes lying deep within protecting ramparts of cliff, 1500 to 1700 feet high. The curious Shay engine, specially devised for negotiating the steep grades, up to 1 in 25, awaits with its trucks and usually a single passenger car the arrival of the passenger train leaving Sydney daily at 10 a.m. All are of one class on this line, save when on some holiday the cars are reserved for ladies and children, while the men take to the trucks and vans. You have barely started away from the main Western line when a "barracks" belonging to the Commonwealth Oil Corporation calls for a short halt. And then for 20 miles and more the line winds through pleasant but in no way remarkable mountain scenery till one arrives at the Deane depot. From the junction to Deane there is but one stop, at Murray Swamp, and one meets with no human habitation save the homes of the fettlers or the camps of the prop-cutters or sleeper-getters. At Deane resides the official who is in charge of the maintenance, and as the descent to Newnes is steep from this point, a depot exists here, to which the daily train load for the junction is brought up from the valley in smaller subdivisions. At about 22 miles that winding railway, never at any time capable of a straight course, seems to lose its head altogether, and with corkscrew convolutions, popping in and out of rock-hewn tunnels, through deep cuttings, or along the dizzy face of towering cliffs, whirls and zigzags for some eight miles till it brings you down to the level of the river bed, some 1700ft in all. At one place in the giddiest part of the track, a solitary spike left embedded in the perpendicular cliff face, some 30ft above the rails, marks the spot where a young fellow, during the construction of the line, fell headlong, and was instantly killed, the rock having broken away from under him. At other points beautiful gullies are seen, with the fairy furnishings of great tree ferns. And as you wind in and out, glorious views westward and downward are afforded you into the great Wolgan Valley, with its patches of grazing or cultivated land. At last you reach "the triangle," where the four Shay engines have their depot, and, as the line is now level, a light engine takes the place of the Shay, and, in a trice, through huts of bark and canvas, past here and there a substantial church, or store, or hotel, you are landed at the platform, whose only decoration is the little post-office building.

A ramble around in the morning is intensely interesting. When you have learned how to distinguish between Jones's township, Government township, and company's township, you can see how order is striving to assert itself over chaos in the preparation of this narrow valley for civilised life. The company has provided two churches—a Roman Catholic and a Church of England—separated by all the width of Jones's township. Close by the latter is a fine, open, square plateau, an ideal place for the village to disport itself on festal days. The Education Department has chosen a fine site, well up the side of the hill, for a large, well-equipped, and comfortable school, which has just recently taken the place of an impossible temporary building, for the 200 or 250 pupils. The community meantime is mostly a mining one. Not long ago a deadly strike, lasting for seven months, paralysed the mining; but all is working smoothly now, and long may it be so, for the sake both of the miner himself and the industrial progress of the State. Wages are good. In the shale mine men can make up to 25s per day; in the coal mine, up to 15s; and as by a recent regulation the same cavil was made to apply equally to shale and coal, a miner making 25s now may, by the next movement of the kaleidoscope, find himself on the 15s level.

But why this busy community, and what the future of the place? Follow up the little railway line to its terminus, with narrowing valley, you have soon your answer. First, you light upon a coal shaft, with a long row of coke ovens. The shaft, sunk over 200ft, is more commodious than a former one, now used only for communication, inasmuch as it is able to bring up two skips at a time, instead of one. Messrs. Hoskins, of Lithgow Ironworks, and the Great Cobar Company, practically take all the coke that can be produced here. Past the coal shaft one comes upon immense piles of new buildings, with three great chimney stacks, and vast iron tanks almost without number, on the level of the powerhouse in the valley, others at various heights on the steep side of the valley. By gravitation and air-duction an immense saving in working will be effected in the refining process soon to be commenced. Before reaching the powerhouse you pass large stills being installed in brickwork, the cup-shape bottoms weighing each over five tons. Near the powerhouse is a large, lofty building, for the manufacture, as one of the by-products of shale, of sulphate of ammonia. Still higher on the hillside are the retorts, and a large reserve rack for shale. A capacious building for wax-production is completed, and already, to a large extent, fitted with its necessary machinery. The machinery is from all parts. Refrigerators, electric machinery, blowing machines, pumps, condensers, tanks, bear well-known engineers' names—Tangye, of Birmingham, Craig, of Paisley, Whessoe, of Darlington, Siemens, Sterne, and Co., of Glasgow, London, and Paris; sometimes an Australian name appears also. Some of the tanks will contain 500,000 gallons of oil. The condensers contain something like ten miles of pipes. A house is presently a building for the manufacture of paraffin and candles. But the works are so vast and varied that a full description tires, and one marvels how all this splendid machinery, and the housing of it, should come to be in this once wild, still, cliff-battlemented gorge. Still further down the valley is the source of all. Here you come upon shale shaft No. 2. From this shaft there is being got, in immense quantities, shale of extraordinary richness. This goes by the name of the export shale, which is sent, just as it comes from the mine, for treatment in Germany. It yields 140 gallons to the ton. Around the shaft are stacked high walls of retort shale, awaiting treatment. These are expected to go to about 90 gallons. The riches of the Wolgan Valley shale may be gauged in some degree by comparison with that of Scotland, where shale is counted rich if it yields anything up to 40 gallons.

Here then is the sufficient explanation for this vast expenditure of capital in remote Wolgan. In a short time, when all is in working order, vast quantities of kerosene, naphtha, paraffin, candles, soaps, wax, coal, coke, and sulphate of ammonia will be produced here. The supply is estimated to last for 150 years. But for an unforeseen accident, a fall of rock on the hillside, which destroyed some patent blowing machinery, oil would be now in course of production.

To get out of the valley, the best plan for the visitor is to take the coach to Wallerawang. The scenery along the dusty way is awe-inspiring, the beetling heights of the crags overhead making one conscious of the littleness of man. You are required, within about 10 miles of your destination, to get out and walk for a mile and a half up the winding road to the top of the Wolgan Gap. If you miss the moonlight, you have to climb in the darkness. Therefore, if you can arrange your times, do not miss the moonlight; for there are few sights to surpass for wild grandeur the scene from near the top when the valley in its dark wooded length lies before you, and the grim outlines of the rocks that wall it in on both sides stand clear in their definition against the silvery light. Stories are told of bushrangers' tricks and haunts hereabout in the olden days, and this dark view of the secluded valley is a help to the imagination of those more lawless times. A pleasant surprise also awaits you at the top of your climb. In a little hut by the roadway is provided for small consideration a cup of tea or coffee, and a pie, most welcome to the weary traveller, who may sit under shelter by a log fire, and enjoy his fare till the coach starts again. Then you rattle on merrily along a good road to Lidsdale and 'Wang, in time to catch a mixed train at 9, or one of the mail trains in the small hours.

TO THE ANTARCTIC.

WITH CAPTAIN SCOTT'S EXPEDITION.

LOSS OF A MOTOR SLEDGE.

VALUED AT £1000.

(COPYRIGHT.)

[Specially written for the "Sydney Morning Herald" by Griffith Taylor, the Australian scientific member of the Scott Expedition, who is an officer of the Federal Meteorological Department.]

IX.

Off Glacier Tongue,
Ross Isle, January 24.

On Sunday (the 8th) occurred an unfortunate accident, almost the sole mishap since the loss of the ponies in the gale. We swung out the third motor-car, having freed it from its case while it was inboard. It was landed on the sea ice safely, and run smartly away to a firmer surface, 50 yards away. I happened to be leaving the ship with a one-man sledge load, bound for the hut. Captain Scott and Lieutenant Campbell were testing the ice, and warned me to be especially careful of certain wet patches near them. I got through to the shore without incident, but this, unhappily, was not the case with the motor sledge, which started off immediately afterwards. I was not present, but heard that it was pulled across on to apparently firm ice near the doubtful portion which had just been crossed safely. Here one of the men went through, but was hauled out safely. He declared he felt himself being pulled under the floe by the strong tidal current. Almost the next moment one corner of the motor sledge sank, and then gradually the end, and finally the whole of the machine crashed through the ice; and despite the utmost efforts of the hauling party it sank in a hundred fathoms. Thus was lost nearly a thousand pounds' worth of machinery, and since it is made largely of aluminium, which corrodes extremely rapidly, it would not be worth salvage, even if it were possible—now the ice is out—to grapple it at that depth.

TROUBLES OF PONY SLEDGING.

The ship was moved to a fresh berth, some 500 yards nearer the hut, and also nearer the slopes of Erebus. Henceforth almost all the transport was effected by pony teams. There were many incidents at first, for the ponies did not understand the icy surface, and were by no means too subdued by their long voyage to object to most of the duties demanded of them. "Hackenschmidt" is still obdurate, I believe, but the others have calmed down, and done their four trips a day as long as it was necessary. One soon gets to know their characteristics. Fiery "Blucher" trots through all the work, whether he is pulling an empty sledge or half a ton through a snowdrift. In fact, the driver is usually dragged alongside over the 10 miles involved. With a slippery surface, and only a single rope halter, it will readily be understood that four legs can defeat two if the whim seizes him. One gentleman broke away three times, just as I had lugged him the weary mile to the ship, and galloped back unencumbered. But the least-envied duty in the expedition is a morning in the company of "Weary Willie." With drooping lip and stubborn eye, he improves on a crawl only when his driver precedes him with the halter over his shoulder, and practically drags both pony and sledge. In spite of a heavy load of patent fuel, he used to start back two steps to the minute quicker, thinking he was returning to the pony lines; but this soon degenerated to a crawl, and his objections to returning for another load necessitated special help at the turning-point. There was another pony, whom I only discovered on the last day, who was a happy mean between Blucher and Weary. He was anonymous, but deserved a baronetcy. The last loads consisted of patent fuel (in foot cubes) and compressed fodder, while ballast, in the form of 30 tons of kenyte, was loaded from a snow-slide, and taken back to the Terra Nova.

THE ICE GROTTOS.

The track to the Observatory hill passes along a minature glacier, 15 feet high on the nearer side. In this it was decided to cut an "ice-house" for the mutton and for seals and penguins. Next door the physicists cut out another grotto for magnetic work. Each took about a week to complete.

A "drive" was made into the ice about 6ft high and 4ft wide. At a convenient distance this was widened out to 15ft, and we should probably have cut out a prosaic rectangular chamber but that we found that the floor of almost impenetrable frozen kenyte gravel sloped up very steeply. Moreover, the sun melted the "glacier" at a great rate, so that we had to leave a fairly thick roof. These restrictions produced a very pretty style of architecture—a sort of double crypt, with a central partition, and a gentle sweeping, curved roof, like an opened cockle shell lying with the convex sides uppermost. The sunlight filtered through the roof and entrance wall, making the ice look like alabaster.

It was hard work chipping the ice. We were helped by a few layers of dust, mixed with skua feathers—representing very ancient surfaces—along which the ice broke readily. One half of the grotto was covered with a rough flooring, and on this were deposited a hundred carcases of sheep given by the New Zealand farmers. In the other half a hundred penguins occupy one corner, and later we shall add seal meat.

A little nearer the hut the physicists excavated an L-shaped grotto, of severely rectangular cross-section, and lacking those picturesque sweeps in the roof which were necessary in the other cave. It penetrates the "glacier" for about 23ft, and is entered by an aperture some 3ft high. One feels very like a rabbit entering its burrow, but this constriction is necessary to ensure equable temperature. A mild blizzard was blowing while we were cutting it out, though in the calm—not to say stuffy—atmosphere of the grotto a temperature of 26deg. below freezing had little effect on one's comfort. To be sure, files and saws and other iron tools developed an octopus-like surface, for they stuck to one's fingers as if smeared with gum. The wall struts for the lining were cemented simply and effectively by a mush of ice and water, which solidified immediately. Two large kenyte boulders formed jagged obstructions in the floor. When foundations for the instrument standards were being made it was found that under the layer of gravel forming the floor was another layer of ice. It is quite possible that our hut may be built on gravel over a thick ice sheet. This will be tested by a shaft in the winter leisure.

On the highest portion of Cape Evans is hoisted the Union Jack. Near by is the meteorological screen, and two anemometers are merrily whirling around. We have been laying telephone wires across the space between the hills and the hut to connect the instruments there to the meteorological "laboratory" ("corner" would be a better term) in the hut.

CROSSING THE BARNE GLACIER.

On Sunday, the 15th, work was suspended for a day, for everything was progressing well. Many of the men took ski on to the slopes of Erebus, behind the hut, and had a pleasant time, diversified by many tumbles, in consequence. To the north of these slopes extended the hitherto untraversed Barne glacier, which has blocked all communication with Cape Royds during the summer. Its seaward face is a high cliff of ice, strongly crevassed, and reaching from Cape Evans to Cape Barne. Wright and myself received permission to go on the glacier, and, providing ourselves with an alpine rope, ice-axes, food, and wind-proof clothing, we set off up the rocky slopes behind the hut. We soon reached an irregular snow surface deeply pitted where boulders had sunk, with little tunnels of water murmuring below the ice-crusts. As the glacier became more apparent we roped up, and marched to the north, gradually ascending the slope of the glacier. Our objective at this time was the rock ridge behind Cape Barne, about two and a half miles away. The glacier came down from Erebus in undulations, resembling gigantic rounded steps. It seemed probable to us that the best surface would occur where the ice was in compression rather than in tension. Here in the hollows the crevasses would tend to close up, and we found them quite readily crossed. In the icy surface were broad ribbons of snow, slightly depressed below the surface, and curving grandly round the undulations of Erebus. These looked solid enough, but an ice-axe hardly met with any resistance in this snow, and, on sweeping it away, one could see a chasm extending indefinitely down. Higher up the slope the snow formed bridges, but here in narrower crevasses, it was only of value in veiling the depth. However, it was a mere question of jumping; the leader gathering in the rope, and taking a good leap, while the follower drove his ice-pick into the surface, and held on firmly. If there had been any great danger involved, two men would, of course, have been insufficient, but we progressed in this fashion for a mile, then crossed another mile of softish snow without crevasses, and reached the Barne ridge, with rocks running from the coast half-way up to the crater of Erebus. Here, to our surprise, we saw that nothing but kenyte hummocks and debris lay between us and Cape Royds. It would not have been human to have resisted this opportunity of visiting the headquarters of the 1907 expedition. After resting a little among the huge mounds of kenyte boulders—actually bearing small tufts of red and green lichens—we tramped quickly across alternating patches of rock and snow—past small ice-covered lakes, and soon reached Back-Door Bay. Here quite a large stream—for Antarctica—was falling over an ice-cliff, and we reached the first sign of another settlement. This was a bamboo-pole planted in a cairn. Then we scrambled over slopes of kenyte gravel, and skirted the rotten ice which filled the outer part of Back-Door Bay. The narrow gulf at the north-east end of the bay still contained firm ice, and we crossed this without attracting any notice from a colony of twenty sleepy seals, and so reached Cape Royds. Here signs of occupation were very evident, though the hut was some distance away on the further (northern) slope of the hill. A sledge, with cases of tinned meat, a ladder, and the tubes of the hand-boring plant, had been left close to the water of Back-Door Bay. We carried off a tin of beef in case the hut contained nothing more attractive. Following some sledge-tracks, we topped a rise, and were right on the hut.

THE ROOFS OF NEW YORK.

(BY MARY H. KROUT.)

The municipal law forbids the use of bituminous coal anywhere within the corporate limits of New York. Anthracite—"hard coal," which is clean and entirely smokeless, only is used. This has spared the people of that fortunate place the perpetual rain of soot and the overhanging cloud which disfigure Chicago and other western cities. From any elevated position one looks down upon acres of clean roofs and smokeless chimneys, above which blends a sky in fair weather as deeply blue as that of Italy.

The chimney-sweep is a person unknown, his services never being required. All this gives to the masses of the people clean, airy spaces, far above the dusty streets, where paper and litter blow about, attesting the firm and stubborn supremacy of Tammany.

In the pleasant spring days, and in the breathless heat of the torrid summer, the roof is the refuge where one finds quiet and fresh air, the pure breezes that sweep landward from the wide, cool stretches of the Atlantic.

Of course, this does not apply to the palaces of millionaires that line the avenues and the riverside drive. These fortunate folk, supplied as are their residences with every invention that may control the temperature summer and winter, have no need to resort to their roofs for a breathing spell. They betake themselves to Newport, or Switzerland, or Norway.

To the great multitude, however, the roofs are an unqualified blessing. In the newest buildings, the modern apartment houses, and the tenements of those a little lower in the social scale, the expanse is protected on every side by a coping three or four feet in height. In all these houses hot and cold water is laid on, kitchens are provided with gas ranges, and with stationary wash-tubs, the covers of which form a convenient table. With these conveniences the family laundering is done at home, and on Monday, in the quarters where dwell people of moderate means, the roofs are white with fluttering garments, hung there to dry and bleach in the sun. High above the streets the family wash escapes the dust, and the snow-white linen is dazzling to one accustomed to the mauve-coloured garments sent home from a London laundry.

As the days begin to lengthen toward midsummer, imprisoned in shop or office from morning until evening, the clerk has a little leisure after dinner, and betakes himself to the roof, where he practises golf, knocking the balls about, and improving himself in certain strokes where he knows he is deficient. Or the tennis-net may be stretched on an improvised frame between the chimneys, and here young women enjoy a brisk game after the day's work. From other roofs boys fly gay, many-coloured kites—scores of which may be counted tugging at their strings when the wind favours. Another roof may have been converted into a modest gymnasium, and here, from any point of vantage may be seen vigorous young fellows amusing themselves "punching the bag," swinging Indian clubs, or exercising on the turning bar.

The love of sport has grown steadily—perhaps, even a little immoderately—and the hollow-chested, sallow American will soon be an extinct type, and in New York these improvised, mid-air schools of athletics are helping to bring about the salutary change.

But New York roofs have also their hospitable uses, and since gardens are limited or unknown, the roofs are a substitute, and not an inadequate one. As it grows cool, rugs are spread down, tea tables set forth, and camp chairs are provided for guests who assist at the alfresco entertainment. Chatting and drinking tea, they watch the brilliant sunset over the Palisades and the Jersey hills. The twilight creeps across the bay, and distant sails, far up the Hudson, are blotted out. The city—a narrow wedge—crowded compactly upon its rocky island, suddenly flashes and glows with electric light, in swiftly moving trams, from a million windows; and, with a prodigality not even Paris can approach, circles, crescents, coronets, colossal shields, and stars blaze at the entrance of the theatres. These are rivalled by flamboyant advertisements, all written in electricity, of brands of cigars, patent medicines, and rival newspapers.

When the "legitimate" theatres close their doors for the season, the "professional" roof garden is ready with its attraction. Under green arcades of lofty palms, in the midst of a wilderness of vines and ferns growing in huge pots, tables are arranged, sheltered by awnings. Here ices and the cooling drinks which make life endurable in the summer are served by waiters, who speak every known European tongue. Sometimes opera bouffe is given with a good ballet; or the entertainment may be musical, vocal, or instrumental—or a clever vaudeville performance. Whatever it is, the New York audience, with an iced drink, a cigarette, and a cool spot far above the super-heated streets, is benignly tolerant of even mediocrity.

One well-known artist—a clever illustrator—built a charming studio upon the roof of the building where she had lived for many years. It was well-heated in winter, cool in summer, tastefully furnished, with adjustable blinds, by which the light could be properly tempered. She drew and painted in this airy studio, and gathered about her a literary and artistic coterie, who seldom declined her invitations.

In the crowded tenement quarters, the roof is a godsend to the poor through the breathless nights of July, August, and September. Crowded together, like rabbits in a warren, a whole family in dark, ill-smelling rooms,—a whole family living in one small den,—when the sun goes down, they flock to the roofs—men, women, and children, where they stretch themselves out, and sleep in some comfort until daybreak. The more fortunate boast a mattress and coverlid; others simply lie down upon the tiles, glad to be in the open air, and thankful for an occasional sea-breeze.

In the tenements still lower in the scale, old rookeries that should have been pulled down long ago, the copings are insecure, or insufficient; and it is no uncommon occurrence for a restless sleeper to roll over the edge, and be dashed to death on the pavement below.

The mortality among children is frightful during the heated term, and many a flickering life is snuffed out unheeded by the sodden sleepers, and the little emaciated body is carried to the stifling lodging below by the mother, who has kept silent watch over the ebbing life as the night passed.

This has probably suggested to charitable people the utilisation of the roofs for open-air hospitals. Many such have been established, with proper protection from the weather, and furnished with all the appliances required in illness or accident, care being taken, of course, to isolate all cases of contagion. Trained nurses are given charge, and excellent medical men are in attendance, and temporary baths and diet kitchens are equipped near at hand. Play-grounds supplementing those that have been opened on terra firma, have also been established on the roofs in many places, these, of course, being made perfectly safe by copings. Vines have been trained over arbors; tall shrubs, and even young trees, provide shade; and swings and merry-go-rounds and other devices are provided for the children's amusement, and watchful and competent attendants are always on duty. No serious accident has ever occurred, and the experiment has been eminently successful.

THROAT HABITS.

A cough, a hack in clearing the throat, may become habits. They begin with a cold and keep coming automatically after the cold has finished. A slight exercise of the will and the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will soon rid you of this constant annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a prompt specific action on the throat or air passages.—Advt.

THE CHURCHES.

The Archbishop of Sydney (Dr. Wright) will to-morrow visit Jamberoo and Shellharbour.

Archdeacon Simpson, of Cootamundra, writes:—"Your reference to the genuine love for the music of the sanctuary, by the late Bishop Camidge, recalls a service, probably unique in character. At the 'Service of Farewell,' held in York Minster, on October 19, 1887, after his consecration as Bishop of Bathurst, the music included compositions from five generations of the Camidge family, relatives of the Bishop. Reference to the 'Musical Times,' November 1887, will show that the Processional Hymn was sung to a tune adapted from a short anthem by John Camidge, organist of York Minster, 1756-1803. The psalms and canticles were sung to chants composed by Matthew Camidge, the son of the latter. The anthem 'Sing Unto the Lord' was by Dr. Camidge, son of Matthew Camidge. The Kyrie, Creed, Sanctus, and Gloria were by John Camidge, grandson of Dr. Camidge; and during the offertory was sung 'Be Merciful after Thy Power,' by Thomas S. Camidge, son of Dr. Camidge, and his deputy at the Minster, and father of J. Camidge."

Canon Alldis, rector of St. John's, Molong, says that of all the clergymen in the Bathurst Diocese, when the late Bishop Camidge was inducted, over 23 years, only five remain, including Archdeacon Oaks, Archdeacon Nield, Archdeacon Howell, the Dean (Dr. Marriott), and Canon Alldis.

Canon Martin, rector of St. Clement's Church of England, Marrickville, has been granted six months' leave of absence to enable him to visit England, and he was accorded a farewell social by his parishoners in the local parish hall on Wednesday evening. Addresses were delivered by Alderman Thornley (Mayor of Marrickville), Mr. R. W. W. M'Coy, and others. Mr. W. H. Wicks, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. Martin with an illuminated address bound in Morocco, and a purse of 50 guineas. During the absence of Mr. Martin the Revs. J. Maxwell and Warren (curates), assisted by various clergymen, will undertake the duties.

Cardinal Moran will, to-morrow afternoon visit the hospital of the Nursing Sisters of the Little Company of Mary at Lewisham, and will bless the foundation stone of the new wing to be added to the hospital.

The Roman Catholic Coadjutor Archbishop of Sydney (Dr. Kelly) is much better, and will probably be able to leave St. Vincent's Hospital in a short time.

Monsignor O'Haran is still a patient at St. Vincent's Private Hospital. His condition has greatly improved.

A conference of Roman Catholic clergy of the archdiocese will be held in St. Mary's Chapter Hall during the coming week.

Rev. Father Donovan, P.P., of Gundagai, who was an inmate for some time at the private hospital, Lewisham, is enjoying a holiday at Roma (Q.).

Father Rogers, of Branxton, arrived in Sydney on Thursday by the R.M.S. Ophir. He was compelled by the rigours of the climate to leave Ireland rather sooner than he had intended.

"The Pharisees were not all hypocrites." So remarked Rev. Principal Thatcher, preaching in the Pitt-street Congregational Church, on "The New Birth," last Sunday. He referred to "a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews," who had come to Christ by night in search of information. Among the Pharisees were some of the most intellectual and strenuous men of the day, who were anxious for truth and light. As a class they thought that salvation was reserved for themselves, and had, indeed, made it difficult for any but themselves to keep the law.

The commission appointed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Australia last September, in connection with a proposal to unite the Churches of Victoria and Tasmania, met at the Assembly Hall, Collins-street, Melbourne last week. Professor Harper was deputed to visit the Assembly of the Tasmanian Church, and place before it a tentative scheme to accomplish the objects in view.

The foundation-stone of the new Presbyterian Church at Scone was laid on 4th instant by the Rev. John Ferguson, of St. Stephen's.

The Presbyterian congregation at Broken Hill is taking steps to call a minister in room of the Rev. J. Peterson, M.A., who was recently translated to Chalmer's Church, Sydney.

Rev. R. Bruce Taylor, M.A., Presbyterian minister at St. John's Wood has intimated his decision to accept a call from St. Paul's Church, Montreal. Mr. Taylor has been colleague-minister with Dr. Munro Gibson for the last four years, and has won a high place in the esteem of his brethren. The stipend at St. Paul's is to be £1500 a year.

During the week a meeting was held in the conference hall of the Central Methodist Mission to hear addresses by Rev. T. E. Slater (London Missionary Society) and Rev. Joseph Passmore (secretary of the Christian Literature Society for India). Both gentlemen referred to the value and need of Christian literature in India. If greater efforts, they said, were made to Christianise India, the work of the missionaries in the South Sea Islands would reap untold benefits. Rev. B. Danks (Methodist Missionary Society) regretted that the attendance at the meeting was not greater, but expressed the hope that the remarks of both missionaries would bear fruit, and that the work of helping forward the cause would be made a matter of concern by every church.

A new Methodist church was opened last Saturday at Guildford by Rev. Dr. Bromilow, president of the conference. The church is in the Granville circuit, and the superintendent minister (Rev. W. Pearson) presided at the function. After the official opening the president preached on church life. The Revs. Henry Allen, James Green, and P. A. Westbrook took part in the service. The church is a well-designed weatherboard building. Two hundred and fifty worshippers crowded into it for the dedication service, and there was a large and efficient choir. The opening ceremony was followed by a tea-meeting in the old church, which now becomes the school-hall.

Mr. F. Collins, of Victoria, has taken up the work of evangelist with the Church of Christ at Auburn.

Mr. Thos. Hagger, the State evangelist of the Churches of Christ, concludes a tent mission at Rookwood to-morrow, after which he will go to the Richmond River.

Mr. W. D. More has commenced work as evangelist with the Churches of Christ in Newcastle.

A special Jewish service was held at Rookwood on Sunday afternoon last, when 13 tombstones were consecrated by the Revs. M. Einfeld and A. D. Wolinski.

Commissioner and Mrs. Hay, of the Salvation Army, are touring South Australia.

The Evangelical Council of New South Wales met at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Tuesday last. The Lord's Day Observance Committee presented their report, which was fully discussed, and it was resolved that arrangements be made for a deputation to wait upon the Acting Premier to protest against the opening of shops for the purpose of trade on the Lord's Day, and also against the holding of picture entertainments on the Lord's Day.

The Rev. Jas. Buchan, M.A., of the Congregational Church, Pyrmont, has recovered sufficiently from his recent accident to resume full ministerial duty.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Australian squadron, Vice-Admiral King-Hall, on Friday visited the London Missionary Society's steam yacht, John Williams, lying at Parbury's wharf, Dawes Point, and was received by Captain Steele, the master, the Rev. R. A. Thompson (president of the L.M.S. auxiliary), the Rev. Mr. Morley (general secretary of the L.M.S.), the Rev. J. B. Clarke (missionary from New Guinea), and Mr. Thomas Pratt (agent for the society). An inspection of the ship was made, also of the native crew and teachers. His Excellency addressed a few remarks to the gathering, encouraging all to go on with the good work they were engaged upon.

WHY THE STOMACH FAILS.

EARLY EXPERIMENTS AND THEIR VALUE TO SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLES.

Beaumont was an army surgeon located at an obscure military post in Michigan, and was called upon to treat a gun-shot wound of the stomach in a Canadian voyageur—Alexis St. Martin. When the wound healed a permanent opening was left by means of which food was placed in the stomach and gastric juice taken from it.

Beaumont made scientific experiments, and wrote a book, which to-day is recognised among the classics of physiology.

Beaumont showed the way for other scientists, so that to-day medical men know what the stomach does with food and what food does to the stomach.

They know also that it is the gastric juices which play the most important part in the work of digestion. When the gastric juices fail then the stomach is powerless.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, thanks to the poor army surgeon and Alexis St. Martin, have provided a means of digesting food, replenishing the exhausted juices, soothing the nerves, and correcting dyspepsia conditions of the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are natural fruit and vegetable essences reduced in concentrated form, and by tremendous power compressed into a tablet. These wonderful little digestors are known all over the world, and physicians to the number of 40,000 use them.

Go to your chemist and buy a box to-day, price 1/3 and 2/6 a box, or send us your name and address, and we will send you a trial package by post, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 5 and 7 Barrack-street, Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The Moderator, Rev. Robert Kay, M.A., presided over the deliberations of the Presbyterian General Assembly at St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, yesterday morning.

COOERWULL ACADEMY.

The report of Cooerwull Academy showed that the high standard of work had been continued. The school dux was H. E. Kirkland. The report was adopted.

LADIES' COLLEGE.

Dr. Marden presented the report of the Ladies' College, which again achieved a record for attendance of students. The teaching staff included ten University graduates, and there was necessity for again extending the grounds. The report was adopted, and the council of the college empowered to purchase land to extend the grounds.

SCOTS COLLEGE.

Rev. Dr. Aspinall submitted the report of Scots College, in which the council appealed to the ministers and elders, especially in the country, to assist in building up a metropolitan school which would maintain the best traditions of the Church. The report was adopted.

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE.

Principal Harper, D.D., presented the report of St. Andrew's College Council. This showed that 65 students were in residence, and the college was full. All the theological bursaries had been awarded this year. Of the 15 students in the Theological Hall six were graduates and seven were residing in the college. Besides these there were 18 others studying in the University, five in their third year arts, one in his second year, while two or three were in their second year. That is, they had in the hall and University 11 who had graduated or would graduate next year, two who would graduate the year after, and three or four who purposed graduating and were in their first year. The creditable record was greatly the result of the expenditure of money in the hands of the council, by means of which youths were sent to Cooerwull Academy and educated to matriculation standard. Council's funds for this purpose were exhausted, but they felt that they had shown the way to secure the proper education of candidates. They must now leave it to the Church to follow it up. For the two bursaries which the council had undertaken to give annually to Presbyterian ministers' sons not studying for the ministry, there was only one applicant this year. The second bursary, however, was given to a Methodist minister's son who was taking the medicine course. For the second time the Rhodes Scholarship had fallen to a St. Andrew's man in the person of Mr. H. K. Denham, who had finished his second year in medicine at the college and sailed for Europe. This made the sixth Rhodes scholarship which St. Andrew's had gained. But an even more satisfactory thing was that a number of St. Andrew's men had been appointed to positions which vouched for their practical capacity. Mr. R. Holloway had been nominated to the expedition to observe the eclipse of the sun at Tonga. Mr. A. L. Campbell, M.A., had been appointed locum tenens to Professor Moors while he was at Tonga, while Mr. P. Norman and Mr. A. Burn had been appointed demonstrators in the engineering school. Mr. Byth, with the highest honours in classics and the University medal, had been appointed lecturer in classics at Brisbane. Lastly, Mr. L. J. Shortland, who entered the hall this year graduated B.A., with first-class honours in philosophy, and Mr. Bardon, also a theological student, passed his second year with distinction in philosophy. The report was adopted.

FEDERATION OF CHURCHES.

Professor Clouston, D.D., submitted the report of the committee on the federation of the churches which included a proposed basis of doctrine and scheme of polity. He said that this question came to the Assembly from the General Assembly of Australia. The Assembly was bound at the present time to enter into consideration of the matter. The basis of doctrine and scheme of polity had been approved generally by the Assembly of Australia. The schemes were based upon compromise, and the views of the leaders of the Methodist and Congregational churches had been before the committee. On some points they had given way, and on others the Presbyterian Church had conceded something. In the matter of compromise he was afraid the Presbyterian Church had got the most, as the other bodies had given way the most.

The Assembly went into private committee to discuss the question.

PORT ADMINISTRATION.

NOT ENOUGH WHARFAGE.

"NO BETTER THAN IN THE OLD DAYS."

Further evidence was taken by the Royal Commission appointed by the South Australian Government, to inquire into the administration of Sydney Harbour, with a view to improving the wharfage accommodation at Adelaide, by placing them under Government control. Mr. J. Verran, Premier of South Australia, presided.

Mr. R. C. Reed (Messrs. Gibbs, Bright, and Co.), stated that prior to the inauguration of the Harbour Trust his firm occupied six wharfage berths by ownership and lease tenure. When the Trust first took over control practically the same charges were made as when the wharfs were under private ownership. Subsequently these charges, which were formerly 1s 3d per ton on inward goods, and 10d on outward goods, were altered to a single charge of 2s 6d on inward goods—no fees being charged on outward cargo. It would, in his opinion, be disastrous to place fees on exported cargo. So far as wharfage accommodation was concerned, it was, perhaps, better than it would have been under private ownership. There was, of course, ample room for improvement. It would be better if a trust were carried on under the same principle as the Mersey Dock and Harbour Trust. The accommodation at the port of Sydney was inadequate; but this was not due to any fault of the Harbour Trust, as they had to take over the old wharfs. The Trust had done a lot to improve the wharfs and increase the facilities of the port, much more than would have been accomplished under private enterprise. Speaking from a general point of view, the Trust was being carried on very well. There was, however, a good deal of congestion through insufficiency of wharfage accommodation. There were not enough facilities for the proper discharge of cargo, and much of the wharfage machinery was antiquated.

Mr. J. Verran, M.L.A.: Do you think it would be an advantage if the commercial community had representation on the board?—Yes; I think the trust would be better constituted if it were composed of representatives from the City Council, shipping interests, merchants, Chamber of Commerce, and the Government. The board, in my opinion, should comprise seven members. I think a trust could be best managed and administered by business men.

Mr. W. J. C. Cole, M.L.A.: Do you favour privately-owned wharfs?—No, certainly not. I would, of course, rather have a wharf of my own construction, but I am quite sure that the better system is to have some form of trust.

Mr. S. Cole, secretary of the Master Carriers' Association, said that under existing conditions the carriers were handicapped in regard to the handling of cargo. In the first place, a great increase had taken place in trade, especially during the last two years, and there were not the necessary facilities to handle this greatly augmented trade. The steamers carrying 99 per cent. of the oversea trade required to unload their cargo and reload within a limited space of time. Prior to the steamer coming alongside the wharf there was generally a large accumulation of cargo waiting to be shipped. This meant congestion on the wharf as soon as the inward cargo began to be unloaded. The system of sorting and packing the goods was somewhat antiquated, and was practically the same as existed 30 years ago. It would, however, be unfair to put the blame entirely on the trust. But, still, he thought that any trust undertaking the control of a port should be made responsible for the work and conduct of the wharfs.

The Chairman: The trust is spending money now at the rate of £1000 a day in order to provide better facilities.

Mr. Cole: Many of our wharfs are in the same condition to-day as they were 25 years ago. In some respects we had just as good facilities in the old days.

The Chairman: Do you think that conditions are better under the trust than under private enterprise?—Private enterprise with regard to the wharfs would not be satisfactory.

Mr. W. T. Appleton, a Victorian shipowner and chairman of the Melbourne Harbour Trust, said that the trust was worked in the interests of the general public. It certainly had done much admirable work for the port of Melbourne.

The Commission adjourned till this morning.

COAL VEND CASE.

LIVELY DAY IN COURT.

A SHARP CROSS-EXAMINATION.

"STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER."

The prosecution in connection with the Coal Vend—20th day—was continued before Mr. Justice Isaacs in the High Court yesterday.

Oswald Lane, of Lane and Dawson, Sydney, formerly connected with Scott Fell and Co., Ltd., was further cross-examined by Mr. Campbell, K.C. (for J. and A. Brown).

Mr. Campbell asked witness if he did not have trouble with the United States Government over the Manila contract.

Witness proceeded to tell of his difficulties in getting Newcastle coal.

Mr. Campbell: Why are you so keenly anxious to advocate the case of the Crown by making a lot of explanations you are not asked for?

Witness: Because I consider I have been crushed by the Vend and the steamship combine. Now you have it.

You admit you came here in a spirit of hostility and animus against the defendants?—I came here to put up a fair and open fight straight from the shoulder.

You have got your knife into the defendants?—I have not got my knife into the defendants. But I know I cannot get coal from them to-day.

Is it not a fact that on November 30, 1906, your total liabilities exceeded the total assets by £30,000? Was it not found in the Bankruptcy Court?—I don't think it was correct.

Was not that the judgment of the Court?—If so, it was not correct.

Mr. Wise, K.C. (for the Crown), objected because there had never been a judgment of the Court against the witness himself.

Mr. Campbell said that he would put the judgment in if necessary.

Mr. Shand, K.C. (for the Crown), asked was what the Bankruptcy Court thought or did not think relevant to the matter at issue.

His Honor said that he could not shut the evidence out simply because at that particular moment he could not see the relevancy of it. It might turn out to be relevant later.

Mr. Campbell: We will suggest that it is relevant both on the statements of counsel and the witnesses of the Crown.

His Honor said that so far as the witness in the box was concerned, he thought Mr. Campbell had invited his explanations. He did not wish to make any statement at that stage, but there seemed to be a good deal of feeling on both sides. Either might be justifiable or not. He did not know.

The cross-examination about the Manila contract was resumed, and witness, again, proceeded to talk about his inability to get Newcastle coal.

Mr. Campbell: I must ask you to refrain from bringing in these "tags." They are becoming nauseating.

His Honor (to witness): Just answer the question. You were asked whether you had trouble with the United States Government over the Manila contract.

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: You were not doing that business through your ordinary bank; the Bank of New South Wales?—I believe we were.

Think again?—Some of it, I think, went through the London Bank.

Was not the whole of the United States contract done through the London Bank of Australia?—I cannot say definitely.

Weren't the transactions very considerable, £30,000 or £40,000?—Yes. But we were turning over a quarter of a million. I cannot at present explain any particular draft.

I suppose it is hopeless to ask you why you didn't do the business through your own bank?—A merchant is at liberty to go to any bank he likes, and discount his documents.

That is your reason?—Yes, and a sound one.

In 1908 your difficulties with the United States Government had become acute?—They had.

And there were large retentions from the purchase money for alleged breaches of contract?—Yes.

There were refusals to pay over?—Yes; owing to the quality of the coal.

These large retentions had considerably embarrassed you financially at that time in 1908?—I would not say considerably. It was very inconvenient.

Then the suspension of Lenders and Co. put the finishing touch on your embarrassment?—It assisted to a very great extent.

Was it not a determining factor in your 1908 experiences?—No.

There were unpaid acceptances of nearly £40,000 when Lenders and Co. suspended?—Considerable amounts.

Owing to their suspension, Scott Fell and Co., became liable for the payment of these drafts?—Yes.

Didn't they amount to nearly £40,000?—I cannot say. It was a considerable amount.

What was the total amount of the admitted liability of Scott Fell and Co., Ltd., in liquidation?—I don't know the exact amount.

It was over £100,000, was it not?—Roughly £100,000.

Was it not £125,000?—I don't know.

Didn't you admit that your overdraft was over £100,000?—Yes.

Are you quite serious when you say you don't know whether it was £100,000 or £125,000?—I am.

Replying to Mr. Mitchell, K.C. (for the steamship owners), witness stated that the intermediary in the sale for £9000 of Scott Fell and Co's. contract to Howard Smith and Co. was paid at least £1500.

While the cross-examination was in progress Mr. Wise took exception to a point raised by Mr. Lamb, K.C. (for colliery proprietors). His Honor directed both counsel to resume their seats.

His Honor: In this thing, as far as I am concerned, and, I think, I may say the same for both sides, we want all our coolness and presence of mind. It is no use getting heated over it.

Mr. Lamb: I am not heated, your Honor.

His Honor: Well, breezy. We must try and keep our heads as cool as possible.

Mr. Mitchell resumed his cross-examination.

With things going from bad to worse, you and Scott Fell were drawing £800 a year?—Yes.

And your travelling expenses?—Yes.

Referring to the sale of the Melbourne business and a contract associated with it for £6000, Mr. Mitchell asked: "Can you explain why an asset of some value belonging to the company did not appear in the balance-sheet?"

Witness: I was not asked by the secretary or the auditor.

Did you deliberately keep it back?—No. It was an oversight.

Did the liquidator or the creditors get the benefit of it?—It was sacrificed.

Who got the result of the sacrifice; you and Scott Fell?—No.

His Honor: It died with the liquidation, didn't it? I don't think the witness understands very much about it.

What other assets were not put in the balance-sheet?—A contract we had with the South Clifton Company for 100,000 tons for ten years.

What did you value this other contract at?—£70,000.

Did the creditors get the benefit of that?—Unfortunately, no.

Did you transfer it to the liquidator?—It was in his possession. He tried very hard to get it going; but there was not sufficient cash to keep it going. If he had kept it going he could have paid the creditors 15s in the £.

There was a profit of nearly £6000 on a Victorian railway contract in January, 1908. Why does that not appear on the balance-sheet.—I can't clear it up.

His Honor: I am puzzling myself as to what is aimed at.

Witness: If the inference is that I put it in my pocket——

Mr. Mitchell: The inference is that it went into somebody's pocket.

Witness: The only man who can explain that balance-sheet is the man who drew it up.

Mr. Mitchell: Is he in Sydney?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Mitchell: Well, put him in the box.

Witness said that he would like the matter cleared up, and added that during the whole career of the company he never saw the books more than half a dozen times.

Mr. Mitchell: Then won't you now admit that Scott Fell was the real business manager of the company, and the man that had the real, dominant, masterful, business mind?—I know as much about the shipping business as Mr. Scott Fell or anyone else in Sydney, with all due respect to Mr. Scott Fell, who was my tutor and practically taught me the business.

Mr. Mitchell said that he thought that witness should be given an opportunity of clearing the matter up if he wanted to.

His Honor said that he would not trouble him.

C. S. Hewitt (secretary of the Chillagoe Copper Company, Cairns) was called by Mr. Mitchell.

Witness detailed contracts with the Adelaide S.S. Company. About 3200 tons per year were supplied. The price quoted without back freights, from 1906 to 1909, was 17s per ton.

Mr. Mitchell: It appears from the contracts put in that the price you were charged in 1903-4 was 23s, in 1905 20s per ton and that when the wicked vend was formed in 1906 it came down to 17s?—I don't know when the vend was formed, but I do know we paid 17s in 1906.

In each of these contracts provision was made for carriage to the company's wharf, and for back freights?—Yes.

Oswald Lane was further cross-examined by Mr. Mitchell, and the Court adjourned till Monday.

Correct solutions not above mentioned have reached us too late to score in tourney. They will, however, be acknowledged in our next issue.

"HERALD" SEVENTEENTH TOURNEY.

The "Sydney Morning Herald" seventeenth international problem tourney.—Conditions: (1) Competitors may send in as many original problems in diagram, accompanied by full solutions, as they please. "White to play and mate in two moves." (2) Each problem to have a nom-de-guerre or motto. The composer's name and address to be enclosed in a separate sealed envelope, with the like motto. Seals will not be broken until the awards are made. (3) Each problem to have but one author, not to have competed in any other tourney, or have been published before. (4) Problems to be addressed "The Editor the 'Sydney Morning Herald,' Sydney, Australia," and reach this office by December 1 next. Prizes: 5 guineas, 2 guineas, and 1 guinea. Judge: Mr. F. R. Smith. Further competing position to hand: Pink Stone (16).

NOTES.

City of London C.C. Championship Tourney.—Mr. W. Ward wins for the sixth time.

Leonhardt v Nienzowitch.—A match of five games at Hamburg was won by the former by 4-0 and one drawn.

Berlin C.C. Championship Tourney.—(1) E. Cohn 8, (2) Edward Lasker 6, (3) Moll 5½.

San Remo Tourney.—The results were: (1) Fahrni 7½, (2) Lowtzky 7, (3) Forgacs 6½, (4) Kostic and Przepiorka 6, (6) Gunsberg and Reti 5½, (8) Rosselli and Von Scheve 4, (10) De Biasio and Pinkerton ½.

A Close Finish.—At San Sebastian not one of the four prizes was assured before the final game. Had Vidmar won against Capablanca his would have been the first prize, and if Schlechter had won against Marshall, instead of only drawing, he would have tied for fourth place. A win by Nimzowitch or Tarrasch would have carried either of them into a place among the prizewinners.

"Terms and Themes."—In reviewing this excellent work of Mr. S. S. Blackburne, we stated unhesitatingly that no chess library was complete without it. We note with pleasure that there is every probability of a second edition.

Naturally.—One of our solvers, and a very good one, too, is a miner. Naturally he selects for his memento, "Scrambles Among the Alps!"

SYDNEY SUBURBAN CHESS UNION.

We hear with great regret from Mr. J. B. Prouse, the hon. secretary, that the response by chess players has been so disappointing that there is no probability of early resumption of matches. We trust chess-players, recognising the part that this excellent organisation plays in providing regular match practice, will wake up and support it actively.

INTERSTATE CHESS, N.S.W. v VICTORIA.

The team of ten to represent this State in the forthcoming interstate match will be selected from among the following 15 players, whose names are alphabetically arranged:—Messrs. Baynes, Bignold, Bradshaw, Calvert, Corkhill, L. S. Crakanthorp, Cummings, Jacobsen, James, Kinman, Lancaster, Larpent, Parker, Ridley, and Taylour. Mr. T. M. de Warre has been appointed captain of the team and manager.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. J. Smith, H. Roper, King's Pawn, R. H. Bulmer, C. Cooper, G. E. Shoebridge, O. Hegman: Noted. P. M. Litchfield: You appear to have missed No. 1368. Pink Stone: The analysis is for the convenience of the judge. E. R. C. Peters: We are communicating with Mr. F. R. Smith. C. Scott: We note with regret your name was inadvertently omitted from list of successful solvers, and will be pleased to be advised of your choice of memento.

A JORDAN IN AMERICA.

Following his subscription match at San Francisco against Jos. A. Drouillard, which the English champion, Mr. A. Jordan, won by 7 to 0 and 11 draws, he played a ten game match with Preston Ketchum, scoring 2 wins and 8 draws, and a 16-game match with F. Hopewell, the champion of Southern California, of which 15 games were drawn, and the last won by Jordan. Hopewell missed a win with the Black side of a Second Double Corner in the tenth game.

In California Alfred Jordan's total score was:—Won 436, lost 1, drawn 276 games.

The champion reached Salt Lake City, Utah, on February 22, in time to see the State tourney played. There he met Hugh M'Kean, who, however, made no attempt to display his skill across the board. In simultaneous exhibitions he won 128 games, while 12 were drawn.

At Denver, Mr. Jordan was escorted to the Y.M.C.A., where the local checker organisation had made due preparation to entertain him. In a couple of days in the city he proved the victor in 68 games, drew 29, and lost none.

CHAMPION OF AUSTRALASIA.

Mr. W. Penman, the new champion of Australasia, is a native of Kelty, Fifeshire, Scotland, and 35 years of age. He was formerly a prominent member of the Kelty Club, which won the Fifeshire cup five years in succession. His first honour was obtained by winning the Fifeshire championship in 1900. He has played in the Scottish championship tourneys on four occasions, and twice reached the semi-final round, being defeated by R. Stewart in 1902, and G. Bonar in 1909. He has been in the Dominion for the past 18 months, and last year won the championship of New Zealand. Mr. Penman expresses the opinion that, omitting J. Ferrie, R. Jordan, J. Searight, and R. Stewart, the New Zealand players compare favourably with the Scottish.

"You saved the life of my little girl when suffering from Diphtheria. Two doctors had given her up, and under your treatment she was out of danger in four days."

Extract from letter of an Australian Sea Captain. Original gladly produced on request.

This is by no means an unusual letter for us to receive—Greathead's has saved thousands of little precious lives which have been on the verge of loss through Colds, Fevers, Bronchitis, and other dangerous complaints.

There is nothing surer, or safer, or speedier. Children take it readily with sugar or honey.

An ounce of precaution is worth a ton of cure. Keep Greathead's in the house—it is the most powerful Sentinel you can employ to guard the Health of your Home.

WOMAN'S WORK IS NEVER DONE.

When a woman's back aches from morning to night—when she feels worn out after every bit of work she has to do—

When she has headaches, dizzy spells, pains in the back—when she cannot stoop without torture—when she has any or all of these ailments, it is a sign the kidneys are not doing their duty. Uric acid and other poisons that ought to be filtered out of the blood are being left in, and are carrying disease into every part of the system. Your neighbors tell here how to cure these ailments—speak to you from personal experience. It is just such honest, heartfelt testimony as this that has established so much confidence in Doan's Backache Kidney Pills in Sydney. This medicine acts only on the kidneys and bladder—helps them to filter the blood—to take out the uric acid and impurities that cause the aching back; cures dropsy, heart trouble, bearing-down pains, headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness, &c.

SYDNEY WOMEN CURED.

Lasting
Cures—
"A Word to
is Enough."

Mrs. W. Benn, 46 Hanover-street, Waterloo, Sydney, says:—"I am quite convinced that I owe my life to Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, for this remedy cured me of Dropsy and other symptoms of disordered kidneys. My ill-health started with backache, then I got urinary trouble and dropsy. My back was always aching, the sharp, shooting pains were so bad that I would have hot flannels put on to try and get ease. The secretions were thick, and caused intense pain. I was fit for nothing, feeling tired out always, and I had bad headaches. My legs and feet swelled to twice their natural size; I could not put my boots on, and I practically lost the use of my legs. I was really very ill, and nobody thought I would ever get well. I tried every remedy I could hear of, but got no better. The doctors whom I consulted could do me no good, and gave up my case as hopeless. A friend advised me to use Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I procured these pills. The first few bottles gave me relief, and twelve bottles completed my cure. I am now quite free of the dropsy and backache, and the secretions are regulated. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills have cured me completely and permanently, for I have been quite well for two and a half years now. I cannot sufficiently praise Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, they saved my life."

Mrs. M. Portors, Wellington-st., North Botany, Sydney, says:—"I had marked symptoms of kidney trouble for two years. I had dull, tired feelings, headaches, and such severe backache that I could scarcely get about. The secretions were seriously affected, being thick and cloudy. The pains in my back were terrible; they sometimes went up between my shoulders, and nobody knows the agony I suffered. But my worst suffering was with dropsy. At times I would not be able to leave my bed, and once I was laid up for three months. I almost despaired of ever getting well again, as I had used so many remedies without getting any relief. When a friend advised me to use Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, I did not have much hope that they would cure me; but got a bottle just to please her. After taking the one bottle my back felt a little easier, and I continued using them. Gradually the headaches and backache left me, and the swelling in my legs went down. The secretions became clear and regular, and I lost the tired-out, languid feeling. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills have restored me to health, and I never thought I would be well again. My cure did not happen yesterday, but five years ago, and, as I have been quite well all that time, can safely say that I am cured for good."

THE FOSSORIAL HYMENOPTERA.

These insects are negatively described by saying that they are not ants, bees, or wasps. They include, in fact, a miscellaneous section of the order. They are all individualists, and this leads to some of the most puzzling of insect problems, inasmuch as the persons of one generation provide for the next that they never see, while the offspring carry on the specific habits of their kind without teaching or imitation. Another proof of high rank in the scale of being among these insects is that the males take no part in any industrial occupation. The classification so far is in a very crude condition. The "Cambridge Natural History" admits only three families, divided into subterranean stingers, runners, and stingers above ground: obviously a purely artificial arrangement. The first show the least developed instinct, and do not construct cells. They include several thousand species. The second, the Pompilidae, are widely distributed, of large size, and possessed of a powerful sting. They mostly make spiders their victims, and this stinging is an elaborate operation. When the spider is helpless it is dragged to a hole in a wall, an egg is deposited, and the cavity is sealed up. An American genus is distinguished as the tarantula-killer. The third family, the Sphegidae, shows interesting habits. Members construct a series of cells, which they block up in turn after storing them with food and laying an egg. They live mainly on crickets. It has been shown that a paralysed cricket will live for several weeks. The larva is hatched as a minute worm, which burrows into the cricket, and gradually eats up its inside. This larva subsequently passes nine months in a cocoon. Other members of the family show a preference for caterpillars, and by some mysterious sense will locate these creatures even when they are hidden in the ground. Another species specialises in cockroaches. They may be four or five times its own size, but after being stung they become quite docile, and allow themselves to be led away and placed in confinement. If the hole is not big enough for the cockroach the wasp simply bites a piece out of it—a procrustean method, charming in its simplicity. It is remarkable that in all these cases the insects show a knowledge of anatomy which would not disgrace a demonstrator, planting their sting just where it is most effective. Yet they have nothing in the nature of memory to guide them in these acts. One curious species lives on bees, which, after being stung, are deprived of their honey, and their bodies stored away as a food stock for the young. Another pays its unwelcome attentions to ants, accumulating 40 or 50 in its cell. The ants remain alive in their heap, but they have lost the power of co-ordinating their movements. Those who think that nature is not red in tooth and claw make a very great mistake.

THE FOSSIL AND THE EMBRYO.

The study of fossils throws much light on embryology. In the course of its development an individual passes through a series of forms which, in accordance with the law of recapitulation, represent a rough and much telescoped summing-up of the stages passed through in the evolution of the species. We might therefore expect to find adult fossil forms corresponding to various larval stages of such animals. This expectation is realised. Examples of such persistent embryonic types are common, for instance, among fossil vertebrates. In many cases the vertebral column of the older fossil fish and reptiles remained cartilaginous throughout life. The old amphibians breathed by both gills and lungs, whereas extant amphibians lose their gills at an early stage, and breathe only by lungs. Similarly fossil skull structures are closely comparable with the embryonic stages of the skull in modern related species. More striking still is the almost complete identity of such fossil invertebrates as the Belinuridae with the larva of existing Limulus. In addition, of course, the fossil type is generalised, and represents a common point of origin for later more specialised species. The law of recapitulation, stated in a sufficiently broad way, thus receives ample support from the record of the rocks. In certain cases the recapitulation of descent in individual development is remarkably complete. Thus Beecher has shown that nearly every stage in the growth of arm-supports in recent brachiopods corresponds to some fossil genus, and the succession in time of these last, so far as he can tell, corresponds to the succession in development. Another interesting side-light relates to rudimentary structures. All species in the interplay of environment and adaptation become much modified. Parts that once served a useful purpose cease to do so. They are therefore not maintained by natural selection, and dwindle away with increasing slowness as they interfere less and less with the economy of nutrition. We count such rudimentary structures in ourselves by the hundred, from the skeleton to the skin, and the same thing is true of animals in general. Now, it is very frequently possible to discover a fossil form which has a particular rudiment in its former highly developed condition, and it is not infrequent to find series of fossil forms through which the process of reduction can be followed step by step. The well-developed teeth of Mesozoic birds and of fossil whales, the normally-developed homologues of the side-splints of the horse and other similar animals, and the well-developed wrist bones of the oldest fossil birds, are a few familiar cases in point. Again, while many fossil genera remain unchanged through several geological formations, in other cases paleontology shows long series of transitional forms. This is specially the case with molluscs, brachiopods, sea-urchins, and corals; it is clearly marked among the vertebrates also, although their evolution appears to have been far more rapid. Paleontology therefore gives a strong general support to the view that individual development repeats rapidly the history of the race. This law of recapitulation, however, is not by any means rigidly true. Not only is the recapitulation imperfect, stages and structures dropping out altogether, but even where a stage of development corresponds to a fossil form the homology is not, strictly speaking, real.

THE RUSTING OF IRON.

Rust, is of course, an oxide formed by the union of the metal with the oxygen of the air; but this reaction does not take place in any direct way. Water is an almost universal solvent, and even such metals as steel dissolve in it to a very slight extent. The process, however, has to be helped in some way. Until recently the presence of dissolved carbonic acid was the most general explanation. It was supposed that a ferrous carbonate was first formed, and that this acted on by water and oxygen gave ferric hydroxide. Such an action is cyclic, and a very small amount of carbon dioxide could rust a piece of iron away indefinitely. No doubt this sometimes does occur, but rusting can take place where there is not a trace of dissolved carbon dioxide. Several other chemical theories have been proposed, but they are all open to criticism. The electrolytic theory assumes that before iron can oxidise in the wet way it must pass into solution as a ferrous ion. Now everyone knows that when a strip of iron is put into a copper sulphate solution the iron dissolves and the copper is deposited. Hydrogen acts as a metal, and would similarly be replaced by iron. If we can account for this original solution the rest is easy. Now, even pure water contains a certain number of free hydrogen ions—indeed to this extent water is an acid. It seems to have been shown that rusting is primarily due to these ions attacking the iron, and not to any direct effect of oxygen. In addition, inequalities of surface condition imply a varying solution tension and a point of maximum solution pressure is electro-positive to one of minimum pressure, and a current will flow, thus accentuating the reaction. The next step is merely the oxidation of the ferrous ion to insoluble ion salts, changing ultimately to the red hydroxide known as rust.

SHAKESPEARE AND THE BIBLE.

The following forms part of an address to the Shakespearian Society of New South Wales last Tuesday, by Mr. W. Farmer Whyte:—

There has just been celebrated throughout the English-speaking world the tercentenary of the authorised version of the English Bible. "Precisely when the wit-combats at the Mermaid are waning somewhat," says Carlyle, "and our Shakespeare is about packing up for Stratford, there comes out another very priceless thing, a correct translation of the Bible; that which we still use. Priceless enough this latter, of importance unspeakable!"

In the British Museum, or in the Shakespeare Memorial Library at Birmingham, we may find editions of one or other of Shakespeare's dramas translated into 33 different languages. We find him in Hebrew and Japanese, and even Icelandic. He is performed in Roumanian and Hindustani. During the last and present century there have been probably not less than 300 reprints of Shakespeare's works published in England, America, and Germany. But compare this with the Bible. Within a century of the invention of printing the Bible had been published in German, Italian, French, English, Dutch, Spanish, Bohemian, Danish, and Swedish, as well as many times over in its original tongues; and since that time editions of the Scriptures have been multiplied in hundreds of languages, until the number of volumes that have been issued defies all computation.

Last year the British and Foreign Bible Society issued 6,620,000 copies, and those issued by other societies in various parts of the world brought the total to over 13,000,000 copies. To these must be added the Bibles sold annually by ordinary publishers, which at a very moderate estimate will amount to 2,000,000 volumes more. Of this enormous output, however, by no means the whole consists of complete Bibles or Testaments. The great British and American Bible Societies, in particular, send out every year millions of separate Gospels and Psalters, mainly for use in the mission field. Since its foundation in 1804, the British and Foreign Bible Society alone has issued more than 222,000,000 copies of the Scriptures, of which nearly 72,000,000 have been Bibles or Testaments in English.

Consider the imperishable poems of Homer, sometimes styled "the Bible of the Athenians." Scholars have rendered the "Iliad" or the "Odyssey" into more than a score of languages current in modern Europe, but these versions of Homer are made merely for the use of students of literature, not with any idea of winning new worshippers for the gods of Olympus. Take that singular Russian genius, the late Count Tolstoy, who has probably exerted a wider influence over the world's thought than any other recent writer. Books by Tolstoy have been published in as many as 33 modern tongues. Take the Puritan tinker. John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" is now translated into no fewer than 111 languages and dialects, which are current in nearly every country on earth, from Lapland to Samoa and Fiji. Yet, if we add them all together—all the versions of Homer and Shakespeare, Tolstoy, and Bunyan—they amount to fewer than half the versions of the many-languaged Bible. There is, of course, no British and Foreign Shakespeare society. The Gospel has been actually published in over 530 different forms of human speech. Putting it another way, we can say that at least some book or books of Scripture can be had in the vernaculars spoken by seven-tenths of the population of the world.

The Bible has woven itself into the very feelings, thought, and character of the Anglo-Saxon world, has inspired and moulded much of our noblest literature, and of all books is the most imperishable. If we were asked to say which comes next in the estimation of the people should we hesitate in saying Shakespeare? Next to the discoveries made by archeologists among ruined temples, buried cities, and the tombs of kings long dead and buried, shedding further light on some of the mysteries which abound in the Scriptures, is there anything which is hailed with more delight, more genuine interest, than some fresh discovery relating to the man Shakespeare or his writings?

There is no book that contains so many pearls of wisdom as the Bible, so much literary riches—judging it as literature alone—and not only that, but the very Constitution under which we live, our very laws, are based upon it. Outside the Bible there is no literary treasure-house to be compared with Shakespeare. Bible maxims and Shakespearian maxims, Bible quotations and Shakespearian quotations, they have been so woven into our language that they have become a very part of it; so that it might be said with some truth, though it seem a paradox, that a man who may never have looked inside the pages of either book has yet some acquaintance with both. The influence of the Bible is strikingly shown in our ordinary speech. The language of the seventeenth century is coloured by the phraseology of the Authorised Version. The characters in the works of John Bunyan talk in Bible language. Milton's works, prose and poems, are studded with Bible phraseology. We are told that Spenser studied the prophetic writings before he wrote the "Faerie Queen." It is the same with the works of Addison, the "Seasons" of James Thomson, the "Night Thoughts" of Edward Young, the poems of Pope; they abound in Scriptural allusions, and that, as Dean Farrar has put it, in their most beautiful and impressive passages. One might go on multiplying these names. Let us consider some of the Scriptural expressions that have become incorporated in modern phraseology: "Broken reed," "sweat of his brow," "clear as crystal," "highways and hedges," "still small voice," "root of all evil," "lick the dust," "the fat of the land," "weighed in the balance and found wanting," "the apple of his eye," "gathered to his fathers," "signs of the times," "a drop in a bucket," "the pride of life," "the powers that be," "the salt of the earth," "a thorn in the flesh," "the burden and heat of the day," "a labour of love," "entertained angels unawares." We may gather them, if we will, in hundreds, these beautiful blossoms in our garden of English. So, too, with Shakespeare: "Dressed in a little brief authority," "a ministering angel," "the play's the thing," "all the world's a stage," "the dogs of war," "the dauntless spirit of resolution," "caviare to the general," "more honoured in the breach than the observance," "stale, flat, and unprofitable," "look here, upon this picture and on this," "there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in your philosophy," "age cannot wither her, nor custom stale, her infinite variety," "there's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will," "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin," "our children's children shall see this, and bless heaven," "and thereby hangs a tale." And we might multiply these, too. They are so much part and parcel of our everyday language that we very often forget to put them in quotation marks.

"There never was any book like the Bible," says Carlyle, "and there never will be such another." Shelley—and we will not suspect him of a religious bias in its favour—when once asked what book he would save for himself if he could save no other, replied, "The oldest book—the Bible." And are we not struck by his indebtedness to it for imagery, thought, and even expression? It was one of the four books that lay on Byron's table. It was "the one essential part" of Ruskin's education. Havelock sustained himself through the darkest hours of the mutiny upon the promises of Scripture; Gordon waited with his Bible at Khartoum; Livingstone, in the loneliness of Central Africa, read it four times through from beginning to end, drawing from it patience and fortitude to persevere. It has furnished subjects for classical literature of various kinds—Dante's "Divine Comedy," Tasso's "Jerusalem Delivered," Goethe's "Faust," Milton's "Paradise Lost" and "Regained," Byron's "Cain." Our English authors especially, unconsciously or deliberately, have garnished their tables with its fruits and flowers. In Knight's "Biography of Shakespeare" we read: "There was one book which it was the especial happiness of that contemplative boy to be familiar with. When in the year 1537 the Bible in English was first printed by authority, Richard Grafton, the printer, sent six copies to Cranmer, beseeching the archbishop to accept them as his simple gift, adding, 'For your lordship, moving our most gracious prince to the allowance and licensing of such a work, hath wrought such an act worthy of praise as never was mentioned in any chronicle of this realm.' From that time, with the exception of the short interval of the reign of Mary, the presses of London were for the most part employed in printing Bibles. That book, to whose wonderful heart-stirring narratives the child listens with awe and love, was now and ever after to be the solace of the English home. . . . . We believe that the home education of William Shakespeare was grounded upon this book; and that, if this book had been sealed to his childhood, he might have been the poet of nature, of passion—his humour might have been as rich as we find it, and his wit as pointed—but that he would not have been the poet of the most profound as well as the most tolerant philosophy; his insight into the nature of man, his meanness and his grandeur, his weakness and his strength, would not have been what it is."

I fear there are some pagan Shakespearians who turn more often for comfort to their Shakespeare than their Bible—men who remind us of Charles Lamb's friend who, when asked what book he esteemed most in his library, replied, "Shakespeare," though they may not go so far as to class Hogarth as the next best. But we may apply to both Shakespeare and the Bible those words which occur in the wonderful Preface to the Authorised Version of the Scriptures—"If we be ignorant, they will instruct us; if out of the way, they will bring us home; if out of order, they will reform us; if in heaviness, comfort us; if dull, quicken us; if cold, inflame us."

LAWN TENNIS.

ENGLISH AND AUSTRALIAN.

A COMPARISON.

(BY DR. L. O. S. POIDEVIN.)

"How do our leading lawn tennis players compare with those of England and other countries?" That is a query apparently heavily charged with genuine interest, and one which "stay-at-home" enthusiasts are never tired of putting forward. It is a query which has lately been put to me very frequently and persistently, and in consequence I am encouraged to offer some reflections upon the subject to readers of this column. The standard of our play measured in terms of Davis Cup success would, of course, give it the premier place amongst the nations to-day. Unfortunately, however, that is not altogether a satisfactory criterion to adopt, because the Davis Cup conditions permit of such a limited representation as to make it a matter almost of individual success rather than team success. It is quite true, therefore, that in Norman Brookes and Tony Wilding we have a pair of the greatest players of the day, who not only won the Davis Cup supremacy for us in 1907, and have maintained it for us ever since, but who also are quite capable of defending it against all-comers with quite reasonable prospects of success. Unfortunately, however, we can hardly claim that the high standard of play maintained by these two distinguished players is a true reflex of that of the nation they represent.

As regards style, the comparison with English players is by no means unfavourable to us. On the whole, our grip of the racket is quite different and distinct from the English grip; and that, I think, is the basis of the main difference in style. Our grip, I think, gives us better control of the backhand. Roughly, we play, in making the backhand stroke, with the front of our wrist forward, whereas the Englishman plays with the back of his wrist forward. Of course, there are many modifications; but that is the basis of the difference which may, perhaps, be better appreciated by saying that the Englishman invariably uses the opposite side of his racket in making his backhand to that which he uses in making his forehand strokes, whereas our grip enables us to use the same side of the racket for both. This question of grip is a large and somewhat controversial one, and I do not propose to linger over it just now; it is with the results that I am at present concerned. In our case the ball is met more with the full face of the racket than in the case of English players. We carry our racket to meet the ball practically in the same horizontal plane as that in which the ball is travelling, whereas the English player crosses the flight of the ball with his racket; in consequence our style contributes to a plain hit stroke, while the English style tends towards the production of "cut" upon the strokes. Grace and elegance can be imparted to both styles; it is largely a matter of individual taste as to which is preferred. Many prefer the clean-cut character and the finish of our strokes, as illustrated, let us say, by A. B. Jones, Dr. Sharp, Horace Rice, and many others. They do not call for such accuracy of timing as does the English style. You may watch these players mentioned above for a whole afternoon without ever being rewarded by the detection of a miss-hit; but unless the adherent of the other style is in his greatest form you will see several in that time. English players, however, pay much more attention to good style than we do. Our style is rather incidental to our efforts after effect. Continental players especially in their forehand strokes strive after overspin; the so-called "lifting drive" is characteristic of their style, but it does not compare as regards grace and finish with the more orthodox British styles. Wilding, I suspect, had a good deal to do with the popularising of this forehand drive on the Continent. Here, again, the question of effect as between the various styles mentioned is a controversial one, and I do not propose to deal with it now. Summarising briefly, I should say regarding style that English players strive more after style as style than we do; that we place more store upon effect, but this, notwithstanding our best, compares quite favourably with theirs, appearing at the same time perhaps more natural and less forced.

Now as to methods. This again invites consideration of the modern service vogue. The American service methods have not been adopted so universally by English players as they might be, and that is why many of the English players have not touched greatness. In a single, English players volley a great deal more than we do. With very few exceptions they follow their service in to the net, and in the remainder of the game they seldom miss an opportunity to assume the volleying position. Consequently it is a rarity (and looked upon rather as femininity) to see two men battling away from the base line. With these methods, of course, not everyone will agree; too much reliance may easily be placed upon volleying. To be of much use in a single volleying should be the result rather than the basis of strategy. The man who comes tearing towards the net after every service may win many games through his opponent's mistakes, but the good baseliner will win in most cases, unless the two following conditions be fulfilled. In the first place, it is necessary that the volleyer should himself be in good position, and, secondly, that he has his opponent at a disadvantage. It is very little use coming into the net to volley persistently under any other conditions. Now, the modern American service methods contribute largely towards the fulfilment of these two conditions, and they have a twofold advantage over most other services; they give the server time to get into a strong volleying position himself, and by their break and other virtues put his opponent into a position of strategical weakness. Under these circumstances good volleying holds a definite and conspicuous superiority, and the success of Brookes, Wilding, and others testifies to the truth of these remarks. Now the majority of English players adopt the persistent volleying method without the modern service foundation; of course, it is quite possible to do so with success, but it calls for superlative skill in volleying and exceptional quickness on the court. H. L. Doherty adopted these methods with marvellous and almost unexampled success, but his play smacked of the genius.

of present-day players in England, Gore is a base-liner and an exception to the rule; Ritchie is a modified exception, and Roper-Barrett usually conforms to the rule. Neither one of the three has anything more than a medium paced straightforward service, and Roper-Barrett, the most amiable service of the three. He is, however, a remarkable expert volleyer, and one of the quickest men one has seen on court, so that he, to some extent, balances the apparent weakness of his service. It is about the same pace as that of Doust. Dixon has a very good American service, and he volleys persistently, though a very heavy man and somewhat slow in movement. Beamish, Kenneth Powell, R. B. Powell, Mavrogordoto, "F. G.," and A. H. Lowe, Parke, all conform to the general volleying rule, though two of their number only have American services. Crawley, too, has a good modern service, and he volleys persistently, as does Hillyard, with a plain, hard hit, straightforward service. The methods adopted by Campbell last week in the New South Wales championships might be taken as an exemplification of the point I am insisting on. They were eminently successful on that occasion, and to the studious observer must have given food for careful reflection. It is quite impossible, of course, in a limited space to go into any details upon the subject of methods; I will content myself, therefore, with but one further comparison, and that with regard to doubles play. Our methods will bear very favourable comparison with those of English players. For one thing, we volley closer to the net than they do in a double, and consequently we are enabled to make sharper-angled cross-court shots. We go in more for the partner up inside the service line method while returning the service than they do in England, where, with few exceptions, both players stay on the base-line while receiving the service. We have little to learn from English play as regards the tactics of the doubles game.

Finally, as to the standard of our play. I have already mentioned a dozen English players, any one of whom should beat our best two out of three matches, and most of them would win all three. With the exception of Hillyard and Crawley (whom I cannot remember meeting Doust) and Parke (whom Doust once beat over 12 months ago), they have all beaten Doust regularly; it does not follow from this that they would also beat with the same regularity Sharp, Jones, Barker, Campbell, and Rice, to mention just a few of our players, but I have made allowance for that in my estimate above. This I would like to say, however, in conclusion, that, if our players were to enjoy anything like the same opportunities for tournament play that English players have, one would not have the least doubt that they would acquit themselves equally well on the whole, and in many instances, as, for example, in the case of A. B. Jones, Campbell, and especially some of those younger players just outside the State "six," a great deal better.

Judgment has been given in the House of Lords in a case where the question was raised whether a taxi-cab driver who receives a percentage of the earnings of his cab instead of a fixed salary is a workman within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The Court of Appeal decision that the driver is not a workman was upheld. The judgment will affect 7000 taxi-cab drivers.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W.R.—Occasionally breeders in Australia have attempted to hatch chickens from eggs secured from England, but without success. The latest attempt was at Perth, a gentleman three years ago getting out three settings, but none hatched. The germ in the fertile eggs quickened into life, but in various stages in the first 10 days died, the egg then becoming rotten. Failure has also followed several attempts to South Africa, which is but half the distance. On the other hand, over 20 years ago a Queensland breeder secured two settings of white Langshan eggs from America, and got a number of chickens from them, which he afterwards exhibited, some of them winning prizes in Sydney.

M.M. (Kogarah).—The trouble is known as "down behind." In some cases an egg may get broken in the oviduct, resulting in an accumulation of partially formed eggs at the lower end of the oviduct. This accumulates to a considerable extent before it causes the fowl's death, which it ultimately does. In other cases the large development behind is termed abdominal dropsy. This can be tapped, but the water usually gathers again. The fowls are perfectly good for eating.

Anxious.—Your feeding and other management are quite correct, and in no way contributory to the emaciated condition of the fowls. The trouble may be what you suggest, or worms may be the cause. These infestations are the bane of many poultry-yards. It would be advisable to have one of the affected birds killed, and a thorough examination of the intestines will determine if worms are the cause.

Darlinghurst.—Pamphlets, etc., received, and will get attention. You will note the testimonials show neither date nor place; neither is it stated where any market exists for these goods. It would be rather far to send them to America.

The Parramatta show, which opened yesterday, is quite up in quality to those which preceded it. Some of the past winners are on view, while a few which failed to score earlier in the season are now amongst the winners. The hon. secretary expects a big crowd of visitors this afternoon and evening, the show being open to 10 o'clock.

Mr. G. C. Warner, hon. secretary of the Illawarra Poultry and Pigeon Club, forwards the schedule for the eighth annual show of that society, to be held in the Town Hall, Rockdale. All the breeds are extensively catered for, and a large number of special prizes are offered, given by well-wishers of the club. The bulk of the judging will be in new hands, which will give more interest to the awards. On the cover of the schedules the show is termed "the classic event of New South Wales." It is hoped exhibitors will roll up with their entries and make it so.

Exhibitors are reminded that entries for the first show of the Poultry, Pigeon, and Canary Club close to-night. Country and suburban exhibitors can post to-day, and may be reminded that a penny from any part is now sufficient for the ordinary letter.

Entries for the Goulburn Poultry, Pigeon, and Canary Club's show will close on Wednesday next, 17th inst.

Mr. A. M. Prain, one of the Scottish Commissioners, and a well-known poultry fancier of that country, naturally had an eye to business when in Sydney. Having established an agency here, Mr. Prain announces that he can send the best show stock for £30 a pair. The birds, no doubt, would be good, but so is the price.

The present has been an extraordinarily good season for poultry-farmers who placed their September and October surplus eggs in cold store. Although there was the good price of 9d and 10d per dozen then obtainable, those in the know were aware that, even with the cold store charges, the April and May prices would well repay them. Already there have been about 3000 cases marketed, the lowest prices we are aware of being 1s 4d per dozen, while 1s 8d and over has been frequently obtained. In the early days of this business speculative grocers were the principal people who exploited this system. The poultry farmers are now gradually adopting it, and whatever there is in the method they are rightly entitled to it. It may be remarked that after the present month prices begin to decline, and those who have quantities still in store should unload within the next few weeks.

EGGS IN WINTER.

In a number of late issues of the "Herald" new-laid eggs have been quoted at 2s 4d, and occasionally 2s 5d, per dozen wholesale, and in some of the retail shops' windows 2s 8d per dozen has been the price. When figures like these are reached the article is then much beyond its food value, and becomes a luxury. With such extraordinary prices for this ordinary article of food the wonder is often expressed why poultry farmers and the smaller breeders do not more largely cater for the winter egg trade, 2s to 2s 4d the past three or four years obtaining from April to the end of June. The price of this commodity, like that of many others, is regulated by supply and demand, and while a community is in a high stage of prosperity the finer class of foods is in greater demand, and except there is an increased supply, higher values are consequent. Eggs are a food in which the whole community indulge. In the plentiful spring time, when these can be procured under 1s per dozen, the consumption in Sydney and suburbs is enormous. In the scarce and dear season the demand slackens, but in later years, through the buying ability of the people, the supply in the autumn months has so failed to meet requirements that the prices have soared to those mentioned. These big prices are responsible for the complaints received each season from people in sundry suburbs as to why their hens do not lay. The feeding is often described, and no fault to be found with it; clean water is given; the fowls are young and of a reputed laying strain. Still, there are no eggs.

The fact remains that considerable quantities are daily arriving in Sydney, but still they are but a tithe of the numbers which arrive in September and October. In the spring months there is no complaint of shortage. All the young, and nearly all the old, ones are then producing; this fact being responsible for the lower figures in this period. But with autumn the moulting time comes, and the majority of the fowls then discontinue, and until the moult is over there will be few eggs from the old ones. Spices and other preparations, may induce earlier laying, but speaking generally it is the younger hens which have to be depended on for the autumn and winter supply. These facts have been long known, and every egg-laying test confirms them. At the present Hawkesbury College competition from the 60 three-year-old hens only 31 eggs were obtained for the month of April. For the same period 180 two-year-old hens laid 520 eggs, or slightly under three for each hen; while for the pullets the average is just on five eggs each for the 31 days. It has also to be recollected that the above birds are all well bred and well cared for, kept in small numbers in good-sized runs, the whole trend of the management being the production of eggs. When these competition lots make such a poor show in winter it can be readily understood that the ordinary flocks of the farm would show a still smaller production. The results of the other Australian competitions in regard to the poor winter yield confirm that of the Hawkesbury College. In England for the past dozen years there have been egg-laying competitions, but as no one there appears anxious to increase the production in the cheap period, the tests are confined to October, November, December, and January, the object being to improve the production at the time it pays best. Just as in Australia, while there are good and bad layers during this period, the average per hen is small. From a report in the London "Times," the best laying in the last competition was 80 eggs per hen for the four months, while several hens did not produce an egg during the competition. The best returns in the winter months will be from the pullets first or second laying. If Leghorns, they should be hatched the preceding September or October, while two months earlier will be required for the heavier breeds. Concerning the management, foods, etc., fowls kept in small numbers will do best. The foods responsible for big production in the spring will give the best results all the year round, with the exception that maize can more largely take the place of wheat in winter; pollard, bran, whole cereals, greenstuff, meat, grit, clean water, and clean houses are responsible for all the big laying done in Australia. Yet with these and fowls hatched, at the proper period, the flock in April and May that averages two eggs per hen per week is doing wonders, and could win prizes at any egg-laying competition. Winter laying is out-of-season laying, and despite all experiments and teachings Nature continues to triumph, the winter egg supply not appreciably increasing.

COUGH IF YOU WANT TO.

But remember it is very annoying to those around you, and it is anything but polite when you can get so ready an aid as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. A single dose will relieve an ordinary cough. Very often three doses will cure an ordinary cold.—Advt.

After 18 months spent in hospital at Baltimore, a negro, who was admitted to the institution in November of 1909 with practically all the skin burned off his back, has now reached the completion of a treatment which involved the removal of 430 square inches of the outer skin from other parts of his body to replace that which had been consumed by fire. The operation was commenced in December of 1909, and continued to April, being resumed again after a six-months' interval, and completed in a further five weeks.

ANOTHER LETTER OF APPRECIATION FROM AN ENTHUSIASTIC "B. & B." RIDER.

We have never yet sold a "B. & B." Cycle that did not prove every one of the claims made in favour of its durability. From the lowest to the highest priced Model, each Machine is a high-grade production, and worth every penny of the price for which it sells. Just read this letter, received from Mr. E. C. Milton, of Cudgegong:—

> "It affords me very much pleasure to advise you that the Model 2 "B. & B." Cycle I purchased from your Mudgee Agent, Mr. J. L. Brown, on the 10th April, 1908, has given me complete satisfaction, and is still good for a further term of hard work. The New Departure Hub is still in perfect running order, and has not yet been repaired. From my experience, I can honestly recommend the "B. & B." Cycle to anyone desirous of purchasing a low-priced, easy-running, up-to-date Bicycle."

There's no doubt about the way in which this man regards his mount, is there? And yet it only cost £11—truly a low price for the amount of service to which the wheel has been subjected. Why not call and see one? Our Pitt-street Depot is Open till 9 p.m. on Fridays.

BENNETT & BARKELL, LTD., Largest Cycle Building House in the State, 234 Pitt-st and Castlereagh-st, Syd.

A F.I.A.T. LASTS LONGEST!

Because the F.I.A.T. is such an excellent piece of workmanship it is as reliable as a high-grade chronometer—and as carefully adjusted.

It is fitted with flexible springs, to absorb all road-shock; has five-bow Cape Cart Extension Hood, "G.L." patent folding glass wind shield, two powerful acetylene head lamps with separate generator, one tail and two oil side lights, and body can be built to order—to seat seven if required. Four-cylinder, 12-15 h.p., £600; four-cylinder, 15-20 h.p., £700; four-cylinder, 15-25 h.p., £750; six-cylinder, 20-30 h.p., £950.

YOU CAN CUT COSTS WITH A KARRIER.

Three horse teams cannot carry the same loads that a "KARRIER" will. And they cost more to work.

This is one of the economic features which should cause you to consider the advisability of investing. Remember, too, that the "KARRIER" is an expense only when actually earning money for you. Horses have to be fed day and night.

Can we show you a "KARRIER?"

CONTINENTAL TYRES

Fred. White lowers "Across Australia" Record on Continental Cycle Tyres.

THE TYRE'S THE THING.

ANOTHER CONTINENTAL TYRE TRIUMPH.

3077 miles in 36 days 13 hrs 3 min.

On April 4th Fred. White set out from Fremantle on his Bicycle fitted with Continental Tyres, to lower the record for the 3077 miles separating Fremantle from Sydney. He reached Sydney at 9.3 p.m. on Wednesday, taking exactly 36 days 13 hours 3 minutes, beating the previous record by 1 hour 57 minutes. A very fine performance! And a good deal of credit is due to the tyres.

The same set of Continentals were ridden throughout the trip, and stood the severe test splendidly. This is but another triumph for Continental Cycle Tyres, and forcibly demonstrates their durability and resiliency.

THE CONTINENTAL CYCLE TYRE GUARANTEE.

So certain are we that Continental Cycle Tyres will wear well that we give a longer and stronger guarantee with them than you can get with any other cycle tyre in the world.

Continental Red Roadsters are guaranteed for 15 months. Wyngeel and Red Road Racing Tyres are guaranteed for 9 months. And we interpret these guarantees liberally.

CLEMENT-BAYARD MOTOR CARS.

Purchasers of these famous Cars have advised us as under:—

FROM CREMORNE.—"My 11-16 h.p. Bayard has done over 14,000 miles in 2½ years, the greater part of which were over country roads, and it has not cost me sixpence for repairs, and has never been to a repairer's."

INVERELL.—"Our 11-16-h.p. Clement-Bayard has done PERFECTLY 70,000 miles, many of which were over the ranges, and it is still going well."

MUSWELLBROOK.—"Yesterday we ran the car from Bylong to Muswellbrook, 70 miles, over the ranges, again, and she came through tip-top, five in car. She ran through splendidly. One wants to know what the climbing over these ranges is like to understand what the trip is. We have had four other makes of car all stop. This car is the ONLY ONE that has never stopped, and with a good load on, too."

CLEMENT-BAYARD MOTOR CARS.
1911 MODELS.

An ideal Car for family and touring purposes is the Clement-Bayard, 12-10-h.p. 4-cylinder Car, £475.
It takes hills with a load better than most 20-25-h.p. Cars.
It gets, if anything, quieter the longer it is run. It is lighter (though stronger) than most Cars.
It is made of the most durable of metals. It is handsome to the eye, and carries five.
It is the simplest of all carts to drive. There is nothing to do but steer. Any sensible man can maintain it. The oiling, the timing, etc., are all automatic.
CLEMENT-BAYARDS are famed, the world over, for RELIABILITY.

The price of this ideal Car is £475. It has extra high clearance.
These Cars are now ready for delivery. Each Car is guaranteed for 2 years.
Another Model now ready for the road is the 10/15-h.p., 4-cylinder, with double phaeton side entrance body, £375.
We also have on the water the latest production in the form of a "six" 15-h.p. Car coming, at a low price.
"CLEMENT BAYARD" CARS are made by Mr. A. Clement in his great works at Levallois, Paris, where 2000 men are constantly employed. He is recognised as one of (if not the) leading Motor Engineers of Europe, and all his latest triumphs appear in the 1911 Motor Cars to hand.
When the British Government wanted huge motors for the three great War Dirigibles, now building, they went to the "Clement-Bayard" Works for them.
When a Nation's very existence might depend on a Motor, must be ensured, and that is the characteristic of "Clement-Bayards." In addition to this, they are famed for great strength (yet lightness), and power to stand up against hard, continuous wear, and yet they are extremely light on tyres and naphtha.

RELIABILITY

Call and allow us to explain the reason why our prices for Cars generally, Commercial Lorries, and High-wheel Buggies will be found to be 25 per cent. lower than the usual Sydney quotations.

THE OSTRICH.

The commercial value of the ostrich is better appreciated in South Africa than it is in Australia. Yet experience shows that Australia is admirably adapted for this bird. The raising of the emu—a member of the same order and a creature of the same habits—indicated that the ostrich should thrive in this country. The flocks that have been established in parts of Australia have shown that the belief was well-founded. Yet, notwithstanding the fact that experiment has declared the theory correct, this obvious source of wealth has generally been neglected. South Africa has provided an object-lesson for over 40 years. For a long time the birds ran wild in that country, and were killed for the sake of their feathers. At last it dawned upon the minds of settlers that this method savoured strongly of the policy of the fool who killed the goose that laid the golden eggs. A revolution occurred—a bloodless revolution which resulted in the preservation and cultivation of the ostrich, the study of its habits and tastes, and the establishment of farms devoted to the care and ultimate plucking of this long-legged fowl. Considering that a cock bird is worth over £400 it must be clear "that to kill him for one plucking when he can be plucked year after year, is, to put it mildly, a stupid proceeding. As producers of plumage, both male and female are equally valuable, and if they resent being robbed of their feathers in the service of man—or, to be more accurate, of woman—they have consolation, if they knew it, in the fact that they are not the only bipeds who have been plucked.

To-day the South African export of feathers is worth £2,000,000 a year. And the demand is always greater than the supply. While woman is woman it has every hope of remaining so. There is no reason why Australia should not take a hand in this profitable game. The South African ostrich farmers know that they have "a good thing," and have taken what precautions they can to keep it. This, no doubt, is selfish, but it happens to be business. They found that a number of birds were being sent to North and South America, to India, and to Australia. Now the merino was first brought to Australia from the Cape, and the people of that country might have felt flattered at the further compliment to their judgment implied by the selection of the ostrich as well. But they did not look at it that way; on the contrary, they demanded high protection. They got it in the form of export duties of £100 on each bird, and £5 on each egg. This step was effective to a great extent, for a bird might die on the trip, and the egg might be of the election variety.

Prior to this practically prohibitive barrier supplies of ostriches had reached Australia, sufficient to start the industry. But, although both in New South Wales and in South Australia the adaptability of the birds to the climatic and other conditions of this continent has amply been demonstrated, comparatively little advantage has been taken of the opportunity to vigorously pursue a profitable occupation, and one, moreover, which does not entail much trouble. An idea of what might be done is shown by the observations of a South African, who in 1908 wrote:—"The wealthy men are those engaged in ostrich farming, which industry is the only one still booming. The value of the feathers exported is very close up to that of wool, and prime whites range up to £50 a pound. The leading breeders devote their energies to the improvement of quality, the desiderata being width of feather, density of flue, and lightness of quill. One thousand pounds has been paid for a pair of breeding birds, and £500 for young cocks is frequently given. All the best birds are run in lucerne paddocks, fed on lucerne hay, and on most farms rape is also largely grown for them. One feature of the industry is that the ostrich farmer can stow his clip into his buggy, drive with it into town, and bring away more money than the owner of two or three waggon loads of wool."

The Melbourne Acclimatisation Society imported some ostriches in 1873; and in 1881 Mr. William Malcolm started a farm at Gawler, in South Australia. Later on, under the terms of an Act of Parliament, the fee simple of 5000 acres, near Port Augusta, was obtained free of charge by a company which had been formed to conduct operations. The condition was that 250 birds one-year-old should be placed on the land. This was done; but the outlook was not lively for the youngsters. The locality was not an ideal spot. At the best of times it runs more to sand than to herbage, and in drought days it is as dry as a volume of "Hansard." Parliament, as is often the case, had been cursed with good intentions. It had the laudable desire of encouraging ostrich-breeding; but the country selected for the purpose seems to have been chosen under the sway of the old-fashioned notion that an ostrich lives on road metal. Certainly he swallows uncomfortably large pebbles as a digestive; but thereby he only shows his relationship to the barnyard rooster, who is addicted to grit. The ostrich is but a large fowl, and likes his grit in proportion.

As the South Australian experience showed that the birds did not thrive best in bad country, liable to drought, so in New South Wales it has been found that districts with heavy rainfall are too damp to be healthy. The ostrich does not like extremes—he is a wise bird, and prefers the via media. On the farm at Port Augusta it was at first feared, owing to uncertain and often scanty rains, that the flock would never get on. However, by supplying green fodder grown elsewhere, and otherwise attending to their wants, the birds have been kept, and now number about 450. It has been found that they readily eat saltbush, wattles, acacia, mulga, cotton, and blue bush; but better feeding is essential to the production of quality in plumage. When this has to be raised away from the farm, and the cost of carriage has to be covered, it "takes the gilt edge off the profits."

In New South Wales those interested in the industry are convinced that it is particularly suitable to the country, and that there is no reason why Australia should not produce feathers quite equal to the South African, provided a little care and discrimination are exercised in selecting the breeding birds. The birds require but little attention provided they are put in secure paddocks, and age does not deteriorate the quality of the feathers. As the ostrich is not a table-bird toughness is a matter of indifference. According to one New South Wales breeder, the ostrich must have discovered the Elixir of Life. "The old birds are very hardy," he remarked "and we do not know of one dying from old age. Death is almost invariably due to accidents." Vigour in action is another characteristic. An angry bird can kick with all the effectiveness of an amiable and well-developed mule.

Unquestionably there is practically no limit to the area of country in Australia suitable for ostrich breeding, and the trade which would result from systematic farming would provide a valuable asset to the Commonwealth. Inquiries are being made into the subject by probable growers in New South Wales, who realise that the work already done is proof that the industry may well be extended. In Western Australia a company has started operations near Geraldton, and there is no reason why every State should not in time get a handsome return from the feminine fancy for feathers.

INSTRUCTION IN VITICULTURE.

In pursuance of the policy of the Department of Agriculture to afford proper training for youths intending to make their living from the land, buildings are now in course of erection at the Hunter Valley Viticultural Station, Raymond Terrace, to accommodate up to 10 lads, who wish to learn as much as possible on the subject of viticulture. At this station the department raises annually a very large number of grape vines grafted on to stocks which are resistant to Phylloxera. These are then distributed to various applicants throughout the State. It is expected that the buildings will be ready for the "apprentices" about the middle of July. Applications for admission will require to be made at an early date. Copies of the regulations on the matter and of the form of application may be obtained from the Under-Secretary, Department of Agriculture. The apprentices will be given a year's practical training for the fee of £5 for the first six months, the second six being free, if the apprentice proves satisfactory.

THE WOOL TRADE.

SUCCESSFUL AUCTION SALES.

On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday last the second of the monthly series of wool sales was held in the Sydney market, when 12 firms of selling brokers submitted catalogues aggregating 17,396 bales, of which 14,380 bales were realised at auction. In previous years the winter sales were mainly supported by new clip wools from Central Queensland; but since the Brisbane market has jumped into prominence a large number of important clips, that previously came to Sydney for realisation, are now sold in the northern centre. Fortunately, through a variety of causes, autumn shearing in the north-western and central-western districts of this State has developed concurrently with the falling off in supplies from Queensland. Thus, while the Sydney market is deprived of a number of Queensland new clips at a time of the year when supplies are very light, New South Wales comes along with newly-shorn wools that form attractive catalogues, and keep the premier selling centre well to the fore in the "off season." It is a noticeable feature of the wool receipts this season that there has been a decrease of 13,879 bales by boat and an increase of 13,060 bales by rail, much of which has been added to by autumn shearing and crutching.

The offerings this week were attractive for the time of the year, the bulk of the newly-shorn clips coming from the Narrabri, Moree, and Walgett districts, with consignments also from Brewarrina, Coonamble, Gulargambone, and Warialda. Some of the clips were short-stapled; as this was the first season of autumn shearing in some cases, being only of six months' growth. There, however, was a very fair proportion of well-bred lines, showing good-length, and in bright, attractive condition. Occasional parcels were rather dusty and seedy. Crutchings were in evidence; also some nice lines of lambs' wool. Queensland was fairly represented in both greasy and scoured; in fact, the highest price in the grease was secured for a line from Clermont, while a line of 54 bales from Richmond (Q.), made top price in scoureds.

Having attractive offerings and in good volume, naturally there was a large attendance of buyers. The supply position of wool and general excellence of trade conditions made the success of the auctions a foregone conclusion. Medium and faulty wools, that became a drug in the market at the opening of the weekly season, made no advance over previous rates; scoured crutchings and faulty locks were also dull of sale. While that was so with those descriptions, there was no uncertain tone with regard to well-grown greasy and scoured wools, also bulky dead wools and lambs' wool, fine-haired lines showing the greatest appreciation. The market ruled par to 5 per cent. above previous auctions for well-grown greasy and scoured, 5 to 7½ per cent. for dead wool; medium and faulty grades being firm, while scoured crutchings and faulty locks were lower.

Rates current for the principal descriptions of staple may be given as follows:—

SOME OF THE SALES.

On the opening day of the sales this week three catalogues totalled 6287 bales, of which 5368 bales were cleared at auction. The offerings mainly comprised early shorn clips and crutchings, and a fair display of scoureds. Some of the clips showed nice condition and good length, while others were short, and in some cases more or less dusty. The scoureds included some well prepared parcels from Queensland and New England. It was a strong market for all good greasy and scoured, but faulty parcels, especially burry crutchings, were dull of sale. The highest price for greasy was /13, obtained for 11 bales sup com w e of Kooroogama (Moree); and /21½ for scoured, paid for 9 bales 2nd com of the Woolamurra (Q.).

Four catalogues were submitted on Wednesday, aggregating 5558 bales. The realisations at auction totalled 4578 bales. Included in the offerings were some autumn-shorn clips from the north-west of good length, and in attractive order, but many lines were deficient in length; also some representative lines from Queensland. In scoureds there was a fair display from Queensland, including some super parcels. The market maintained the strong tone of the opening day for all the better descriptions of the staple, and was unchanged with regard to faulty. Greasy sold to /12½ for 12 bales of CV over Alice over Dale (Bathurst), and for 34 bales of MM over Looanga from Bendemeer (New England). Scoureds sold to the top price of the series, namely /22½ paid for 54 bales A e of ELJ and S over Crendon, from Winton (Q.).

The auctions were brought to a close on Thursday, when five catalogues were submitted, aggregating 5550 bales. Of these 4571 bales were cleared from the rostrum. The offerings comprised a good selection of new clip wools in the grease from the north-west, a fair selection of lambs' wool, and some crutchings. There was a moderate display of scoureds. The market reflected the sound features of the previous two days' sales. Greasy sold to the highest of the series, namely, /13¼, paid for 14 bales A w e of 1911 over B plus M over Huntley, from Clermont (Q.), a well-bred staple of good average length. Scoured sold to /22 for 9 bales of CF over Auteuil from Saltern (Q.).

OFFERINGS AND SALES TO DATE.

The offerings and sales (by auction and private treaty) effected by the various selling houses from July 1, 1910, to date, compared to the corresponding period last year, have been as follows:—

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

In Melbourne the market has been more than usually quiet, supplies are exceedingly light, and most of the buyers have been away during the past two weeks in Brisbane and Sydney. The next auctions in Brisbane are fixed for opening on Tuesday, June 13. The quantities of wool catalogued and sold in interstate centres to date compare with last season as follows:—

LONDON SALES AND PREDICTIONS.

The London May sales opened on Tuesday last, and now that it is evident that the "tremendous" increase that manufacturers were "warned" against right along the line by some English journals, from July to December, is not on the spot, the trade is operating with the greatest confidence. It is evident enough to-day that supplies, especially of fine-haired wools, are well within requirements, consequently our late cables report a rise of ⅛ in merinos above the rulings for March. It is interesting to note that the London "Economist" colonial wool correspondent is not now insisting on the 200,000 to 300,000 bales increase predicted with so much assurance and persistence during the greater part of the Australian selling season. "Increases" are still being harped upon, but in a very roundabout way. In the London "Economist" of February 25 last the writer states:—

> Among users of wool at Bradford and in the West Riding the question is: Will the home trade be able to absorb at about present values the increased supplies of colonial and South American wool which are sure to come upon the market during the present year? Many think that (taking into account the magnitude of the increase and the signs of a lessened demand from the Continental section of the trade and the continued depression in the woollen and worsted industries of the United States) values have not yet touched the bottom. Of course, it is admitted that the fall in the value of tops since last September has been of a very substantial character. To take but one example, a merino top of 64's quality which last autumn was worth 25½d., has, during the last three weeks, been bought in considerable quantities at 23d. At least temporarily this has proved to be the lowest price, and some top-makers who, when things were at their worst, refused to sell under 23½d., are now asking 25d., but without being able to obtain any orders. Many good makers are still quite willing to accept 23½d. Nor is this surprising; for unless there is an early and great improvement in business throughout the U.S.A., that section of the trade will take much less colonial wool than was the case last year. Up to the present from Australia and New Zealand United States operators have taken fully 110,000 bales less than they did up to the same date of 1910, to which must be added about 8000 bales, for at the last London auctions they took only 4000 bales compared with 12,000 bales taken by them at the corresponding auctions of 1910. Here, then, the trade has some figures which should suggest caution. To these must be added the increases from Australia, South Africa, and South America. Of course, it is for the trade—I mean the home trade—to reckon up the pros and cons of the situation, and estimate its probabilities. Amongst experts great difference of opinion obtain as to the probable sizes of the Australian, South African, and South American increases. As to the Australian, opinions differ widely; for whilst some put it down at about 90,000 bales, others think that it will not fall below 200,000 bales. As to that from South America, one high authority thinks it will amount to 40,000 bales, equal to about 100,000 or 120,000 bales Australian on account of the greater weight of each bale. Then there exist wide divergencies of opinion as to the chances of a speedy revival of the woollen and worsted industries of the United States. To me the prospects seem to be about as bad as ever. . . .

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

Fair quantities of wool have been received by rail and boat for the time of the year during the past week. There has been an increase in the receipts by rail for the current statistical year of 13,060 bales, and a decrease of 13,879 by boat, compared to the corresponding period last season. The quantities for the week and totals for the season are as follows:—

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Three vessels have cleared the Sydney Customs since last week's review with wool for the United Kingdom and foreign ports, totalling 594 bales, of which the 21 bales for Japan were wool tops from the Botany Combing Mills. The vessels with quantities for the week, and total for the season to date, compared to the corresponding period last year, are as follows:—

BITTER PIT.

STATE AND FEDERAL MINISTERS.

MELBOURNE.—The Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Graham, has expressed astonishment at the decision of the Commonwealth Minister to postpone any arrangement with the States for the investigation of the disease of bitter pit in apples until the theory as to the nature of the disease put forward by Dr. Jean White and Professor Ewart had been tested. "The main investigation," he added, "is only being delayed unnecessarily. This new theory could be inquired into as a part of the general investigation. The Commonwealth first suggested the inquiries to the States, and now that we come along with a proposal for such a thing they put it off for a mere theory. Personally I think it is all moonshine. I have been a practical orchardist, and I know what bitter pit is. This new theory attributes the disease to a poisonous substance. Well, there was none of this near my orchard and yet I had bitter pit on several occasions on five or six varieties of apples. The disease has baffled the scientists of Germany, England, and America, and it is not likely that they all would have missed discovering the cause if it had been anything so simple as the substance in spraying mixtures."

As a result of the investigation made during the past year by Dr. Jean White and Professor Ewart, they have come to the conclusion that bitter pit in apples is due to spraying with arsenate of lead. At a meeting of the Royal Society on Thursday Professor Ewart read a paper on the subject, prepared by Dr. White and himself. Professor Ewart said his part had been almost entirely to guide and advise practically all the laboratory investigations, and the major part of the field work had been done by Dr. White. Investigations showed that the pit was more numerous on the shaded side of the apple, and on fruits with a southern aspect. It had not been found in orchards where spraying was not used, and their observations suggested that it was caused by the entrance of poisonous substances used as insecticide and sprayed over the fruit. Their observations had been chiefly at the Burnley Gardens, where arsenate of lead was used as a spray. Their attention had been directed chiefly to that material, and apples rubbed with arsenate of lead took four or five weeks before showing signs, so that the form of poison was very slow. In chemical tests of bitter pit they had found indications of metallic lead, and this suggested the possibility of poison entering the fruit. This could be lessened by using coarser grained arsenate of lead.

SCIENTISTS MISTAKEN.

EXPERIENCE IN NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

Advices from Wanganui state that with reference to the Melbourne cable announcing the supposed discovery of bitter pit in apples, Mr. Williamson, late Government Inspector of Orchards, expresses the opinion, based on 40 years' experience in fruit-growing and experimenting in regard to fruit diseases, that the Melbourne scientists are mistaken in attributing the disease to codlin moth spray.

He says that bitter pit is caused by a microscopic fungus, and has been common amongst apples in the Wanganui district 50 years. Spores of the fungus are capable of being carried many miles, and drop upon fruit when packed. One contaminated apple will affect a whole case in three weeks.

Mr. Williamson says that when the spores first appear on the surface of the fruit a certain proportion of Bordeaux mixture will destroy it, but after they have penetrated the fruit spraying is no use.

FLEMINGTON SALEYARDS.

The Lord Mayor, in company with the Comptroller of Assets, Mr. J. N. Breden, visited Flemington saleyards on Thursday, and made a close inspection of the whole of the surroundings. The question of remodelling and subdivision was gone into very fully, and in terms of the council's policy, arrangements have been made to put in hand forthwith many necessary improvements which will give increased accommodation, and thus considerably facilitate the disposal of stock. The improvements forecasted will take about six months to complete.

HAY IRRIGATION AREA.

HAY.—At the bi-monthly meeting of the Hay Irrigation Trust the water overseer reported that the area watered during March was 523 acres and during April, 745 acres. A letter was read from the Under-Secretary, Department of Agriculture, stating that the Minister had now approved of the erection of a new pumping plant, to serve the area, and that instructions had been issued accordingly. This new plant will be placed in a more advantageous position on the river, and will considerably lessen the cost of pumping, besides enabling the Trust to water a much larger area than they can now do. There is a large area of land within the area which is not at present irrigated, and a petition had been sent into the Trust by the dairymen on the area, asking that this land should be used for the purpose of giving each holder the right to apply for from four to five acres of dry lease for every acre of irrigated land held by him. The Trust decided to comply with this request if it were practicable, and the matter was deferred, at the suggestion of the president, to enable a scheme to be drawn up for the disposal of this land. In the meantime each lessee is to be asked to state what area of dry land he requires. Three applications for irrigation blocks were granted, of a total area of 37 acres.

FINE WOOLS AND CLOSER SETTLEMENT.

PARKES.—At the meeting of the Parkes branch of the Agricultural Bureau, Mr. Thomas Hamilton, of Wilga, read a paper on "Sheep." He said that the production of fine wools would receive a serious check by the increase of closer settlement, as the smaller settlers would turn their attention to cross-breeding for market purposes, and cross-breeding would became fashionable for no other reason than that the small settler would have to grind every penny out of the land he could get to make a living off a small area. Dealing with the blowfly question, Mr. Hamilton advanced the theory that sheep were "blown" not because they were dirty from various causes, but because of some unhealthy excretion from the skin, and he pointed that very dirty sheep often escaped, while comparatively clean ones were "struck." He advised the freer use of salt-lick, using coarse salt in place of rocksalt, and adding one part sulphate of iron to ten or twelve of salt. When sheep had been blown the treatment he had found to work very well was:—(1) To shear off the wool close to the skin, and use a fairly strong dip solution rubbing it well in. He had used kerosene and found it much better than turps or tar. A strong solution of bluestone was effective, but discoloured the wool, and gave it a harsh feeling. Mr. Hamilton was accorded a vote of thanks for his paper.

INSPECTION OF POTATOES.

LAUNCESTON, Friday.

At the Agricultural Conference, at Ulverstone, a resolution was passed—"That a potato inspection certificate, granted at the port of shipment, be sufficient to pass through the port of entry, and no further inspection should be necessary."

DAIRYING.

HAY.—At the monthly meeting of the directors of the Hay butter factory the secretary and manager reported that 13,589lb of cream had been sent in during April, equivalent to 6742lb of butter. It was decided to pay suppliers 7½d per lb on the commercial test basis. The local sales of butter did not absorb all the production, and over a ton of butter had to be exported.

MILTON.—The output of the Milton butter factory for April was 56,640lb net. Cheques to suppliers aggregate £1796. The output shows a falling-off of over 10 tons, as compared with March.

WOLUMLA.—The output of butter at the South Wolumla Co-operative Creamery for the month of April was 42,956lb, which realised £1655. Suppliers were paid net cheques amounting to £1431. The manufacturing charges averaged 1½d per lb. Owing to the cold weather conditions existing, supplies are decreasing.

EXPERIMENT PLOTS.

WOLLONGONG.—Mr. Makin, of the Agricultural Department, visited the experiment plots on Sir William M'Millan's farm during the week, and obtained the following results:—Millet, Manchurian, white, manured, 7 tons 11cwt 1qr 20lb per acre; same, unmanured, 9 tons per acre; millet, Manchurian, yellow, manured, 8 tons 8cwt 2qrs 8lb per acre; same, unmanured, 5 tons 11cwt 1qr 20lb per acre; maize, for ensilage, Yellow Dent, manured, 18 tons 7cwt 3qr 12lb per acre; same, unmanured, 16 tons 8cwt 2qr 8lb per acre; Red Hogan maize, 14 tons 14cwt 1qr 4lb per acre; Marlbro Prolific, 16 tons per acre; Yellow Moruya, 12 tons 14cwt 1qr 4lb per acre; Golden King, 16 tons 8cwt 2qrs 8lb per acre; Hickory King, 8 tons 14cwt 2qr 24lb per acre. The maize plots may be looked upon as a success, as the dry weather experienced at planting time was much against them. The millet plots did remarkably well, and the plot that turns out so well in results without manure as against manured plots has, no doubt, received some manure at an earlier period, which has not become available until this season.

Mr. Langley, manager of the farm, has quite recently completed a very large ensilage stack in which both millet and maize were included. The stack was built according to departmental ideas, and has now settled down into a very neat compact mass, and in one of the largest in the district. A very convenient method was adopted to hoist the fodder on to the top of the stack, a whip stick being found most convenient. It was simply operated. Further experiments are to be conducted on the same plots with wheat, oats, and rye for winter fodder.

MEETINGS OF FARMERS.

WEST WYALONG.—The south-western district council of the Farmers and Settlers' Association resolved that agricultural machinery, implements, and other requisites of primary production should be admitted into the Commonwealth duty free, also that in view of the large amount of road repairs necessitated by the overloading of narrow-tyred vehicles the provisions of the Width of Tyres Act should be enforced as much as possible. A resolution that the proposal to give adult suffrage in connection with shire elections be strenuously opposed, the same being described as a socialistic attempt to capture the shires, was carried, but not without dissent.

PASTURES BOARDS.

COONABARABRAN.—The following gentlemen have been elected unopposed to the P.P. Board:—Messrs. S. A. Blackman, H. W. Copeland, G. Hosking, D. M'Gregor.

QUEANBEYAN.—Messrs. James Cunningham, W. F. Rutledge, G. C. P. Circuitt, and J. M. McIntosh have been re-elected unopposed as directors of the P.P. board.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BLACKTOWN.—Stanhope Park, the residence of Mr. S. Pearce, was submitted to auction, and passed in at £8000. The property comprises 1000 acres improved. Several farmers have completed sowing the hay crops, but there are many acres yet to be sown. Some, who neglected fallowing, are unable to plough till rain falls. The shortage of farm and orchard labourers is pronounced. Tomatoes and beans still continue to be plentiful locally, which is quite unusual for the month of May.

COOMA.—While in Sydney recently, Mr. G. Lesmond, secretary Cooma branch of the P.L.L., interviewed Mr. Trefle, Minister for Agriculture, who asked him to make inquiries as to the vacant Crown lands suitable for an experimental farm.

GULGONG.—Mr. M. H. Reynolds, Government Agriculture Inspector, delivered a lecture in the Town Hall last night on the treatment of soils, cultivation methods, and kinds of wheat suitable to the district. Mr. Reynolds also conducted sowing operations at the Bellambi Experimental Farm (Mr. A. Croft's). Mr. Reynolds was particularly fortunate, as rain fell immediately after the seed was sown.

MOREE.—Mr. J. E. Hassall, the newly appointed chairman of the land board, was welcomed yesterday by Mr. A. B. Zlotkowski, on behalf of the legal profession and the land agents, before the commencement of the day's sittings.

11,500 SHARES FOR PUBLIC SUBSCRIPTION.

A NEW COMPANY TO SUPPLY MANLY WITH ELECTRICITY.

The present electrical works at Manly commenced operations in December, 1907, and since that time the business has increased to such an extent that the plant is now incapable of supplying the demand. In the short space of four years Manly has doubled its population, and the call for electricity for lighting, heating, and power has increased in proportion. The proposed additions are to cost about £2500, and the plant's capacity would then be 320,000 units. This means an approximate annual profit of £2060, or a 12 per cent. dividend on £15,500 called up capital. The capital is to be £20,000, divided into 20,000 of £1 each. 11,500 are offered for public subscription, payable 5s on application. Prompt action is necessary to secure some of these shares. The secretary and registered office are at 1-4 Imperial-chambers, O'Connell-street, Sydney. Prospectus are also to be had there. The new company is to be called the Manly Electric Supply Company, Ltd.—Advt.

SOCIAL.

After several weeks of bright, sunshiny weather with warm temperatures, which made Sydney quite an ideal place, we are now experiencing a sudden change, with cold wind and rain, the latter being most acceptable for all garden-lovers. Socially the week has been rather dull, only two or three large afternoon teas and dances having taken place, and the winter season promises to be comparatively quiet.

Her Excellency the Countess of Dudley and Adeline Duchess of Bedford have signified their intention of being present at Mr. Sousa's first band concert in Sydney on Monday evening at the Town Hall.

A most enjoyable dance was given by Mrs. W. P. Martin at her residence, Eynesbury, Edgecliff-road, on Wednesday evening, as a farewell to her son, who is leaving shortly for Queensland. As most Sydney people know, Eynesbury (the property of Sir Albert Gould) is most charmingly situated, and commands a most beautiful view of the harbour, besides being admirably suited for entertaining. Unfortunately the storm which passed over the city about 11 o'clock prevented the guests from going into the garden between the dances; but within everything was bright and beautiful, and the large verandahs all enclosed and lighted with Chinese lanterns. Mr. and Mrs. Martin received their guests in the drawing-room, which was decorated with a profusion of roses, asparagus fern, and pot plants, and were assisted by their son, Mr. J. Martin. In the hall were masses of arum lilies and their handsome foliage, also an arch of ivy, from which was suspended a hanging basket of ferns. The ball-room, which is really a large verandah with a special floor made for dancing, and therefore, always cool, was draped with pale blue muslin and a tracery of smilax and illuminated with Chinese lanterns, the effect being charming. Supper was served in the billiard-room, and here the scheme of colour was red, the handsome and brilliant pointsettia blossom being used for decorating the large table and a number of smaller ones, whilst the red poppy shades over the lights and the touch of red given by the dainty red bon-bons on the tables, combined to make a delightful picture. Yellow jonquils decorated the table, where refreshments were served during the evening. The hostess wore a handsome dress of mole grey satin charmeuse, with a beautiful steel bead embroidered net tunic, the yoke finished with a band of gold lace. The guests, numbering about 120, were all young people, and dancing was carried on with the greatest spirit all the evening. Amongst those present were Captain and Mrs. Verney, Captain Bruen, R.N., the Misses Knox, the Misses Anderson, Miss Burdekin, the Misses Dorothy and Marjorie Owen, Miss Joyce Allen, Miss Nell Knox, Miss Donkin, Miss Leeper, Miss Laidley, Miss von Arheim, the Misses Macarthur, the Misses Morton, the Misses Gordon, Miss Campbell, the Misses Griffiths, Miss Tregarthen, Miss Brunton, Miss Lamb, Miss McCarthy, Miss F. E. Stephen, the Misses Bowker, Miss Bayley, Miss Kidd, Miss Rabett, Miss Levy, Miss Palmer, Miss Thompson, and Messrs. Burnside, Weigall, Rabett, E. Milner Stephen, H. Massie, Thompson, Kidd, Dowling, Maxwell, Robinson, Flag-Lieutenant Seton, Captain Dumaresq, Dr. Edgar Stephen, Messrs. J. B. Simpson, Innes, J. Gordon, Dibbs, Browning, Barraclough, Binnie, Rich, Grant, Moss, Nathan, Leonard Stephen, Morton, Nicholas, Fosbery, and Manning.

A large and fashionable gathering assembled at the Royal Sydney Golf Club, Rose Bay, on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. T. Busby, Mrs. G. Massey, and Mrs. Wardell entertained about 200 friends at afternoon tea. A band played a bright selection of music, and many of the guests enjoyed a game of tennis. The hostesses received on the upper lawn, where tea was served on numerous small tables, and although the afternoon was grey and cloudy, it was beautifully cool and pleasant. Amongst those present were Sir G. B. Simpson and Lady Simpson, Lady and Miss Barton, Lady and Miss Fairfax, Mrs. and Miss Donkin, Mrs. Wade, Mrs. and Miss Richardson, Mrs. H. Mort, Mrs. Hemsley, Mrs. and the Misses Cox, Mrs. and Miss MacCallum, Mrs. Alec Busby, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Maughan, Mrs. and Miss Merewether, Mrs. Warry, the Misses Busby, Mrs. Ashburton Thompson, Judge and Mrs. Docker, Colonel Foster, Mrs. Digby Smith, Mrs. Russell Dowling, Mrs. Tregarthen, Mrs. H. Maxwell, Mrs. Metcalfe, Mrs. Arthur Macarthur, Mrs. Stuart Osborne, Mrs. Antill, Mrs. Sydney Christian, Mrs. Littlejohn, Mrs. and Miss Keys, Mr. Q. L. Deloitte, Mrs. Salusbury, Miss Stephen, Miss Rose Scott, Mrs. Selwyn, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. and the Misses Griffiths, the Misses Mann, Mr. Massy, Mr. Wardell, Mr. Merewether, Mr. Donkin, and many others.

Invitations have been issued to a "Matutinal reception," at the Town Hall, to welcome Mr. John Philip Sousa on Monday morning.

The Congregational Church, Croydon, was prettily decorated on Tuesday, April 25, on the occasion of the marriage of Miss Amelia Abbott, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Abbott and Mrs. Abbott, of Chepston, Summer Hill, to Mr. Allen B. Young, son of the late Rev. R. W. Young and Mrs. Young, of Burwood. The Rev. Walter Mathison, B.A., performed the ceremony. The bride, who wore a charming dress of white satin, veiled with ninon and trimmed with pearl and crystal trimmings, with a wreath of orange blossoms and veil, was given away by her brother, Dr. G. H. Abbott. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white lilies and roses, which, with a diamond and sapphire ring, was the gift of the bridegroom. The chief bridesmaid, Miss Isabel Abbott, sister of the bride, was in white Marquisette over white satin, with sprays of pale pink and pale blue satin roses. She also wore a black picture hat, trimmed with pale blue and pale pink satin roses, and carried a bouquet of pale pink roses, with pale blue streamers, the latter and a gold bracelet being gifts from the bridegroom. Little Miss Dorothy and Master Joe Abbott (niece and nephew of the bride) were also in attendance. The bridegroom's presents to the two were a gold bracelet and gold sleevelinks respectively. Mr. Ernest Cook acted as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at Chepston, the residence of the bride's mother, about 100 guests being present at the wedding breakfast, which was served in a marquee on the lawn.

The Montefiore Home annual ball committee held their first meeting at the Montefiore Home on Monday afternoon, when it was arranged to hold the ball at the Sydney Town Hall on Tuesday, June 27. Mrs. George J. Cohen was elected president, Mrs. George Michaelis and Mrs. L. M. Phillips, hon. treasurers, and Mrs. L. Packer and Miss A. Harris, hon. secretaries.

The Southern Districts Picnic Racing Club has become one of the most popular institutions of its kind, and in a few years has developed beyond the most sanguine expectations of the original promoters. The entertaining at several picnic clubs is done by the local families, who make up parties and vie with each other as social entertainers, but the Southern Districts Club, which has made Cootamundra its headquarters, does all the entertaining, a plan which is generally appreciated. Despite a rather long spell of dry weather, and the consequent dust, there was a large attendance of the public at the club's race meeting last week, and at the dances. Mrs. Mat Sawyer, of Eulomo, the wife of the president, was, as usual, the hostess, upon whose shoulders many social responsibilities fell, and Mrs. Kenneth Mackay, the wife of Colonel Mackay, M.L.C.—patron of the club—fulfilled many social duties. Amongst the many ladies present were Mrs. W. A. Holman (wife of the Acting Premier), Mrs. Ben Osborne, of Redbank, with Miss Valerie Willis, Mrs. and Miss Lorimer (Melbourne), Miss Madden (Melbourne), Mrs. Wallace Robinson (Abingdon), Miss Maude Robinson, Mrs. P. W. C. Palmer, Miss Campbell Hare, Mrs. Stuart Murray (Sydney), the Misses Doris and Jean Payton (Sydney), Marjorie Forest (Burwood), Mrs. D. H. McFarlane (Glensloy), Mrs. and Miss Henderson (Wyalong), Mrs. J. A. Gibb, Miss Roberts and Miss Barber (Currawang), Mrs. Prell (Gundowringa), Misses A. and M. Maslen and Miss Mills (Carwoola), Mrs. Stanford (Marsdens), Mrs. J. J. Baxter (Conapaora), Miss Waddell (Yass), Miss Elsie Bernard (Yass), Mrs. J. D. Hill (Yass), Mrs. C. Massy (Yass), Mrs. Wyatt De Little (Temora), Miss Owen (Sydney), Mrs. Maddrell, Mrs. Frank Manning, Mrs. C. R. Westmacott (Bethungra Park), Miss Gibson (Goulburn), Miss Deeley (South Australia), the Misses Masson, Mrs. Hall, Miss Mackay, Miss Florence, Mrs. A. Bragg, Mrs. J. and Miss Garry (Binalong), Mrs. Phil Julian (Yass), the Misses Watson (Greenbank), the Misses O'Donnell (Mingay), and Mrs. W. Robertson (Melrose).

The marriage of Miss Nesta Mackenzie, third daughter of the late Mr. Charles Edward Mackenzie, of Goulburn, with Mr. E. Jones, of Brisbane, was solemnised by the Venerable Archdeacon Bartlett at St. Saviour's Cathedral, Goulburn, on Wednesday, May 3, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The bride was given away by her stepmother, and wore white duchesse satin and a veil of Limerick lace and wreath of orange blossom. She was attended by her two sisters, the Misses Brenda and Lorna Mackenzie, and two little nieces, the Misses K. and L. Harris. The two elder ones were dressed in white muslin trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion, and white hats with ruching of pale blue satin, and carried shower bouquets of autumn leaves. The two children also wore white muslin trimmed with lace and insertion, and carried crooks with garlands of pink roses and ribbon streamers. Mr. Roseby was best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's stepmother, Gaerloch, Goulburn, amongst those present being Miss Lucy Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. W. Harris, Mr. Norman and Mr. W. Mackenzie, the Misses Jones, Mrs. Lucien Faithfull, Miss Faithfull, Miss Guerri De Lauret, Mrs. Foster Rutledge, Mrs. C. Shaw, Miss Isabel Hay, Mrs. Arthur Chisholm and the Misses Chisholm, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. and Miss Moriarty, the Misses Twynam, Mrs. and Miss Cropper, Mrs. and Miss West, Miss Purse, Miss Boissier, Miss Gunn, Mr. Max Chisholm, Mr. W. Chisholm, and Mr. Leslie Allison. Later Mr. and Mrs. Jones left for Moss Vale, where the honeymoon was spent.

Miss Lily Mackenzie Seton, whose farewell concert took place in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Tuesday evening, and was so largely attended, wore a charming dress of rose-pink satin, the white ninon tunic being bordered with brown fur. She was the recipient of many beautiful floral tributes—one, a bouquet of lilies-of-the valley, being the gift of Mrs. Alex. Gordon, whose interest in this talented young singer is well known. Miss Seton leaves shortly for England, and carries with her the good wishes of a large circle of friends.

A wedding was solemnised at St. Philip's Church, Sydney on Tuesday, May 2, when Edward Percy, youngest son of the late Major W. Dwerryhouse, of Cheshire, England, was married to Hannah V. G., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Plumb, of North Sydney. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Maclean, assisted by Rev. George Middleton. The bride wore ivory charmeuse veiled with a handsome overdress of Limerick lace (the gift of a friend), with a Malines yoke edged The bride wore ivory charmeuse veiled with a handsome overdress of Limerick lace (the gift of a friend), with a Malines yoke edged with seed pearls. A tulle veil and wreath of orange blossoms completed a charming toilette. She carried a shower bouquet of Japanese chrysanthemums with tulle streamers, which, with a diamond ring and turquoise bangle were the gifts of the bridegroom. The bridesmaid, Miss Irene Bray, wore a pale mauve charmeuse veiled with pale pink ninon, edged with tiny pink bebe roses, and a large mob cap to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, and wore a pearl and turquoise pendant, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Hooper was best man, and Master V. Miller (nephew of the bride) acted as page. A reception was afterwards held at the Wentworth Hotel by the bride's parents, and about a hundred guests were entertained. Many beautiful presents were received.

St. Peter's Cathedral, Armidale, was the scene of a wedding on Tuesday afternoon, May 9, when Miss Edith Madeline, fourth daughter of the late G. P. Morse, of Esrom House, Armidale, was married to Mr. Ernest Keith, third son of the late R. G. Hays, of Stonybatter, Uralla. The Cathedral, which was beautifully decorated by friends, was filled with well-wishers, and the Ven. Archdeacon Lewis performed the ceremony. The bride wore embroidered net over white satin, and a wreath and veil, and carried a handsome shower bouquet, which, with a beautiful sapphire and pearl pendant and chain, was the gift of the bridegroom. The Misses Eva Chard, Gladys Hays, and Dorothy Rickman were bridesmaids, all dressed in white chiffon over white satin, with Juliet caps to match. They carried shower bouquets, and wore gold enamel brooches, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Ivan Morse was best man, and Mr. Basil Morse groomsman. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the residence of the bride's mother, where the wedding breakfast was served.

The marriage of Miss Muriel Massey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Massey, Thurburn, North Sydney, with Robert Forbes-Young, of Barossa, Hobart, took place at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Tuesday evening, April 18, the ceremony being performed by the precentor, Rev. E. N. Wilton. The service was choral, and the church beautifully decorated with palms and white flowers for the occasion. The bride wore a handsome dress of ivory satin charmeuse, trimmed with pearls and old Duchesse lace, and a beautiful lace veil to match, arranged over a lace cap and orange blossom. Her shower bouquet and diamond and emerald ring were gifts from the bridegroom. She was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Lilian Willgoss and Miss Ruby Bentley, both of whom wore white ninon over satin, with silver and crystal trimming, and silver bugle caps, swathed with silver tissue. They carried pale pink bouquets, which, with pearl earrings, were the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Max Way was best man, and Mr. Sydney Massey groomsman. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Massey received the guests at the A.B.C. Rooms.

A wedding was celebrated at the Tabernacle, Enmore, by the Rev. G. T. Walden, on April 24, when Norman, son of Mr. James Hunter, Normanhurst, Strathfield, was married to Lynda, only daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. Charles Breadly. The bride wore a beautiful dress of Brussels lace made over ivory satin charmeuse, the bodice inlet with fine lace, and trimmed with crystal and pearl passementerie. The long train was beautifully embroidered with pearls and crystals, and was suspended from the shoulders, and a coronet of orange blossoms held the tulle veil in position. Her shower bouquet and Nankow gold bangle were gifts from the bridegroom. She was attended by four bridesmaids—Miss Hunter (the bridegroom's sister), the Misses Myra Smith, Arlie Smith, and Muriel Priest (cousins of the bride). Two little children (the niece and nephew of the bridegroom) were trainbearers. Mr. Milton Hunter was best man, and Mr. Arthur Palmer groomsman. During the signing of the register Miss Scobie sang d'Hardelot's "Because." After the ceremony Mrs. Breadly held a reception at Sargent's rooms, Market-street, and entertained about 90 guests at the wedding breakfast. Later Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hunter left for their honeymoon.

A wedding was solemnised at St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, on Thursday evening, April 27, when Mr. Arthur Coventry, youngest son of the late Mr. William Coventry, of Lyndhurst station, Armidale, was married to Miss Lilian MacDougall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. MacDougall, of Grafton. The Rev. John Ferguson officiated. The bride wore ivory white charmeuse, with an overdress of embroidered ninon and crystal fringe. The bridesmaids, Miss Betty MacDougall and Miss Henn-Gennys, were dressed in white ninon-de-soie over satin, and wore small gold-beaded Juliet caps. They carried posies of flowers, which, with the pearl pendants and chains, were the gifts of the bridegroom. After the ceremony a reception was held at Baumann's Cafe. Mr. Hill acted as best man, and Mr. Marcus Beresford as groomsman. The bride and bridegroom left by motor for Medlow Bath, where the honeymoon was spent.

At St. Philip's Church, Wynyard-square, on Wednesday, April 26, the marriage took place of Vivian Athol, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, The Lookout, Port Hacking, to Kathleen Florence, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Colee, of Miranda. The Rev. Canon Bellingham officiated. The bride wore a dress of ivory silk draped with lace, and a coronet of orange blossoms, and long tulle veil, and carried a shower bouquet of choice white blossoms, her only ornament being a necklet of pearls and brilliants, the gifts of the bridegroom. She was attended by three bridesmaids, the chief being Miss R. Davis, sister of the bridegroom. The younger bridesmaids were Miss Aisie Evans (cousin of the bridegroom) and Miss Nellie Colee (sister of the bride). The gifts of the bridegroom were gold cable chain bangles. Mr. Falcon Colee was best man. A reception and the wedding breakfast were held at Petty's Hotel, and subsequently the bride and bridegroom left for their wedding trip.

At the North Sydney Congregational Church on Saturday afternoon, April 15, the marriage of Mr. Herman H. H. Laird, B.A., LL.B., youngest son of the late Mr. G. Laird and Mrs. M. Laird, of Banksia, Croydon, with Miss Elsie E. Patton, elder daughter of the late Mr. F. A. Patton and Mrs. E. Patton, of Bingarra, Lavender Bay, was solemnised by the Rev. F. V. Dowling, B.A. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Kemball Cook, wore a pretty dress of cream paillette silk and ninon, with pearl trimmings, and carried a bouquet of choice white flowers. Her handsome veil was worn over a coronet of orange blossom (both lent for the occasion by two recent brides). Miss Isabel Patton (sister) was the only bridesmaid, and wore pale blue crystalline, and carried a bouquet of pink cactus dahlias, which, together with a pearl and turquoise brooch, were the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. H. Douglass, B.A., acted as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the A.B.C. Rooms.

On Wednesday, April 26, a wedding took place in All Saints' Church, Albion Park, the bride being Miss Florence L. Chapple, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Chapple, of Kenilworth, Marshall Mount, and the bridegroom, Mr. Frederick A. Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Allen, of West Dapto. Rev. W. O'Neill officiated. The bride wore a handsome white satin dress with a wreath and veil, and carried a shower bouquet, which, with a diamond ring and gold bangle, were gifts from the bridegroom. She was attended by four bridesmaids, the Misses Edith and Ettie Chapple (sisters of the bride), and Netta and Dorris Allen (sisters of the bridegroom), all of whom wore silk dresses, with hats to match. They each carried a shower bouquet, and wore a gold bracelet, gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. P. Webb acted as best man, and Mr. A. Emmett as groomsman. After the ceremony the guests adjourned to Kenilworth, where the wedding breakfast was served. Later on Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for the Blue Mountains.

St. Stephen's Church, Sydney, was the scene of a wedding on Friday, April 28, when the Rev. John Ferguson solemnised the marriage of Miss Myrtle Gibb, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Gibb, Berthong station, with Mr. Cyril Thompson, second son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, formerly of Lochiel, Mudgee, and now of Strathfield. The church was artistically decorated with palms and flowers. The bride wore ivory satin charmeuse with a ninon tunic, embroidered with seed pearls and bordered with pearl drops. The bridal veil was of Limerick lace, and fell from a band of beautiful lace across the head, held in place with clusters of heather. She also wore the bridegroom's gift, a handsome pearl and diamond ring, and held a choice shower bouquet. The one maid of honour was Miss Rubie Connell (Cootamundra), and the groomsman Mr. Percy Sykes (of Scone). Miss Connell was in ivory charmeuse veiled with saxe blue, the skirt caught up on the left side with a large pink rose. The headdress of blue tulle fell back over clusters of tiny pink roses. She carried a pink shower bouquet, and wore a painted medallion set in a double row of pearls, suspended from a fine gold chain, the gift of the bride and bridegroom. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. David Gibb held a reception on the new balcony at the Hotel Australia, and about 150 guests congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Thompson. After viewing the many and handsome wedding gifts displayed in the supper-room, the guests were entertained at a wedding dinner served in the drawing-room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with trails of pink roses and greenery, a wedding-bell and lucky horseshoe being suspended from the arch. The tables were arranged with pink tulle and sprays of may, intermingled with tall white vases filled with rare pink roses. The bride's travelling dress was of sapphire blue velvet and blue hat.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Luke's Church, Mosman, on Saturday evening, April 15, when Miss Madge Hellmrich, eldest surviving daughter of the late Mr. John Hellmrich, and Mrs. Hellmrich, of Mosman, was married to Mr. George Busby Piddington, fifth son of the late Ven. Archdeacon Piddington and Mrs. Piddington, of Wollstonecraft. The bride wore an ivory duchesse satin dress, embroidered in true lover's knots and a tulle veil (lent by her cousin, Mrs. J. Watson Brown), with a coronet of orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Hellmrich (sister), Miss B. Andrews (niece of the bridegroom), and Miss Doreen Hellmrich (niece of the bride). Mr. Dudley Hellmrich was best man, and Mr. Neil Browning groomsman. The Rev. T. Reeve, of Mosman, officiated. During the ceremony Miss Kathleen Cumings sang "Thro' Love to Light." A reception was afterwards held at the Mosman Town Hall. Later Mr. and Mrs. Piddington left by motor for their honeymoon. Many useful and handsome presents were received.

At the Anglican Church, Cumnock, on April 26, Miss F. Barter, daughter of Mr. Joseph Barter, Cumnock, was married to Mr. George Astill, second son of Mr. George Astill, late of Yallundry. The bride was attended by her sister (Miss M. Barter) as chief bridesmaid. Mr. E. Grimson was best man. The wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's parents, and was largely attended.

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a wedding on Saturday, March 25, when Miss Jessie Anderson, second daughter of the late George Anderson and Mrs. Anderson, of Roslyn, Bay-street, Balmain, was married to Mr. James, third son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lauder, Liberton, Norman-street, Rozelle. The Rev. F. W. Hynes officiated, assisted by the Rev. J. Edwards, M.A. The bride wore white satin charmeuse, veiled with ninon, and an embroidered Brussels net veil, arranged over a coronet of orange blossom, and carried a shower bouquet, which with a diamond and emerald ring, was the gifts of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss Lauder and Miss Ruby Lauder (sisters of the bridegroom). Mr. H. Hall acted as best man, and Mr. W. Miles as groomsman. After the ceremony a reception was held at Sargent's rooms, Market-street.

On Thursday week, at the Casino Roman Catholic Church, the Rev. J. M'Donnell solemnised the marriage of Miss H. Heffernan, eldest daughter of Mr. D. Heffernan of Kyogle, and Mr. C. Alexander, also of Kyogle. The bride wore white silk trimmed with applique, and an overall lace, with a wreath and veil. Miss M. Heffernan was bridesmaid, and Mr. George Alexander best man. The wedding breakfast was held at Horsley's refreshment-rooms, and was a most happy little function.

ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement is announced of Elsie, only daughter of Thomas Besnard, Esq., Fifield, Yass, to Dr. Selwyn Harrison, second son of G. R. Harrison, Esq., Ramona, Beecroft.

A BOOK OF AUSTRALIAN VERSE.

When in the issue of the London "Spectator" of September 5, 1908, a poem of arresting charm appeared above the signature of an Australian poet, until then not known as such, the tribute paid by the reader to the merits of the verse would probably have been divided with speculation as to her other output, and her claim to significance in Australian literature. A little volume just issued by the Australasian Authors' Agency, Melbourne, "The Closed Door and Other Verses," by Dorothea Mackellar, offers something in the way of answer. It has been observed that since the date mentioned Miss Mackellar's work has found ready space in the "Spectator," and some of the poems included in the collection now issued have that warrant for reproduction. Miss Mackellar is essentially Australian in her point of view, but perhaps the first interest of her work for the reader of Australian poetry jaded into utter weariness by its stereotyped effort after Australian atmosphere is in the fact that she does manage to escape the inanities of the typical versifier of our country. And that is no small thing to her credit, for the poor showing of Australian literature to-day, and of Australian verse in particular, is attributable in no small degree to the obsession in its exponents that they must be Australian at all costs. It is the cost that matters really, for that effort after typical expression has loaded us with a ghastly burden of bush rhymes and backblock ballads, and all their hopeless impedimenta of scenario. The jingle of Mr. Kipling has a heavy responsibility in the fact that innumerable imitators have imposed his style upon the incident of the Australian hinterland, with fearsome effect.

It is a refreshment, then, to come upon Australian poetry not so insatiably insistent upon an outward Australia uninformed by the imagination. Miss Dorothea Mackellar's little book offers one of the too rare examples of verse that is quite Australian, but is also intent upon the light that never was on land or sea, Australian or otherwise. It is not by any means great poetry. But at its best it is easy and accomplished verse. It has grace, and a sense of words, and considerable facility of expression. The examples before us are necessarily unequal, and in some of the poems Miss Mackellar unfortunately adopts the all-Australian attitude complained of. Thus she does not hesitate to invoke the flight of flying-foxes, and brolgas, neither of which has any poetic value, while her fidelity to an Australian picture constrains her to almost fatal insistence, in the midst of a really beautiful poem, upon "the evil Darling pea." But these are not characteristic faults, and if she fails to read much significance of poetry into the Sydney trams, or Hyde Park, Miss Mackellar's book offers many an instance of graceful imagining. The verses which give the book its title make an undoubted effect by virtue of artistic restraint, in which respect also "The Santa Maria," "The Gates of El Dorado," and the first of two Japanese songs are excellent. Of the more typically Australian poems, "My Country," "Settlers," and "The Coorong Sandhills," have the real ring, while best of all are "Colour," well-visioned and musical verse, and "The Open Sea," lines which, fulfilling the function of poetry as suggestion, reach happy climax in the final stanza. Looking from her window upon various manifestations of the strip of sea visible, at last—

> Far and far I look—ten miles?
> No, for yesterday
> Sure I saw the Blessed Isles
> Twenty worlds away.

Miss Mackellar's little book is very welcome as an example of Australian poetry of the better sort.

AMUSING STREET SCENE.

Yesterday afternoon an amusing spectacle was witnessed in the city. A lady, laboriously wending her way along, chanced to drop a small parcel she was carrying. Now, under ordinary circumstances, a woman can pick a bundle up, but if you happen to be abnormally fat you can't.

Wouldn't you feel nice standing on a crowded sidewalk seeing your parcel being kicked about, unable to pick it up, waiting for some gentleman to perceive the situation and come to your assistance? And the chances are that the man would smile a very unwelcome smile, and say something to the effect that he "knew you couldn't stoop!"

Well, a similar experience may be yours if you are abnormal, and do not take steps to prevent it by reducing your present bulk and weight. This may be accomplished by dieting, exercising, or by taking "Formettes." These marvellous little tablets will reduce you much or little, and without causing so much as a wrinkle or the least sign of flabbiness. They improve the appetite, and have been found of the greatest value as a remedy for dyspepsia, sick headache, indigestion, difficulty in breathing, palpitation of the heart, and other troubles that fat folks suffer from.

Formettes are sold by all Chemists and Drapers at 5s 6d per carton, or may be obtained direct from S. H. HENSHALL, Chemist, 246 Clarendon-street, South Melbourne.

STATE FERRIES.

HELPING THE GOVERNMENT.

ENDORSEMENT OF THE PROPOSALS.

A very large deputation of residents of the north side of the harbour—mostly from the Willoughby district—waited upon the Acting Chief Secretary (Mr. Flowers) yesterday for the purpose of expressing their endorsement of the Government proposal to initiate State ferries.

The Mayor of Willoughby (Alderman Forsyth) said that in view of the widely-recognised congestion he was quite in accord with the proposal of the Government to create State ferries between Dawes Point and M'Mahon's Point, and Bennelong Point and Milson's Point, being of opinion that the time had arrived to relieve the congestion pending the construction of permanent connection by bridge or tunnel. He referred to the extreme danger to the tram approaches at Circular Quay, where grave congestion existed. That morning he had heard that the Sydney Ferries, Limited, were about to add to its fleet five new boats, but if the move was with a view to relieving the congestion he considered it a very Irish way of doing it. He trusted the Government would carry out its proposal, which would greatly benefit the people in the northern suburbs.

Mr. Maloney referred to the very dangerous congestion which existed under present arrangements. More boats running on the present lines would only add to the danger, but ferries between Dawes and M'Mahon's Points, and Bennelong and Milson's Points would greatly relieve the situation.

A number of other gentlemen endorsed the Government ferries, as by starting them from Dawes and Benelong points Circular Quay would be greatly relieved of congestion.

Mr. Flowers said he was extremely obliged to them for having come to the assistance of the Government and advisory committee which was trying to devise a scheme which would get rid of the great dangers they had emphasised.

THE SHEFFIELD CHOIR.

The presence of the Sheffield Choir in Australia is now within appreciable distance. Their remarkable tour of the British Dominions beyond the seas has evoked great enthusiasm in Canada, and even much more in 18 of the great cities of the United States, which they were induced to visit by the vigorous appeal of Mr. Charles Taft of Cincinatti. Dr. Charles Harriss has reason to feel satisfied with this colossal initiation of his scheme of musical reciprocity. He has had to temporarily leave the choir to Dr. Henry Coward and return rapidly to London at the request of His Majesty the King, to conduct the Empire Concert, in the Royal Albert Hall, which took place yesterday. However, he will meet his Yorkshire friends in Sydney in June. They will leave Vancouver next Friday, by the Zealandia, under the care of Captain Phillips, an energetic and affable Australian. Their first port of call will be Brisbane, and, according to Mr. H. N. Southwell, who visited that city last week, they will receive the warmest of welcomes.

At a meeting of citizens last week, at which the Premier, Mr. Denham, and the Mayor, Mr. Diddams, were present, it was decided to receive the visitors on the Government steamer, Lucinda, at Pinkenba, on the morning of June 10. They will proceed by that vessel to Brisbane and receive a true Australian welcome in the beautifully situated Botanical Gardens of that city. Having only one day to spend there, and, also to give two concerts, their time will be fully occupied as they must re-embark on the Zealandia the same evening. However, the Premier, anxious that some of the visitors should see the inland beauties of Queensland, has offered to convey a number of the gentlemen, by train, to Wallangarra, as Government guests, thus enabling them to have a flitting view of the famous Darling Downs. Arrangements for the reception in Sydney are on an exalted scale. The visitors will be met at the heads on Monday June 12 by a number of steamers, each with a band, and conveying members of musical societies, the Yorkshire Society and the citizens' committee. On the same evening a conversazione and dance will be given by the Royal Sydney Philharmonic Society, in the Town Hall, when upwards of a thousand guests are expected to be present. The festival will commence on Tuesday, June 13, with a performance of the "Messiah," and will continue without interruption till Tuesday 20th, when a Coronation Empire Concert will be given. Each day will be taken up with entertainments, and given fine weather the Sheffield Choir should have a memorable stay in Sydney. Mr. Southwell has been working with zeal and enthusiasm, and is very grateful for the generous assistance he is receiving in every State.

The Acting Premier wrote yesterday to the Citizens' Reception Committee, informing them that approval had been given to their suggestions, regardig official entertainments of the Choir.

They will be taken for an outing to Hawkesbury Agricultural College, and on another day provision will be made for them to view the sights of Sydney by means of tourist trams.

ALL NATIONS' FAIR.

The directors of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital yesterday entertained at the Town Hall those who had assisted in the recent all-nations' fair and art union. Several hundred ladies were present. The chairman of directors of the hospital, Professor Anderson Stuart, presided. He said the directors realised that the ladies and others had had such strenuous work during the fair that it would be better to allow them to gain their normal strength again before calling them together to hear the result of their labours and to partake of a cup of tea and enjoy a little music. That the fair was going to be a success, to use a vulgar term, right from the jump was never doubted. But day by day, as the fair proceeded, their most ardent expectations were more than realised, and now he was able to tell them that the sum of upwards of £6000 would be handed over free of encumbrance for the Nurses' Home, and with the amount they already had in hand and the Government subsidy there would be available for the object a total amount of over £13,000. (Loud applause.) The professor then mentioned the names of those who rendered signal service, and he paid special mention to the splendid organising efforts of Mr. Epps, secretary of the hospital. The directors had decided to present each lady connected with the movement with a souvenir in the form of a brooch.

The Lord Mayor said he was sure the effort made on this occasion would live long in the memory of everyone who assisted. (Applause.) He was glad their efforts to do so had been crowned with success.

Professor Anderson Stuart said they had not lost any time in applying the money towards the object for which it was gathered. Already meetings of those who designed houses and those who built them had been held, and they could rest assured the nurses would have the additional accommodation at the earliest possible moment. (Applause.)

A musical programme was gone through, and afternoon tea was served.

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. publish the "Melodie Valse," an arrangement for the ballroom, of Rubinstein's world-popular "Melodie in F." This arrangement will probably suit dancers, but lovers of music, who believe in "a place for everything, and everything in its place" cannot but fail to be chagrined at the employment of the famous pianoforte piece in the manner indicated. It is but another step in the same direction, to find "With Verdure Clad" similarly misadapted.

THE SILVER LINING.

When one is "bowed down by weight of woe," or is suffering from pain or sickness, it is difficult to believe that anything in the world is fair, or that

> Of every cloud, the other side
> Is bright and shining.

Yet we are all here to make the best of things, and must endeavour to > . . . turn our clouds about,

> And always wear them inside out
> To show the lining.

It is surprising the number of people who go on suffering from day to day from common ailments such as rheumatism, gout, lumbago, neuralgia, backache, sciatica, blood disorders, anaemia, indigestion, biliousness, jaundice, sick-headache, general debility, gravel, stone and bladder troubles, who do not suspect that the trouble is due to disorder or inactivity of the kidneys and liver. The reason that treatment by Warner's Safe Cure, in cases of the complaints mentioned, has proved so successful is the specific action of the medicine upon the kidneys and liver. When the kidneys and liver are acting efficiently the poisonous or waste matter, the retention of which causes the suffering, is duly removed from the system through the natural channels. Warner's Safe Cure is merely an aid to nature. If you are a sufferer try the effect of Warner's Safe Cure, and see if you cannot speedily disclose the silver lining of your cloud.—Advt.

DR. SHELDON'S NEW DISCOVERY

"IT KEEPS THE PHLEGM LOOSE, AND GUARDS OFF ALL DANGER."

"I have used Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery on several occasions," writes Mrs. John Braye, Lambton-road, Lambton, N.S.W. "My children are subject to Croup, so I always keep it in the house, and as soon as I hear them the least bit croupy I keep giving it to them until they are quite well again. It is the best medicine I have ever used for Croup, as it keeps the phlegm loose, and guards off all danger."

A WONDERFUL CURE.

"For three or four years I was very ill," writes Mr. A. W. Colling, 108 Regent-street, Camperdown, N.S.W. "During this time, not for a single hour did I feel myself. My throat was always itching and tickling. I was coughing all day and all night. It was a dry, hacking cough, and I could cough up nothing. My breathing was strained and heavy, and people said I was going into consumption fast. I looked hollow-cheeked and haggard, and lost considerable weight. All day long while at work I felt weary and depressed and when I came home of an evening I would have to go straight to bed. My breathing was often so bad I could hardly speak. Sometimes I was laid up for days at a time. Chemists' and Doctors' medicines did me no good, and I took them by the gallon. As the days went on I grew worse and worse. The coughing shook me to pieces, and gave me bad headaches. One day when I was lying in bed feeling very bad I read about Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery. I sent for a bottle, and obtained an almost immediate benefit. It loosened the cough so that I could get rid of a lot of phlegm. The itching in the throat got less and less. I took five bottles in all during a period of about three weeks, and by that time was absolutely cured of every sign or symptom of my cough, and began to put on weight rapidly. I have never been ill since. Considering I was ill for four years, to get cured in three weeks seems to me to be remarkably quick work."

SUFFERED WITH CROUP FOR THREE MONTHS.

"I have found Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery will cure Croup, when a dozen other medicines have proved complete failures," writes Mrs. Lydia Hardy, Railway-street, Cook's Hill, Newcastle, N.S.W. "Before I used Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery my little girl was suffering with croup for three months. She was so bad that when she coughed she would go black in the face, and tears would roll from her eyes. I often thought she was going to choke. She was worst at night. I really did not know what to do to ease her. I had tried so many different things, and they had all failed to give any relief. I was in despair, when a friend happened to call, and she recommended me to try Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery. I did so, and after I had given her a couple of doses the cough was less frequent, and she slept for a little. She was completely cured in a very short space of time, and I honestly believe that Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery saved her life. I can recommend it to anyone suffering with chest complaints or colds of any kind, and it is especially valuable for children."

AN OBSTINATE COUGH.

"I was in the Sydney Hospital for six months in connection with an operation for appendicitis. When I left the hospital I found I had a chronic cough," writes Miss Florrie Turner, 416 Riley-street, Surry Hills, N.S.W. "It never left me, though I coughed more at night than in the daytime. I could very seldom go out, owing to the continuous coughing. After about a couple of months a friend of mine at Stanwell Park told me about Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery, and I commenced to take it. After a few doses the cough began to disappear, and after I had taken only one bottle it disappeared altogether, and two years have passed since then, and I have had no return of it in any shape or form."

COUGHED ALL NIGHT.

"My little girl, aged 14 months, had a very bad cough for months," writes Mrs. C. Hyde, 38 Bull-street, Cook's Hill, Newcastle, N.S.W. "She would cough all night long, and she was so hoarse she could hardly cry, though the tears would run down her face. I really did not know what to do with her, as I had tried many different cough cures, but she did not seem to get any better. One day a friend called to see me, and saw how bad my little girl was, and asked me if I had tried Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery, and said how good she found it for her own little girl, who had a very bad cold. I got a bottle of it, and found it splendid; it stopped her coughing almost at once, and before she had finished one bottle she was completely cured. She has never had a return of that nasty croupy cough since, and it is many months ago now."

THE BEST FOR CHILDREN

DR. SHELDON'S NEW DISCOVERY has won the confidence of the parents and the love of the children by its wonderful curative effects upon the throat, chest, and lungs.

Children are particularly susceptible to coughs and colds, and the medicine which always cures and protects them from dangers is the one the mothers recognise as best.

It is a wise mother who prepares for trouble in time of peace. She places DR. SHELDON'S NEW DISCOVERY on the shelf, and rests secure against all winter dangers, knowing well she has the remedy which will protect her little ones against the vicissitudes of cold weather.

AND GROWN FOLKS, TOO.

"I THOUGHT HE WOULD BURST A BLOOD VESSEL."

"My little boy had a croupy cough for some time," writes Mrs. E. E. Bull, Beaumont-street, Hamilton, Newcastle, N.S.W. "He would cough all night long, and he used to cough so hard that I thought he would break a blood-vessel. I was really frightened for him, because he is not strong, and the continual coughing made his chest quite raw. I gave him different cough remedies, but he did not seem to improve in the least. One day a neighbour gave me half a bottle of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery, and told me to give him some, and see if it would do him any good. After he had taken the first dose he was greatly relieved, and stopped coughing. I continued giving it to him three or four times a day, and he was completely cured in a week's time. It also seemed to strengthen him, and make him eat. My other two children had an attack of the same complaint, but Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery cured them in no time. It is the best remedy that money can buy."

"IT CURED HER AT ONCE."

"I wish to tell you of the good Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery has done for my two little children," writes Mrs. M. E. Glover, Donald-street, Hamilton, Newcastle, N.S.W. "They were both suffering with hard coughs on their chests for some time. The eldest child was the worst, she had a croupy cough, and would cough all night long. The poor child's chest was quite raw with the constant coughing, and she would go black in the face. I really thought she was going to have a bad time of it. I tried many different cough remedies, but without doing the children any good whatever, until a lady recommended me to try Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery. I gave it to them, and it worked wonders, especially for the eldest girl. It cured her at once. I can fully recommend Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery to anyone suffering with coughs and colds."

CROUP AND BRONCHITIS.

"The last three years," writes Mrs. G. Marriott, Chloride and William streets, Broken Hill, N.S.W., "I have always kept a bottle of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery in the house. My boy used to suffer very much with Croup, and we have often had to send for a doctor in the middle of the night, thinking he would choke before morning. Also my little girl suffered with Croup and Bronchitis very badly, but since I used Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery I have never had a doctor to them. My little girl's Bronchitis is cured, and if ever I find the slightest sign of Croup on either of them, I give them a dose of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery, and it stops it at once."

GIRL CURED OF BRONCHITIS.

"My little girl, aged 6 years, had bronchitis very badly for some time," writes Mrs. J. N. Rae, Thosby-street, Wickham, Newcastle, N.S.W. "She was so bad that when she coughed she would tremble all over, and go black in the face, and many a time she fell down through weakness and the strain of coughing. When she took these turns I was terrified for her. I really thought she would choke, and I did not know what to do for her, as we had tried a great number of cough cures, but she would cough just the same, and was still taking those nasty turns. One day I was reading the paper, and saw an advertisement of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery for coughs; so I thought I would give it a trial, and bought a bottle. The first dose seemed to cut the phlegm, and made her cough easier and less frequent, and made her sleep all night without coughing once. I continued giving her the New Discovery, and in a week's time she had taken one bottle, and was completely cured. I can fully recommend Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery as a reliable cure for all coughs and colds, and especially for children, it being nice to taste, and they take it willingly."

YOUNG MAN SUFFERED WITH A HARD COUGH.

"My son, who is a young man, suffered with a very hard cough on his chest for years, and wheezing on the chest also," writes Mrs. C. Crotty, Little Dennison-street, Carrington, Newcastle, New South Wales. "He would cough all night long, and would go purple in the face, and his eyes would swell up, almost bursting out of his head. Many a time I was frightened he would burst a blood vessel. He would shake like a leaf. I took him to all the doctors, and gave him numerous cough cures, but he remained just as bad as ever. I really think I would have lost him but for the timely aid of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery. I was strongly recommended to give him this remedy, which I did, and after the first few doses his cough was eased, so he obtained a little sleep, which he needed, and after he had taken six bottles of this splendid cure he was quite well, and he had lost all that nasty wheezing, and that hard cough had disappeared. He is now one of the healthiest young men in Newcastle."

The herds supplying our Condenseries are Australia's finest dairy breeds, fed on beautiful verdant pastures. The milking is done under the Company's inspection, absolute cleanliness and care being the motto. The milk is scientifically purified and pasteurised on the dairies, and receives up-to-date treatment at the Condenseries. Everything that science can suggest in every detail is effected to produce a high-class product in a rich, wholesome, and pure state for the consumer; and that our methods are successful is evidenced by the highest awards being obtained at the Franco-British Exhibition against the world's milks, and at Australian Exhibitions. The public throughout Australia have confirmed this judgment by their extensive patronage.

STANDARD CONDENSED MILK is more economical than fresh milk; being pasteurised, it is safer for infants and all domestic uses, and is always on hand. Used in tea, coffee, or cocoa, it gives a better flavour, and when mixed with cold water it makes a delicious and nourishing beverage; for all culinary purposes it takes the place of fresh milk with advantage.

LOANS THAT HAVE HELPED.

Eloquent Testimony

FROM

SATISFIED BORROWERS.

A business very different to the usual conception of money-lending concerns is successfully carried on by Messrs. Caldwell and Watt, at 9 and 11 Castlereagh-street, near Hunter-street, Sydney. Exorbitant interest and sharp practices are repugnant to them. Their clients are secure from injustice and greed, and the name of this firm stands out clear among the throng of candidates for the patronage of those requiring financial help, with an unblemished and enviable reputation for favourable terms and just and equitable treatment of customers. And no one is asked to take this statement ex parte or uncorroborated. Below is testimony extracted from a few of many unsolicited letters received from the firm's customers—true expressions of genuine satisfaction with their business methods from people who know, because they have tested them. Names and addresses are only withheld because business is confidential, but the extracts are verified on oath as genuine.

Advances from £5 upwards are made by this firm against household furniture, deeds, life policies, interests under wills, shares, live stock, bond warrants, vehicles, and all reasonable classes of security in town or country. ADVANCES ARE MADE WITHOUT REGISTRATION OR PUBLICITY. Easy terms of repayment are arranged, and interest is reasonable, and reconcilable with the risks taken. If in need of money, have no hesitation in calling on or communicating with Caldwell and Watt. Their advice is at your disposal free. They have helped others, they can help you, and you have the assurance of those who have already been assisted that when you transact business with them you will be treated properly.

READ THE TESTIMONY.

STATUTORY DECLARATION.

I, WILLIAM GIBSON CALDWELL, of 9 and 11 Castlereagh-street, Sydney, in the State of New South Wales, do hereby solemnly declare and affirm :—

1.—That the extracts below are copied word for word (excepting words in brackets) from different letters received in the ordinary course from customers with whom the firm of Caldwell and Watt has done business.

2.—Such letters were entirely unsolicited, and are now in my possession.

3.—Almost all of such letters were received on the closing of transactions with the said customers.

THE EXTRACTS REFERRED TO.

"I am well satisfied with your business methods."

"As they charge 40 per cent. above your quotation, I have no hesitation in leaving them." (This refers to dealings with someone else.)

"Your terms are most liberal."

"I could not or would not expect or get better treatment than I have received from your hands."

"As your terms are so reasonable."

"The loan was exceedingly useful, and you have shown me every consideration."

"Very much appreciate the treatment I have met at your hands."

"I am sensible of the fact that you have treated me very fairly."

"I am perfectly satisfied with the business relations."

"Your last quotation was 25 per cent. less than I have been in the habit of borrowing for." (This refers to previous dealings in another quarter.)

"Once more thanking you, and hoping your business will meet with the success you richly deserve for your goodness to those who are in trouble."

"I take this opportunity, gentlemen, of expressing my warmest and heartfelt thanks to you for the kind and pleasant manner in which you transact your business with clients."

"I can only thank you most heartily for your accommodation when urgently required."

"I take this opportunity of again thanking you for your fairness in terms, etc., which proved of great assistance to me."

"Long ago, but for your help, I would have had to go under; but now, thanks to your aid in time of need, I will soon be on my feet again."

"You have treated me with more leniency and kindness than any of my other creditors."

"Please accept my thanks for fair treatment, and wishing you success."

"As this is the final payment, I take the opportunity of thanking you for the promptitude with which you forwarded the advance required, and also for the business-like manner in which you have treated me since then."

"Am quite agreeable to your terms and conditions, as they are extremely fair."

"I have received several offers from other financial institutions in Sydney, but prefer to deal with the firm whose liberal treatment I approve of."

"I must thank you very kindly for the treatment I have received from you in extending me leniencies when I have been hard pressed."

"Like the two previous loans, has shown me a good dividend, and greatly in advance of the interest charged by you, which was very low."

"I am deeply grateful for your kind consideration to me in this transaction, as in my previous one, and I wish your firm every success."

"The loan was the best bit of money ever I had."

"Must also thank you for most considerate treatment throughout the whole of my dealings with your firm."

"I feel bound to express my utmost satisfaction with the treatment received at your hands."

"In closing the account I beg to express my appreciation of the courtesy and straightforward treatment that I have always received at your hands."

"Must express my appreciation of the fairness and consideration I have always received from your firm."

"Before closing, I must thank you for your kindly consideration during this transaction."

"I thank you for the courtesy shown me by all members of your staff and wish the firm every success."

And I make this solemn declaration as to the matters aforesaid according to the law in this behalf made and subject to the punishment by law provided for any wilfully false statement in any such declaration.

THE IRRIGATION SCHEME.

COMMENDED BY THE MINISTER.

DEVELOPING FRUITFUL AREAS.

MILLIONS OF ACRES IN THE WEST.

Mr. Trefle, Minister for Agriculture, was interviewed by a "Herald" reporter yesterday in connection with the application made by Mr. W. L. Willcox, of the Beanbah and Bundey estates, Coonamble, for permission to put down six artesian bores, with a view to demonstrating the productiveness of the land, and afterwards cutting it up into blocks to suit small settlers.

"It is quite true," said Mr. Trefle, "that an application has been made from my electorate for permission to put down several bores to try an experiment in agriculture. Of course, it is a matter for my colleague, the Minister for Works, to deal with finally, and, if permission is granted, make the necessary conditions to safeguard the public interest; and subject to the conditions which I know the Minister for Works will make, I strongly recommended the proposal to him. I did it for two principal reasons. The first was because I have every reason to believe the gentlemen interested are in deadly earnest, and are going about the project in no half-hearted manner. They are bringing to their aid a large amount of capital, and the best available scientific knowledge the world can give them. I know the country that they intend to operate upon is now held as a sheep walk, and if converted into country that will carry a heavy population, it will be very much more productive than at present. But, apart from this consideration, I view the project as a magnificent experiment in the way of testing the possibilities of irrigation with artesian water.

"As to the possibilities, I think as a practical man that the project will be a success; but that phase of the question does not concern me, as the gentlemen interested must see their way clear or they would not take the risk. But what does concern me principally is the fact that we have millions of acres of similar country, and this project in the great west is one that the whole of the State will watch with interest. If successful, it must add millions of pounds' extra value to the public estate in the artesian basin. If, on the other hand, it be a failure, the experiment will not have cost the State a farthing. I think the gentlemen who are interested in it are to be congratulated upon their pluck and enterprise, and no one wishes them success more heartily than I do.

"From a departmental point of view, if this experiment be carried out it will mean a considerable saving to my department, as I fully intended to have carried out on a considerably smaller scale experiments with bore water on the experimental farm at Coonamble. Pending this private project being put into effect I do not intend to authorise any large expenditure in the direction of carrying out experiments with bore water, as I can find numerous channels in which I can use all the available money other than trying experiments with artesian water, if private citizens are willing to undertake the experiments for us."

IS THERE A COMBINE?

THE RABBIT TRADE.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

A case of considerable interest to those engaged in the rabbit-carrying industry was commenced yesterday at the Central Summons Court, before Mr. Barnett, S.M. There were 480 crates alleged to have been stolen. The case involved four separate charges against John Davis, but, by consent, the one in which he was alleged to have stolen 100 crates, the property of John Paterson, on April 26 last, was heard first. The others prosecuting are Stanley Spain, Oscar Curtis, and Joseph Moore.

Mr. J. P. Sheridan (instructed by Messrs. Biddulph and Salenger) appeared for the prosecution; and Messrs. J. W. Abigail and P. K. White for the defence.

John Paterson, a rabbit exporter, carrying on business at Harbour-street, said that he had been in Sydney since April, 1910, and had bought 2500 rabbit crates. Two thousand of these he had purchased from a Mr. Daniels, and 500 from a Mr. Moore. When collecting his crates at the end of last season witness found a shortage—about 1200. On April 26 he saw about 70 crates on a lorry being driven to Darling Harbour station. He noticed one of them which was made of a special wood and was of a special shape. On going to the station yard with others in the trade witness claimed eight or nine of the crates as his. Witness was shown certain articles at Darling Harbour. One of them was in court. Ther were four altogether (in court) which he identified. Witness added that he and Sergeant O'Dea went to a house in Redfern. In a big shed was one of his crates fully branded. There were two or three of them on the bottom floor. In the loft of the shed was a number of crates branded like those in court, viz., "Glasscoe." Possibly there were 700 or 800 crates there. He identified 40 or 50 crates in the shed as his property. Subsequently witness and others connected with the trade picked out certain crates. Davis was present, and claimed one of them as his, but it was taken away with the others. Over 600 were conveyed to the Regent-street police station premises, of these witness picked out roughly 100 as his.

To Mr. Abigail witness said he knew that defendant carried on a rabbit business, but did not know that he was a member of a firm carrying on a similar business to that of witness. Defendant had told him that he was a member of a firm. Witness instituted the proceedings on his own initiative.

Is there a trust or combine in the rabbit business here?—No.

Have not a number of rabbit firms combined together to monopolise the rabbit export trade?—No.

Have not a certain number of firms (importing and exporting) taken up all the freezing space allotted, so as to shut defendant and others out?—No.

Is not this prosecution part of a scheme of yours and other firms to destroy this man and his firm in competition?—Absolutely no.

Do you know that this man and his firm does from £20,000 to £25,000 worth of business during the year?—No.

Do you know that he has had to apply for special freezing accommodation?—I heard he got the Sandown works.

Witness said it was true that a number of rabbit firms met once a week. It was not a combine.

Will you give me the names of the firms which meet together in this way?—Mr. M'Kenny, Mr. Spain, Mr. Curtis, and Mr. Moore.

Mr. Moore, who was in court, objected to being "dragged into this theatrical display of Mr. Abigail's."

Mr. Barnett: If you don't like it you need not stay.

Witness said that defendant and his firm were not members of the association. The gentlemen mentioned had met and discussed the subject of the prosecution. He had noticed outside in the yard a cart with a number of crates which had been scraped, and now bore the brand of the Orange Freezing Company.

That is Mr. Moore's company, isn't it, and he is one of the prosecutors?—Yes.

Would you be surprised to know that the defendant and his firm have purchased 12,000 crates?—I would, indeed.

The case was adjourned until next Wednesday.

MOTORIST FINED.

At the Water Summons Court on Friday, before Mr. C. N. Payten, S.M., Inspector Trenchard proceeded against William Allshorn, of Lane Cove-road, North Sydney, for having on April 19 last, in Oxford-street, driven a motor vehicle in a dangerous manner. It was stated that defendant rushed his motor car between a cart and a tram, and that the tram conductor was nearly brushed off his car. Defendant, who pleaded guilty, and said that he thought there was room for him to pass in safety, was fined £2 10s, with 6s costs, or in default 14 days' imprisonment.

SCALP WAS BADLY AFFECTED.

"I am more than gratified b the successful results I obtained by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. For several years my scalp was very badly affected with dandruff and scales. My scalp itched terribly at times, and my hair fell out. My coat collar would be actually white with the dandruff that had fallen from my head. My profession being that of a barber, I was particular about having my hair in good condition and was also in a position to try many lotions, etc., for the scalp. These had little or no effect. I had heard so much about the Cuticura Remedies that I was resolved to try them. I shampooed my head with Cuticura Soap twice a week, and after drying my head thoroughly, I anointed parts of my scalp with Cuticura Ointment. I was pleased from the outset, and continued to keep up this treatment. To think that only three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and one-half boxes of Cuticura Ointment rid my head of this annoying trouble, made me feel quite contented. I have now a thick growth of hair, and I am never troubled with any dandruff or itching of the scalp. There is no question but that the Cuticura Remedies cured me. I frequently recommend them to my customers, and they think a great deal of them." (Signed) John F. Williams, 207 Norfolk-street, Dorchester, Boston, Mass, U.S.A., July 22, 1910.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Acting Justice Ferguson.)

LITIGATION ABOUT A BOARDING-HOUSE.

Dickey v Fox.

Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. Perkins, Stevenson, and Co., appeared for the defendant in support of the appeal; and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. T. J. Hurley, for the plaintiff to oppose. The action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury of four at last jury sittings, was brought by Adam James Dean Dickey and Eadythe Dean Dickey against Eva Jane Fox for alleged breach of agreement, by which the defendant undertook to pay plaintiffs £100 if they would relinquish the lease of a boarding establishment known as Rochester, Neutral Bay, and wrongful entry by defendant upon the premises, and depriving them of possession. Plaintiffs also asserted that defendant accepted the liability in regard to certain furniture purchased under a hiring agreement, and any arrears of rent due. Damages were laid at £500.

The defence was mainly that the agreement relied upon was subject to certain conditions undertaken by the plaintiffs, which were not performed; that they had broken a covenant of their lease by getting into arrears with their rent, whereupon the defendant was empowered to re-enter as the original lessee; and that the £100 was not to be paid for the purchase of the business from the plaintiffs, but merely to get them out of possession.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs on the first count of their declaration, with damages £100, and defendant now appealed on various grounds already published. In regard to the ground that appellant was taken by surprise by certain evidence given on behalf of plaintiffs, and that she had discovered fresh evidence which she was not able to procure for the last trial, a number of affidavits on both sides were filed. It was contended on behalf of respondents (plaintiffs) that no case of surprise or fresh evidence had been made out, as at the trial all the facts material to the case were brought out, and it was for the jury to say whether any goods were missing.

After argument,

The Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Pring and Mr. Acting-Justice Ferguson concurring) said he had looked very carefully into the agreement between the parties, and it seemed to him that there was no evidence whatever on which the jury could find that a stage had ever been arrived at by which defendant had made herself liable, contractually, to the plaintiff, and if that was so the whole cause of action failed.

Verdict for plaintiffs set aside and entered for defendants, with costs.

THE BANKSTOWN ALDERMANIC TROUBLE.
AN OUSTER MOTION.

THE SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

Re A. J. Huston (M. Scanlon, respondent).

Mr. James and Mr. Breckenridge, instructed by Messrs. Read and Read, appeared for applicant, John A. Huston; and Mr. Moriarty and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. H. E. M'Intosh, for the respondent, to oppose the application.

This was an application to make absolute a rule nisi by which Michael Scanlon was called upon to show cause why a writ of quo warranto should not be issued to oust him from the position of alderman of the Municipality of Bankstown. The grounds of appeal were:—(1) That a number of votes polled in favour of the applicant were not counted in his favour; (2) that a number of votes were counted in favour of the respondent which should not have been so counted; (3) that the polling booth for the Municipality of Bankstown situated at the Queen's Hall, Pitt-street, Sydney, was not opened at the proper time, whereby certain electors were deprived of a right to vote; (4) that certain electors were refused the right to vote although qualified to do so; (5) that certain electors whose names were not on the roll of electors of the North Ward were allowed to vote; (6) that gross irregularities were committed by the officials in and about the counting of the votes polled at the election; (7) that at the polling booth, Queen's Hall, Pitt-street, Sydney, applicant was credited with two votes, whereas four electors recorded their votes in his favour.

Mr. James said that at the declaration of the poll the result stated by the returning officer, as far as applicant and respondent were concerned was, Scanlon 102, Huston 43. He had affidavits if they could be read showing that certain electors voted for applicant.

Mr. Moriarty objected to the affidavits being read on the ground that it would be destroying the secrecy of the ballot, and also be in contravention of the Electoral Act, 1902, and the policy of that statute. He also contended that the Court had no jurisdiction to allow the affidavits to be read.

Mr. James, on the other side, submitted that although there was a prohibition against a returning officer and his officials disclosing how particular electors voted, there was no restriction whatever upon the elector who chose to state how he voted.

Mr. Justice Pring: It seems to me it would be a very dangerous thing to allow anybody to come forward and make an affidavit which the Court could not possibly say was true or false.

Mr. James: But if the elector swears it, it appears to me that the Court would assume that he was telling the truth.

Mr. Justice Pring: I do not know that.

Mr. James: There must be some way of protecting the electors. I want to refer to several cases in our courts. The question has never been absolutely settled, but I contend that the provisions of the Act providing for the secrecy of the ballot were never intended to bind the voter to secrecy.

The Chief Justice: Of course, there is no penalty imposed upon a voter for declaring for whom he voted, but the question is whether it is evidence in a court of law.

Mr. James: Inasmuch as there is no means of identifying the ballot-paper, the only way was to get a statement from the voter himself.

Mr. Acting Justice Ferguson: He could apply for a recount of the ballot papers.

Mr. Justice Pring: If we allowed these affidavits to be read we should be taking upon ourselves the functions of a returning officer. If you are right, Mr. James, and the affidavits are admitted, a person making an affidavit could be cross-examined, and asked whether he had not voted for someone else at the previous election, and why he had changed his mind.

Mr. James submitted that the voter could not be cross-examined to that extent, but in any case there was no direct prohibition in law against a voter making a voluntary statement as to how he voted.

The Chief Justice said the Court was of opinion that the evidence was not admissible. The whole structure of the Electoral Act as embodied, by reference, in the Local Government Act provided that the secrecy of the ballot should be preserved inviolable. The returning officer and his subordinates might have an opportunity of ascertaining for whom the electors voted, but they were forbidden under a penalty to disclose their knowledge. But it was argued that no such prohibition rested on the voter himself. That was so. An elector was at liberty to disclose for whom he voted, but in a case like this the only evidence which the Court allowed to be given was the total number of votes recorded for the different candidates, and not how individual electors voted. Evidence of the latter sort would be indirectly substituting for the only evidence that could be permitted the verbal statements of the voters, in order to show that the person declared elected was not duly elected. That would be contrary to the intention of the Legislature, even if the evidence was voluntarily tendered by the voter, and it would also be contrary to the decision of the High Court as laid down in Chanter v Blackwood, 1 Commonwealth Law Reports, page 128, that such an inquiry would be outside the proper province of the Court. For that reason, and because it would directly infringe the secrecy of the ballot, which the law so jealously guarded, the testimony tendered on behalf of applicant could not be admitted. As to the other grounds, and particularly the alleged refusal of the votes of four qualified voters, the principle uniformly acted upon by the Court, and which was laid down in Hirsch v Phillips, 3 Commonwealth Law Reports, was that where the number of voters who were not allowed to exercise their franchise could not possibly affect the result of the election it would not sustain an appeal in a matter of this kind.

Rule discharged, with costs.

EX PARTE W. J. GIBSON (W. H. WATSON RESPONDENT).

Mr. James and Mr. Breckenridge, instructed by Messrs. Read and Read, appeared for the applicant, William John Gibson, who sought to oust William Henry Watson from the office of alderman of the municipality of Bankstown on grounds similar to that in the preceding case. Mr. Boyce and Mr. B. B. O'Conor, instructed by Mr. H. E. M'Intosh, appeared for respondent to oppose.

Rule discharged with costs.

EQUITY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson, Chief Judge in Equity.)

CASE FROM WINDSOR.
AN INJUNCTION MATTER.

Green v Hawkesbury Condensed Milk Co., Ltd.

Mr. Leverrier, K.C., and Mr. Edwards, instructed by Mr. N. E. Gregg, appeared for plaintiffs; and Mr. R. K. Manning, instructed by Messrs. William Walker and Son, of Windsor (by their agent, Mr. C. A. Walker), for the defendant company.

This was a motion for an injunction to restrain the defendant company from causing or permitting any water used by it to flow on to the plaintiffs' land so as to cause a nuisance, or for an injunction to restrain defendant company from causing or permitting any water used by it to flow on to the lands of the plaintiff.

The statement of claim set forth that plaintiffs are the lessees of a farm of 60 acres on the banks of the Hawkesbury at Windsor. The defendants carry on business on land adjoining, and the complaint of plaintiffs is that defendants used a large quantity of water in their business, which at one time flowed into the river through a drain on defendants' own land. That drain became blocked about a month ago, and plaintiffs aver that the result is the water has flowed on to their property and done considerable damage, three or four acres being rendered useless for cultivation. The affidavits were of a most voluminous character, but before they had been much more than entered upon the parties came to an agreement to allow the injunction to go.

His Honor therefore by consent granted an injunction as asked until the hearing of the suit.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

EARLE v EARLE.

Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for Hannah Amelia Earle (formerly Pinson), who asked for a divorce from Ebenezer Macartney Earle, on the ground of desertion. The parties were married at Sydney on October 6, 1886, according to the rites of the Wesleyan Church. Evidence in support of the petition having been given, his Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

MALCOLM v MALCOLM.

In this suit Henry Samuel Malcolm prayed for the dissolution of his marriage with Catherine Jane Malcolm (nee Brandon), on the ground of desertion. The marriage took place at Sydney on 23rd September, 1901, according to the rites of the Church of England. His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

LENNARD v LENNARD.

Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for Ann Lennard, formerly Powell, who asked for a divorce from William Russell Lennard, on the ground of desertion. The marriage took place at Mount Kembla on 5th April, 1892. Evidence having been given in support of the issues, his Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

VEAL v VEAL.

In this suit Mr. R. W. Fraser represented the petitioner, Lily Veal (nee Moss), who prayed for a divorce from Albert Edward Veal, on the ground of desertion. His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months, respondent to pay the costs of the suit.

COTTERILL v COTTERILL.

Albert Edward Cotterill sought a divorce from Minnie Cotterill (nee Frost) on the ground of desertion. Mr. S. Stewart appeared for the petitioner. The parties were married at Sydney on April 15th, 1905, according to the Church of England rites. After hearing evidence his Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

FULTON v FULTON.

Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for George Thomas Fulton, who sought a dissolution of his marriage with Beatrice Fulton, formerly Walsh, on the ground of desertion. The marriage took place at Brisbane, Queensland, according to the rites of the Presbyterian Church. Coming to Sydney about nine years ago, they lived together until September 1907, when respondent left, according to petitioner's evidence, and refused to return home. His Honour reserved his decision.

Mr. H. de R. O'Reilly, barrister-at-law, was agreed to as chairman.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray.)

TOWNLEY v SMITH.

This case was not concluded.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse and juries.)

Mr. Herbert Harris was Crown Prosecutor

ACQUITTED.

Frank McCarthy was found not guilty of a charge of maliciously wounding George Jefferson at Annandale on March 11.

Mr. J. C. Gannon, instructed by Mr. Richardson Clarke, appeared for the accused.

A FIRST OFFENDER.

Henry Alfred Long pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the shop of Augustus George Thomas, at Sydney, and stealing therefrom certain articles and £2 in money. He also pleaded guilty to receiving two stolen watches.

On the first charge accused was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment, the sentence being suspended under the first offenders provisions of the Act. On the second charge he was bound over to appear for sentence if called upon.

(Before Judge Rogers.)

APPEALS AGAINST MAGISTRATE'S DECISION.

Re Arnold Duffy.

Mr. H. B. Bignold, instructed by Mr. H. E. McIntosh, appealed on behalf of Arnold Duffy against Duffy's conviction at the Hornsby Police Court on February 21 last, on a charge of stealing a halter, valued at 1s 6d, whereby he was fined 5s. Mr. L. Gannon appeared in support of the conviction. His Honor upheld the appeal, and quashed the conviction.

LAND APPEAL COURT

(Before Mr. H. A. G. Curry, President, and Messrs. C. Brandis, and W. Houston, Commissioners.)

Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Crown

A BELLINGEN APPEAL.

Mr. Mason appeared for E. L. Elliot, in an appeal against the decision of the local land board in respect of his application for the appraisement of the capital value of the land in his conditional purchase, No. 1910.

The Court reserved its decision.

ORDERED TO STAND OVER.

The appeal of R. C. Kitto against the finding of the Narrandera Land Board in respect of the ownership of certain improvements on Edwin Charles Pope's settlement lease No. 1910-8, Narrandera, was ordered to stand over until the next sitting of the Court at Sydney.

DECISION RESERVED.

Mr. Coffey, instructed by Mr. E. P. Bassett, appeared in support of the appeal of F. R. C. Hopkins against the decision of the Carcoar Land Board, overruling a certain objection taken in respect of their dealing with the reference by the Minister for Lands, for the appraisement of the annual rental for the second period of ten years of his improvement lease, No. 811, of 13,233 acres, parishes of Belubula and Beaufort, in the County of Bathurst.

The case was heard together with an appeal by the Minister for Lands in respect of a certain decision given by the same land board in connection with a reference for the appraisement of the annual rental for the second period of ten years of Francis Rawdon Chesney Hopkins' improvement lease, No. 811, of 13,233 acres, in the same two parishes.

A reference, in which the Minister for Lands was the appellant, was also heard in conjunction with these cases, and was made under section 59 of the Crown Lands Act of 1895, for determination in respect of a certain decision given by the Carcoar Land Board in connection with a reference for the appraisement of the annual rental for the second period of ten years of Hopkins' improvement lease, No. 811.

The Court reserved decision.

APPEAL FROM COWRA.

Mr. Pike appeared for A. J. Bryant in an appeal against the recommendation of the local land board in respect of an application to convert special lease No. 2546, Cowra, into an additional purchase (No. 1910-11, Cowra).

The Court held that there were certain statements in the land board's finding which, whether correct or not, were not based upon evidence placed before them. There was some vagueness in respect o fthe evidence but the Court wished, if possible, to avoid the delay of remitting the case back to the board for further investigation. The real question was whether about 600 acres of wheat land, assuming it to be of average quality, would be excessive. The preponderance of evidence was that it would not, and the more generous view was the one the Court endorsed.

The Court sustained the appeal, and remitted the case to the land board for action. It was directed that the deposit lodged with the appeal should be refunded.

Mr. Pike, instructed by Mr. Ellis, appeared for W. Jordan in an appeal against the recommendation of the local land board in respect of his application to convert his special lease No. 2146, metropolitan, into a conditional purchase (No. 1910-2, Metropolitan).

The Court reserved its decision.

NEWCASTLE.

BULLION RETURNS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

At the Sulphide Corporation Cockle Creek works during the week ore was treated producing bullion containing 1856 ounces gold, 32,631 ounces silver, and 407 tons lead.

WEEK'S COAL EXPORT.

The total quantity of coal exported from Newcastle during the week ended to-day amounted to 84,611 tons. Of this quantity 47,930 tons were sent to foreign ports, whilst Commonwealth and New Zealand ports took 36,681 tons. In view of the fact that Pelaw-Main colliery is still idle, these figures are highly satisfactory.

COAL AND OTHER EXPORTS.

The following vessels were cleared at the Newcastle Customs-house to-day:—Alabama, s, for Melbourne, with 2650 tons coal and 105 tons bunkers; Kirkdale, s, for Sourabaya, with 6834 tons coal and 176 tons bunkers; Antares, shp, for Tal Tal, with 2592 tons coal and 11 tons coal for ship's use; Barrabool, s, for Warrnambool, with 900 tons coal and 120 tons bunkers; Bellambi, s, for Auckland, with 1400 tons coal.

THE TRAINING SHIP SOBRAON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In common with many others I am relieved to see, by several letters in your columns, that the question of the abolition of the abovementioned valuable institution is at last likely to receive some public attention, and I hope, before it is too late, that the public will insist that this very important matter shall not be decided by the prejudiced opinion of any one man.

I know the ship is looked upon with dislike in certain quarters, and its destruction has been plotted for many years (as has been apparent from the reduced numbers on board); but if there are any good reasons why it should be abolished there can be no reason why we, the public, should not know them and also judge them.

As a member of the public, who paid for this ship and has besides spent huge sums on it, I say we ought to insist that the evidence shall be placed before us before anything is decided upon, instead of which it seems to be proposed that the deed shall be done as quietly as possible, and we be only informed when it is too late to do anything and the ship is sold.

I am, etc.,
WILLIAM P. MACE.

DOCTOR'S TEST OF FOOD.

A doctor in Kansas experimented with his boy in a test of food, and gives the particulars. He says:—

"I naturally watch the effect of different foods on patients. My own little son, a lad of 4, had been ill with pneumonia, and during his convalsecence did not seem to care for any kind of food.

"I knew something of Grape-Nuts and its rather fascinating flavour, and particularly of its nourishing and nerve-building powers, so I started the boy on Grape-Nuts and found from the first dish that he liked it.

"His mother gave it to him steadily, and he began to improve at once. In less than a month he had gained about 8lb. and soon became so well and strong we had no further anxiety about him.

"An old patient of mine, 73 years old, came down with series stomach trouble, and before I was called had got so weak he could eat almost nothing, and was in a serious condition. He had tried almost every kind of food for the sick without avail.

"I immediately put him on Grape-Nuts with good, rich milk and just a little pinch of sugar. He exclaimed when I came next day: 'Why, doctor, I never ate anything so good or that made me feel so much stronger.'

"I am pleased to say that he got well on Grape-Nuts, but he had to stick to it for two or three weeks; then he began to branch out a little with rice or an egg or two. He got entirely well in spite of his almost hopeless condition. He gained 22lb in two months, which at his age is remarkable.

"I could quote a list of cases where Grape-Nuts has worked wonders."

"There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

CARRIGAN.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Jane Carrigan, who died May 13, 1910.

It's just twelve months ago to-day
Since our dear mother passed away.
Dear mother, we've travelled long together,
Through sunshine and through cloudy weather,
Life's rugged paths we've passed along,
And always hand in hand have gone.
Oh, how our hearts are breaking
When we think of how you died,
To think you could not say good-bye,
Before you closed your eyes.

Inserted by her loving and only son, daughter, and son-in-law, Tas, Ella, and John.

CHAPMAN.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Johanna Chapman, who departed this life, May 14, 1904. May her soul rest in peace. Inserted by her loving sons and daughters.

We miss thee from our home, dear mother,
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.
We mourn for you, dear mother,
But not with outward show,
For those who mourn sincerely
Mourn silently and low. At rest.

THE VERDICT OF PRACTICAL USE.
Mr. E. R. H. Pickering, the well-known sporting authority, writes: "It will afford me great pleasure to place on record my appreciation of the splendid 3-h.p. INVINCIBLE engine you made for me nearly 18 months ago. It has never given me any trouble, and it is a splendid piece of workmanship. It is MOST RELIABLE. I knew nothing whatever about engines when I got it, and yet I have never had any trouble with it. It consumes very little oil, and is therefore cheap to run. The speed is about 8 miles per hour, that is, without extending the engine."

SATURDAY, MAY 13, 1911.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

It has often been said that to the category of books which are not books there should be added another of readers who are not readers. In every case the answer to the question book or no book depends on the ability of the person who is handling it to detect the spirit of humanity behind the tables of facts and figures. The same observation is true of the returns of the census, the record of which was given to the public during the week. We cannot, of course, pretend to rival those displays of civic patriotism which are said to take place during the numbering of American towns. We have neither the American love of records for their own sake, nor the American energy to goad us on. Nor can we pretend that the hope of benefiting the State revenue has caused many people to register themselves, or to help to gather in the stragglers. The idea that the Government is something apart, which can do everything, and suffer everything, is sufficiently firmly implanted among Australians to induce them to leave all such matters entirely to Civil servants. The census figures have, however, an interest for us which is quite apart from competitions between States or towns. They provide, even without analysis, the most reliable evidence of the changes which have been going on within the State during the past ten years, and of its present position. They throw an invaluable light on the recent legislation for land settlement, and provide the clearest possible commentary on the criticism that has been made on our prospects for the future. The predominance of Sydney in population is one of the facts which we now take for granted. In some respects it is a subject for congratulation. It is a sign of health that people are leaving the city and going to live on the higher ground of the northern suburbs. The resumption policy has evidently done good work in forcing the tenants from the resumed areas into brighter surroundings. Again, the growth of the city is a symptom of the prosperity of the whole State. People could not come here either for work or for pleasure unless there was an immense body of wealth behind them in process of development. But when the total of the inhabitants of Sydney is compared with that of the rest of New South Wales the reasons for congratulation are not so clear. We are not faced here with the problem of stunted, nervous townspeople in the form in which they are presented in England. Sydney has an abundance of lungs, and its people have better opportunities of open air recreation than those of any other capital in the world. But we none the less have to deal with a people engaged for the most part in sedentary occupations, and depending on pleasures which are artificial and cheap in both senses of the term. The clerk or professional man who goes on the land comes back from his holiday with a broader chest, a deeper colour, and steadier nerves. His friends who stay behind are inferior to him physically, and unless they are exceptionally ingenious, or exceptionally diligent, are, after a course of moving pictures, musical comedy, and the life of ugly streets, no better cultivated mentally than he. If the whole of the city population were necessary for the work of the country we should, of course, have to regard it as a necessary evil in this best of all possible worlds. In fact, we know that numbers of men leave the country because life is too hard and too monotonous, and some few because there is no land for them available. To the pleasure-lovers there is probably no answer in this generation. When an ex-dairyman answers advice by the sentence, "We'll be a long time dead," there is no more room for argument.

But the census figures are themselves a proof of how much has been done for the landless man, and for those who have been driven in by the monotony of a country life. Twenty or thirty years ago the hardship felt most acutely by men, and still more severely by women, was isolation. Already a great improvement in this respect has been made by railways, telephones, and by the subdivision of estates. Simultaneously with the growth of our knowledge of the soil, land has increased in value, and the size of areas necessary to support a family has diminished. Indirectly the trend of progress is manifested in the returns from the country towns. In the table issued last Tuesday, as well as in that issued to-day, there are some instances of a decrease, but instances of an increase show a great majority, and in almost every case, the increase is due to a change in the dominant industry, from grazing to wheat-growing or dairy farming. There are, of course, one or two cases which are governed by exceptional conditions. Maitland fell from a great height when the railway passed through, and the town ceased to be the distributing centre for the whole of the north. In those days Maitland was one of the busiest towns in Australia. Its revival has been caused by the development of its vast coal deposits, and the constant influx of miners. Other towns have suffered in the same way as Maitland, though in a minor degree, and without a subsequent revival. The extension of a railway system has in some cases deprived tradespeople of customers, who have found it easy to get supplies from Sydney, has destroyed the business of coach proprietors and teamsters, and transferred other sources of employment to the new terminus. But these circumstances, which must also be considered in relation to commentaries on the disproportionate size of the metropolis, mark only the exceptions to the general rule. The rule of increase may be illustrated by towns as far apart as Casino on the Richmond and Coonamble in the western district. Casino has benefited enormously by the growth of the dairy industry, and by the subdivision of such large estates as Woorowoolgen on its borders. Its formerly contemptuous rival Lismore must envy Casino the unlimited room for expansion which is offered by the flat country surrounding it. Gunnedah is another town which has made great strides for the same reason. Many estates have followed the example of Burburgate, and last year a large portion of the great holding of Gunnible was made available for settlement. The shops and other buildings in the town itself are the best proof of the increase in all kinds of work and activity. Perhaps the only town which has gained no benefit from the same opportunity is Yass, where the lands made available have almost all been taken up by townspeople. But the mention of Yass reminds one of the great promise of increase in the future held out by the progress of irrigation and of wheat cultivation. Professor Watt has lately told us of the possibilities that exist for wheat in districts hitherto believed to be fit only for sheep. The authorities, with the best evidence to back them, have estimated the population of the area about to be irrigated at a figure which will at last put Sydney in its proper place. Everything now, and always, comes back to immigration, but it is satisfactory to know that we can now hold out to immigrants prospects of wealth and of civilised conditions which were not dreamed of at the time of the last census.

HOLIDAYS AND THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

There is always interest in the unfolding of a new scheme of things, and a new Government, intent upon remoulding to its heart's desire the necessarily sorry scheme of its predecessors, has an unfailing claim to sympathetic attention. And that claim must needs be especially pressing in a case such as our own. For here the principles of government itself are concerned. A political theory long compelled to ineffective assertion gradually develops nevertheless, and at last, in a set of peculiarly favourable circumstances, is enabled to establish itself as representative of the political theory of the people at large. Long submerged in ineffectiveness, it now lifts into predominance and authority. Its hypotheses are crystallised into practical politics. Its assertions are embodied in the law of the land. And the contrary point of view, so long set upon the eminence of high command, recedes into the insignificance of minority protest. So sudden an ascent of discredited political theory into the upper air of political control is certain to burden its exponents with some disadvantage. It is not in human nature to be so transformed without sign of the change. Hence, on the ground alone of human frailty, much is to be forgiven. When, for example, this political creed that is now authoritatively vocal after long spaces of ineffectual insistence, mistakes the cloudy smoulderings of enthusiasm for the real flame of eloquence, it deserves the leniency always due to excitement. When, further, set for the first time in high political place, its exponents exhibit riotously their manifold intention of reform of the community, they should be borne with as at least having excuse of inexperience. And when they are seen with one hand flinging broadcast upon a wondering people formulae from the Labour pharmacopeia which are to cure all our social ills, and with the other throwing to the dogs the physic of their predecessors, we shall grieve not, give them credit, rather, for zeal, if not for discretion. Much of the proposed labour legislation, thus, can be charitably visioned as the essential sportiveness of new legislators set in the midst of an over-legislating age. But we are bound to join issue with them as to some of it, and we feel ourselves freely entitled to do so in respect of certain changes mooted in regard to our State holidays. There seems to be no incentive at all here, unless it be that activity at all hazards, which is so striking a feature of new brooms generally.

There is the proposal, for instance, to abandon the celebration of that Anniversary Day which we have always honoured as worthy of remembrance, and to substitute for it celebration of the day of Captain Cook's arrival. And now, it is understood, suggestion is abroad for the displacing of Empire Day as entitled to celebration, because in the following month of June the Coronation of the King will impose upon us a new holiday. It is difficult to discover in such proposals as these any advantage. Their disadvantages, on the contrary, are manifest. As to Anniversary Day, the withdrawal of a midsummer festival in favour of a midwinter August day would be a mistake on the weather side. For the vast majority of people the essence of a holiday is in its open air possibilities, and the sunshine of our summer, even at its height, has come to be regarded as an indispensable assistance toward the Australian holiday mood. Anniversary Day, further, has other and intrinsic sanction. It is the day of our foundation. It is the day, that is, of our incorporation within the national life of the British Empire. It is the day which recalls the immeasurable opportunity bestowed upon us of ordered development of ourselves under the protecting care of our motherland. Anniversary Day, thus, epitomises for us in a way impossible to the Captain Cook date, the idea of nationality, for with the advent of Governor Phillip and the formal establishment of authority, we became irrevocably a British people. And in comparison with that and all it has meant to Australians, what reasonable argument can there be to the details of the early settlement? To abandon the historic Anniversary Day celebration for the purpose of resuscitating the day of Captain Cook would be as illogical a proceeding for us as would be the displacement by the United States of the essentially national festival of the 4th of July, and the substitution therefor of a Christopher Columbus holiday. And it is just as unnecessary, and should be just as unthinkable.

The proposal regarding Empire Day is no less bereft of reasonable basis. Here has grown up not only a day of happy memorial of a great Queen and her great reign, but a day of outward and visible insistence upon our share in the Imperial tradition which that reign established. At its present stage it is essentially a festival of the outer Dominions. Of comparatively recent inauguration, it is more and more firmly set in popular favour. The date of Queen Victoria's birth gives it propitious impulse, and attaches to it a memory of abiding significance. It is a day for which all true Australians, realising that they exist as Australians only as Imperialists, may well be glad, and they may surely be regarded as hopeful of a universal British acclamation of it. A little while ago, it is true, our Roman Catholic friends were urged to give up Empire Day and concentrate their enthusiasm upon St. Patrick's Day, but that proposal we took leave to regard as but one more mystifying instance of lack of humour in the hierarchy set in authority over an essentially humorous people. But now, and unaccountably, comes a State Government suggestion that we should do away with Empire Day in favour of the Coronation day of King George. That day has its rights, unquestionably. It is the day of a great symbolic function also, and essentially Imperial in its sweep. But it is a day that passes. It is not commemorated. It seals the King to his supreme office, but it is complementary rather than essential to his royalty. Coronation Day, therefore, will be a day of rejoicing this year, but it will have no permanence as a festival. Empire Day, on the contrary, has all possible justification for permanence, and much as we may give a sympathetic ear to the pardonable enthusiasms of a new Government intent upon doing something, we must protest against needless enthusiasm wrongly directed. Into that category we think must come these holiday proposals, and we believe that, however much they may witness to Ministerial enthusiasm for novelty, the public at large, none the less, desire no change in the matter either of Anniversary Day or Empire Day.

To-day's "Herald."—Sir Henry Lucy (page 5), after a glance at that hardy annual, the Veto Bill, passes on to discuss prices at Coronation stands and the slump in breweries. On page 4 will be found the first instalment of "When the Red Gods Call," Miss Grimshaw's new tale of the romance of Papua. Miss Mary Krout very interestingly describes the development of the roof garden in New York city (page 5), and on the same page a well-informed contributor gives a good idea both of the picturesque and the industrial sides of the oil section at Wolgan. Mr. Griffith Taylor in his present instalment of "To the Antarctic" (page 5) has to describe the loss of a £1000 motor sledge which crashed through a rotten ice floe and sank. Dr. Poidevin (page 7) deals further with the comparative styles and methods of British and Australian tennis players, and an abstract of Mr. Farmer Whyte's paper on Shakespeare and the Bible appears on the same page. Our chess notes will be found this week on page 6.

Eight-Hours Principle.—It has been decided by Mr. Flowers, who is administering the Department of the Chief Secretary, that no man working within the jurisdiction of the department shall be required to work more than 48 hours per week. This decision will affect officers and attendants in asylums for the insane and other public institutions.

Safety of Coal Miners.—A Royal Commission is to be appointed by the Minister for Mines to inquire into complaints concerning the working of collieries on the Newcastle and Maitland fields. Representatives of the Colliery Employees' Federation submitted a request for the appointment of a Royal Commission to the Acting Premier, who passed it on to the Minister for Mines, and Mr. Edden promptly decided that the request should be granted. Mr. Edden explained yesterday that following upon his visit to Pelaw Main some weeks ago he contemplated the appointment of a commission of inquiry into matters complained of by the Colliery Employees' Federation, but delayed action in the hope that work at Pelaw Main would first be resumed. Matters, however, had not developed as he had hoped they would, and as complaints of danger had reached him from official sources, he intended to appoint the commission without delay.

Wharfage Charges Compared.—At a recent sitting of the South Australian Commission, which is at present taking evidence in Sydney with regard to harbour and port administration, Mr. B. A. Moulden, M.L.C., instanced a case where a 3600-ton tramp steamer, loading at an Adelaide wharf, paid £22 10s in harbour dues, covering a period of 10 days. A witness explained that the same vessel under similar conditions would have to pay £60 at Sydney. The discrepancy in the figures attracted some attention, and the question for the last two days has been put to almost every witness, with invariably the same result. The fact that Adelaide could do things so much cheaper than Sydney astonished local witnesses, and doubtless they inwardly grieved to know that Sydney was so far behind the times. The glory that Adelaide has basked in has now departed, and an entirely different complexion is placed upon the situation. Last night a telegram was received by Mr. J. Sincock, secretary of the Commission, from Mr. Arthur Leary, president of the Melbourne Marine Board, stating that such a steamer at Adelaide would pay £21 in pilotage, £62 10s in light dues, and £31 5s in quayage, making a total of no less than £114 15s.

The Police Force.—Ministerial approval was given yesterday to changes in police uniform that members of the force have long desired. The white duck pants prescribed for summer wear are to disappear in favour of blue serge trousers, and the belted coat used on special occasions is to give way to a tunic, in which pockets will be provided. These changes will, it is believed, make for the comfort of members of the force. A more material concession is contained in a decision arrived at by the Minister in charge of the department that the pay of senior constables throughout the service shall be increased from 9s to 9s 6d per day, thus bringing them, as far as pay is concerned, into closer touch with those of the rank of sergeant.

"Moving in Hobbles."—Of the expressions of opinion given by Mr. Justice Higgins when announcing the nature of his proposed award in the enginedrivers' and firemen's case yesterday in the Arbitration Court in Melbourne the most striking were those which referred to industrial and economic relationships. The Arbitration Court was spoken of as having to "move in technical hobbles." "Not freedom of contract, but despotism in contract," was another phrase from the Bench, and in connection with a Victorian State statute relating to Sunday work Mr. Justice Higgins made mention of "difficulties closing in on this Court, choking its operations as in a vyce."

Refuge for Infinite Ennui.—Dr. Marden, principal of the Presbyterian Ladies' College, said yesterday before the Presbyterian General Assembly that the daughter of one of our richest men had been some dozens of times to see the performance of "Our Miss Gibbs," and on being expostulated with said, "Why not? One must do something at night." Dr. Marden said that some palladium for life's sad satiety as evidenced by such a remark was urgently needed. People of such barren lives needed some refuge for their infinite ennui, the catering for which was so enriching theatre-owners at present. The assembly applauded the remarks of the college principal.

A Long Criminal Career.—A man with possibly one of the longest criminal records in the State was dealt with at the Central Police Court yesterday. He was 72 years of age, and had, according to the records read out in court, started wrongdoing at 16. From 1854 to the present he had been convicted of offences ranging from a few days to 20 years, the heavier sentences alone aggregating 45 years. Of sentences ranging from three months upwards he had a list of 32 convictions, while in addition there were 96 other and minor convictions recorded against him at Darlinghurst. The offences—some of which had been committed in Great Britain and in various Australian States—included stealing, robbery with violence, breaking and entering, absconding from road gang, larceny and receiving, gaol-breaking, violent assault, and stealing from the person. The old man, who was known under many aliases, did not impress one as being of the criminal type. He pleaded for "just one more chance," but his case was one which did not come under the final jurisdiction of the magistrate, and he was sent on to a higher court.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

Yesterday afternoon Lady Cullen, attended by Captain Dumaresq, A.D.C., presided at the annual meeting of the Queen's Jubilee Fund in the board room of the Colonial Sugar Company's office.

On Tuesday next his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor will open the New South Wales Parliament.

On Tuesday evening next his Excellency and Lady Cullen will give a dinner party at State Government House, Rose Bay.

The Postmaster-General (Mr. Thomas) left Melbourne for Sydney yesterday, and the Acting Minister of Defence (Senator M'Gregor) left for Adelaide.

Mr. Verran (Premier of South Australia) and his colleagues on the Royal Commission of Inquiry concerning harbour control, were entertained by Mr. Holman and other members of the Ministry at dinner at Parliament House last night.

By the Osterley to-day Lieutenant-Colonel Ramaciotti, accompanied by Mrs. Ramaciotti, their son and daughter, will leave on an extended tour of England and the Continent.

Bishop Julius and Mrs. Julius met with a motor car accident near Timaru, New Zealand, yesterday. Bishop Julius is suffering from shock, and Mrs. Julius had a collar-bone broken.

UNION FOOTBALLERS FROM NEW ZEALAND.

TO PLAY THE LEAGUE GAME.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. E. R. Larkin, secretary of the N.S.W. Rugby League, received a cablegram from New Zealand, stating that several prominent Auckland Rugby Union players will visit New South Wales with the New Zealand Northern Union team, which will play its first match in Sydney on Coronation Day. The players, whose names will be made available shortly, have been members of New Zealand Rugby Union teams that have visited Sydney during the past two seasons.

RAILWAY LOCOMOTIVES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A deputation of [illegible] members to-day waited upon the Treasurer, Mr. Watt, to protest against the action of the Railway Commissioners in ordering abroad 40 locomotive engines. The wish of the deputation was that the engines should be made at Newport shops, and if that were found impossible that they should at least be built in Australia.

Mr. Prendergast, leader of the party, said that the engines would cost about £185,000, and that if they were made here the cost would be reduced to £[illegible].

Mr. Watt, in reply, said that the order had been rendered necessary by the large and unforeseen demand for rolling stock. The Government's action was not to be a precedent.

NEWCASTLE CATHEDRAL.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

At the evening sitting of the Newcastle Diocesan Synod Mr. H. H. Clack moved the reception of the report of the trustees and treasurers of the Cathedral building committee. In doing so he expressed the hope that next year, when the hundredth anniversary of the holding of the first service on the site would be celebrated, some steps would be taken to form a fund. This fund might be utilised for the extinction of the debt on the building or for the raising of the eastern walls.

The Dean of Newcastle seconded the motion, and supported the suggestion made by Mr. Clack. He said he had received more than a hint that the money for the great eastern window would be given straight away. The report was adopted.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

LORD LANSDOWNE'S BILL.

ATTACK UPON GOVERNMENT.

BY OPPOSITION LEADER.

LONDON, May 11.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, Leader of the Opposition, speaking at the annual demonstration of the Primrose League in the Albert Hall to-night, heartily supported Lord Lansdowne's House of Lords Reform Bill, which, he said, had gone as far as it was right or possible to go in the direction of a change in the constitution of the House of Lords.

He warned them of the folly of so changing the House of Lords that it would overshadow the House of Commons.

GOVERNMENT INCONSISTENCY.

HUMILIATING STRAITS.

May 12.

In the course of his speech in the Albert Hall last night, Mr. Balfour said:—"We must have a strong and effective second Chamber, able to carry out great duties; not the pitiful, beggarly modicum of responsibility given by the Parliament (House of Lords' Veto) Bill.

"The Government propose to indefinitely postpone the admittedly necessary reform of the House of Lords, and insist that we shall, in the meanwhile, be governed by one Chamber alone. I call this gross and palpable, almost criminal, inconsistency.

"The Labour party are consistent. They have constantly declared that they see no object in having a second Chamber; so they can vote for the Parliament Bill with a clear conscience. The bill gives them single-chamber government, so their position is unassailable. But I cannot imagine inconsistency greater than a Government saying that in future the constitution must be bi-cameral; yet the Parliament framing it may be under a single-Chamber constitution.

"The only explanation of such humiliating straits is that able men are driven thereto by the necessity of keeping a majority in the House of Commons.

"AN INVERSION OF FACTS."

"Mr. Asquith, in the course of his speech at Manchester, claimed that if Home Rule were relinquished the Government would have no difficulty in securing assent to the Parliament Bill. This was an inversion of the real facts, as there would have been no Parliament Bill but for Home Rule. There might have been reforms of the second Chamber and a change of the relations between the two Houses, but never the absurdity of suggesting the transfer to a single Chamber, elected on a different issue, all the most fundamental, important, and invaluable elements in the Constitution.

"Whether what the Government proposes in Home Rule on the Gladstonian or on some other and unknown model, it ought never to be passed by a single Chamber alone, but ought to be either subjected to revision by two dependent and legally co-equal Chambers, or referred to the people as a whole. (Cheers.)

THE TRUE SOLUTION.

"The true solution of the Constitutional question," he went on, "is—firstly, a change in the constitution of the second Chamber, not an alteration of its powers—at all events, not the fundamental alteration of its powers proposed the Parliament Bill; secondly, deadlocks between the two Houses should be met by conferences for the purposes of conciliation, and joint sittings of the two Houses; and, thirdly, on matters of grave importance and in special instances, the referendum should be invoked. (Cheers.)

THE AUSTRALIAN EXAMPLE.

"There has been nothing more entertaining or more pathetic than to see our opponents who have been talking about democracy throughout their lives now struggling to show that an appeal to the people on a specific issue would be the worst service that could be rendered to democracy.

"I observed the Earl of Carrington's indignant wrath at the Colonial Institute the other night when a distinguished Australasian statesman—(cheers)—ventured to state that the referendum had just been tried in Australia, and had worked exactly as we think it ought to work—it had shown that on a particular measure the Government of the day had misunderstood, and had ceased to reflect the will of the people—(cheers)—while on another broad and even vital question it still retained the people's confidence. (Cheers.) What more effective machinery could there be for revealing such a situation than a poll of the people?"

Mr. Balfour concluded by claiming that the Unionists were the only true democratic party in the State.

ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMITTEE.

LONDON, May 12.

Four hundred members of the House of Commons, representing all parties, have formed themselves into a committee to promote the Anglo-American peace movement.

At a meeting last night a resolution was agreed to expressing deep satisfaction that the proposal in regard to a treaty had met with so hearty a response from both nations.

RIOTOUS STUDENTS.

LONDON, May 12.

Two hundred students seriously interrupted Macaura's demonstration of a new form of medical treatment of cripples and others in the Albert Hall yesterday, and subsequently marched with a coffin to Piccadilly, where the police charged and dispersed them. Several arrests were made.

DEFERRED INCOME TAX.

FURTHER REFERENCE IN COMMONS.

"THE OFFICIAL'S MISTAKE."

LONDON, May 12.

In the House of Commons last night, when the Treasury Vote was before the House in Committee of Supply, Sir F. Banbury (Unionist) moved a reduction in the salary of Mr. Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in order to discuss the delay that had occurred in collecting the income tax from railway companies and other large business concerns for the past financial year, and the alleged robbing of the sinking fund in order to avoid fresh taxation.

Mr. Lloyd-George, in reply, stated that the delay that had occurred in the collection of the tax in the instances in question had been due to the mistake of an official. In order to prevent a repetition in future the railways of England would be assimilated to those of Scotland, and would be compelled to pay the tax on January 1.

Mr. Bonar Law (Unionist) declared that the Government were punishing the railways for disclosing the facts in regard to the non-collection of the tax.

Sir Edwin Cornwall (Liberal) commented upon the seriousness of the income taxpayers being under the rule of permanent officials, and said that the latter apparently were assuming control of the administration. Nevertheless, he added, the Unionist attack upon the Government had failed completely.

Sir F. Banbury's amendment was negatived by 214 votes to 149.

THE ALBANIAN REVOLT.

REPORTED ITALIAN ASSISTANCE.

BAND OF VOLUNTEERS.

LONDON, May 11.

Mr. Donohoe, the special correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" in Rome, asserts that Ricciotti Garibaldi has already enlisted 10,000 volunteers, including many Englishmen, to fight with the Albanians against the Turks.

Mr. Donohoe alleges that a wave of popular enthusiasm is sweeping over Italy.

The Rome correspondent of the "Times" declares that there is no possibility of an organised expedition, and he throws doubt on the above story.

CANADIAN NEWS.

OTTAWA, May 12.

With a view to aiding the Canadian Northern Transcontinental railway, the Government has agreed to guarantee the line from Montreal to Port Arthur (993 miles), the liability on which amounts to £7,000,000.

The Governor-General, Earl Grey, is to tour the western provinces prior to his departure for England, and it is hoped that the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General-elect, will also tour the Dominion in 1912.

In consequence of the Government's insistence upon the same rate of wages on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, no tenders have been received for the construction of warships on the Pacific coast. Messrs. Denny Brothers, of Dumbarton, withdrew their tender.

CRETAN AFFAIRS.

TURKISH CADIS RESENTED.

LONDON, May 12.

Reuter's Canea correspondent states that the decision of the Porte to send a number of Cadis (Judges) to Crete led to a meeting of 3000 inhabitants of Canea, at which it was resolved to prevent the landing of the Cadis.

It was agreed that the appointments were contrary to the two Cretan constitutions recognised by the Powers.

There have been no Cadis in Crete for 11 years.

TRIAL OF CAMORRISTS.

FURTHER VIOLENT SCENES.

VITERBO, May 11.

Further violent scenes occurred today at the trial of Camorrists between Abbatemaggio, the informer, and Enrico Alfani, otherwise known as Erricone, the leader of the Neapolitan Camorra.

The latter cursed and blasphemed horribly, until carbineers were compelled to forcibly remove him.

THE MAGISTRACY.

LONDON, May 12.

The "Daily Chronicle" supports the memorial that has been presented to the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, by 55 Liberal members of the House of Commons asking him to grant a day for the discussion of the preponderance of Tories on the rural bench.

The paper emphasises the widespread dissatisfaction that is being evinced in regard to the matter.

THE SCOTTISH COMMISSION.

REPORT OF OBSERVATIONS.

DEMAND FOR LABOUR.

LONDON, May 11.

The report of the Scottish Agricultural Commission which recently toured Australia, has been issued.

It covers 300 pages, recounting observations and experiences of the commission, with a full description of the agricultural and pastoral conditions in each State.

The commissioners in the preface insist that everywhere in the city and country they found an unsatisfied demand for manual labourers.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—Captain R. M. Collins, secretary to the High Commissioner, has cabled to the Acting Minister for External Affairs, Senator Findley, as follows: "Scottish Agricultural Commissioners report contains careful unadorned account of experiences, replete with sound information for settlers. It is a valuable aid to immigration. Copies have been handed to Australian pressmen in London, and 1000 copies have been posted to the British press."

"LUMPY" CATTLE.

DISPUTE AT BATHURST.

MUNICIPALITY AND P.P. BOARD.

BATHURST, Friday.

The controversy between the Bathurst Pastures Protection Board and the municipal council concerning the sale of diseased cattle at the corporation saleyards has assumed a serious form, involving grave charges.

Some time ago the pastures protection board, as a consequence of a certain report by the stock inspector, wrote to the council asking if it was a fact that the sale of beasts designated "lumpy" was conducted at the corporation saleyards, but a satisfactory reply was not received. Thereupon the board again communicated with the municipal body asking for a definite answer, but the communication was merely received. The Mayor's suggestion was that the proper course for the board to have taken would have been to communicate with the Board of Health. At the same meeting of the council Alderman E. T. Webb described the action of the board as impertinent, and the Mayor declared the council would have to maintain its dignity.

These remarks were brought before to-day's meeting of the pastures protection board, when further consideration was given to the question. During a sharp discussion which ensued Mr. A. J. Brownlow suggested that a separate abattoir should be erected, wherein diseased cattle be slaughtered under supervision.

The president (Mr. J. J. Sullivan) said what the board objected to was the council allowing cattle designated "lumpy" to be sold at the corporation yards, with an understanding between the owner and the auctioneer that the former received 30s if the beast was condemned after being killed, and the full price if it was found to be healthy. At the Homebush yards a beast with a lump beneath the jaw only the size of a small pea was condemned and killed in a specially-erected abattoir. If the sale of such cattle was carried on in Bathurst the Act was certainly being evaded.

Stock Inspector C. R. Brett stated that on April 6 he went to the corporation saleyards and picked out a cow which was suffering from manifested tuberculosis. In his opinion the beast should not have been admitted to the yards. The auctioneer's attention being drawn to it, the beast was withdrawn from auction. This however, was not consented to before the case was put strongly before the agent.

The president stated that the only course now open was to apply to the Board of Health to have the Bathurst Council prevented from allowing diseased cattle to be offered for sale. This was a step he did not altogether like to make, but as the council was far from being courteous in its treatment of the board, and as it would not meet them fairly, there was nothing else to do. He moved that the Board of Health be written to and asked that action be taken to restrict the Bathurst Municipal Council from permitting the sale of diseased cattle in the corporation yards.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Moore and carried.

A suggestion of Mr. Wallace that separate abattoirs be erected for the slaughter of manifestly diseased cattle and suspicious-looking animals met with the general support of the board.

LABOUR TROUBLES.

PELAW-MAIN.

KURRI KURRI, Friday.

Yesterday two of the officers of the Pelaw Main miners' lodge went to Newcastle in an endeavour to interview the committee of the Proprietors' Association, which was sitting, and to ask them to call on Messrs. J. and A. Brown to follow the custom of the other collieries and only fill one skip at a time. The effort was fruitless, and the C.E.F. executive then communicated with the Proprietors' Association in Sydney, and asked them to receive a deputation from the federation in Sydney at their meeting to-day. As nothing more has been heard of the request locally, it is presumed the request was refused.

Whilst in Newcastle the local officers made an appeal to the federation for assistance, no strike pay having been paid out during the nine weeks' trouble. It was promised that something should be done either on Saturday or Monday. In the meantime the colliery officials, such as shiftmen, shot firers, and deputies, are filling small orders up to fifty tons.

The lodge secretary stated to-day there will be no more meetings of the men till strike pay is paid out, and to-day he sent the list of those entitled to same to the federation headquarters.

HARVESTER STRIKE.

DISPUTE FINALLY SETTLED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Union representatives and employers met in conference to-night and settled the harvester strike. It was explained that yesterday's hitch was the result of a misunderstanding.

WARNING DREAM.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A bricklayer named Roland Collings, aged 38 years, dreamt last night that he had a fall and was taken to the hospital with one of his legs broken.

Unfortunately, it proved too true, for he fell from the scaffolding of a building this morning, and fractured both thighs, and sustained injuries to the head. He is also suffering from shock.

DEATH OF A GUNNER.

THURSDAY ISLAND, Friday.

Gunner Goodwin, of the local garrison, died of brain fever on Thursday morning, and was accorded a military funeral in the evening.

RAILWAY COLLISION.

TRAIN RUNS INTO TRUCKS.

CARRIAGE BURSTS INTO FLAMES.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

There were distinct possibilities of a serious railway disaster in a smash which occurred on the south line this morning about half-way between Adelaide Station yards and Mile End. At an early hour a goods engine had been shunting trucks to the Mile End freight depot, and four heavy steel trucks loaded with sand from Gawler evidently became uncoupled unknown to the officials in charge. They were left standing on the main down line, and the 5.58 suburban train from the city to Clapham Junction came at a moderate speed around a curve about 150 yards past the Western Tramway's viaduct, and crashed into them.

Only two passengers were in a rear carriage, and they were railway men, one going off duty, and another proceeding to one of the stations along the line. They were not hurt. The driver, fireman, and guard sustained no bodily injuries, but were sent home affected by shock. The smoke stack of the engine was knocked off, the buffer gear damaged, and lamps and windows broken. The carriage next the engine was badly smashed, and owing to the escape of gas, broke into flames. It was wholly destroyed, but the other carriages were not injured. The permanent way was torn up for a distance of a chain, and ballasting thrown about. A gang of 65 repairers removed the wreckage and restored the track to a normal state by shortly after 10 o'clock.

A PRIEST ON EMPIRE DAY.

A BITTER LETTER.

CHILDISH PARENTS AND CITIZENS.

MULLUMBIMBY, Friday.

At a largely-attended meeting of parents and citizens on Thursday night to arrange for the celebration of Empire Day, the correspondence included a letter from the Rev. Father Sullivan, which read:—

"Catholic Presbytery, Bangalow, May 6, 1911.—Dear Mr. Mathews,—I received your note. I regret that the parents and citizens of Mullumbimby think me as childish as themselves in expecting me to join with them in wishing success to the Empire. I have never been asked until the present, and never intend taking part in those loud manifestations of loyalty and success. Faithfully yours, W. Sullivan."

Alderman Hollangworth said it was an insult to the people of the town, the Commonwealth, and the British Empire. He moved that the letter be handed to the press. This was seconded by Mr. Laverty.

The chairman explained that the letter was in reply to an invitation to give the children a patriotic address.

Other speakers endorsed the remarks, and thought something stronger should be done.

The motion was carried unanimously.

STATE'S POPULATION.

COUNTRY INCREASES.

MORE SATISFACTORY FIGURES.

Returns from 18 additional census districts were made available yesterday by Mr. Trivett. Comparison with the census of 1901 shows that Hay has dropped from 6191 to 4985, and that there is a small decrease at Wentworth, but in all other districts population has increased. The population of Manly and Pittwater has more than doubled. In 1901 the residents numbered 6317, while to-day the number stands at 13,282. Nearly 10,000 additions have been made to the residents of Hartley. Wagga has increased by over 10,000, and Lismore by 7000. The subjoined figures are subject to alteration:—

Census District.	1901.	1911.

STEEL RAILS INDUSTRY.

A PRACTICAL START.

MR. HOSKINS GETS FIRST CONTRACT.

LITHGOW, Friday.

Mr. C. H. Hoskins was to-day asked if he had seen the press announcement that the Government had ordered 20,000 tons of steel rails from the firm of G. and C. Hoskins:—

"I have not seen it in the papers," he said, "but I have information by this morning's mail that Mr. Griffith has given an order to manufacture 8000 tons of 60lb rails, and 12,000 tons of 80lb rails, at £8 per ton. I would like to say that some 14 or 15 years ago our firm tendered to manufacture 100,000 tons, or 200,000 tons, I forget which, of steel rails for the Government. The tender went to Mr. Young, who was then Minister for Works, and the price he offered was £7 14s per ton, which we were unable to accept. You will notice from this, that the present price, considering present wages, is even cheaper than that which Mr. Young was willing to pay. We have already rolled 60lb and 80lb rails as a test of our machinery, which is working very satisfactorily. We are now lighting up our new steel furnaces, and will soon get to work on the order. We are putting down a railway to connect the blast furnace with the steel furnaces at the ironworks, and we hope to run the first ladle full of molten metal from the blast furnace to the works in two months' time over that railway. Numerous new machines have been installed in the works, and others are coming to hand from England and elsewhere. I feel rejoiced at having received this first order for rails, as it is a substantial start for the industry in Lithgow."

"AN IMPROPER THING."

A JURYMAN'S EXCUSE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A juryman in the Court of General Sessions to-day asked to be excused on the ground that he had important duties to attend to. He handed in a letter from his employers, in which it was stated that if he could not attend to his duties they would have to get somebody else in his place.

Acting Judge Gurner: Do you not think it is an improper thing to hold out a threat to the Court that you would be discharged if you did not attend to your duties?

The juryman: I am only the servant.

Acting Judge Gurner: I will excuse you, but tell your employers that it is an improper thing for them to do.

DREADFUL RESULT OF A BOLT.

WELLINGTON, Friday.

A terrible accident happened to Mr. A. Rich, junr., of Rozalayne Farm, Cyrra Creek. He was working a seed drill, and in his team was a young horse, which became restive, getting its leg over the shaft. Mr. Rich went in among the horses to free the animal, and the team immediately bolted. He hung on for some time, but eventually fell, and either the drill passed over him or he was trampled on by one of the horses. A telephone message was sent in for a doctor, and a medical examination showed that Mr. Rich had sustained a fractured dislocation of the neck. He was perfectly conscious, but the whole of the lower part of his body is paralysed. He still remains in the same condition.

MINISTERS BARGAINING.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Acting Premier, Mr. Watt, and the Minister for Home Affairs, Mr. O'Malley, had a business talk regarding the Commonwealth's proposal to buy from the State a block of the Maribyrnong Estate, along the Salt Water River, for field artillery purposes. Mr. O'Malley offered £40 an acre for 80 acres. Mr. Watt asked for £75 an acre. After talking it over Mr. O'Malley raised his figure to £63 10s, and Mr. Watt accepted it.

HOUSES FOR 10s. A WEEK.

CABINET'S NEW SCHEME.

NEW LEGISLATION FOR COMING SESSION.

MR. GRIFFITH WILL SUPPLY THE BRICKS.

An important statement was made by the Acting State Treasurer, Mr. Carmichael, yesterday, regarding the intentions of the Government in the direction of building workmen's cottages. A deputation of tramway employees waited on the Minister with a request that he should build homes for them adjacent to the tramway depots.

In the course of his reply Mr. Carmichael said:—"I see that the Government has been praised in the press as not being out to interfere with private enterprise. I must in all honesty refuse to accept praise when I do not deserve it, and I have got to say that we are out to interfere with private enterprise wherever it places a disability on any part or section of the community, and I am afraid that my scheme for housing workmen will interfere considerably with the philanthropic landlords who have been good enough to raise rents 3s and 4s a week.

"In addition to the amendment of the Savings Bank Act in the direction I have indicated," said Mr. Carmichael, "I propose to introduce legislation next session which will enable moneys to be applied by the Government for the purchase of land for building dwellings, and to sell those dwellings to anybody who comes along and wants a home and is willing to pay for it. We have had it worked out very carefully, and I think we can build, at the rate of something like 10s a week, a reasonably good house. (Hear, hear.) In that connection I would like to point out that it is not desirable to buy areas in the congested parts of the city. Land with 15 or 16 feet frontage worth £5 a foot does not appeal to the Government as sites for homes, in contradistinction to houses. The land I have in my mind would give you about 66ft frontage, on which I could build for you at a reasonable price a four, five, or six roomed cottage, as the case might be, where you would have room to bring up your children in decent surroundings.

"If," proceeded Mr. Carmichael, "I manage to do that, and you could get a house and pay for it at 10s a week rent, that must necessarily interfere with the private landlord who is letting houses at the present time. It is unfortunate, but it cannot be helped. We are out for the benefit of the community, and the benefit of the workmen is our especial care, and I hope it will be as long as we are in office."

A member of the deputation: The rest of the community are able to look after themselves.

Mr. Carmichael: That is so. I must have an Act passed through Parliament before I can do any good. As soon as the Act is passed I hope we will get to work, and, in conjunction with Mr. Griffith, who will supply the bricks at a reasonable price, meet the ordinary requirements by supplying workmen's houses, because the aim of the Government is simply to supply you with homes, and not to give any body of men the opportunity of speculating in houses. Mind you, an occupier will not be able to sell out to the first comer and make £400 or £500 out of the deal. That would be provided for in the bill.

"The idea is," concluded Mr. Carmichael, "that you shall have a home as long as you like to live in it; but if you want to transfer you will have to transfer back to the Government. If this is brought about it will considerably relieve the pressure which exists at the present time."

DEARTH OF MINISTERS.

CAN'T GET A CURATE.

BISHOP STRETCH'S REMEDY.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

At to-day's sitting of the Newcastle Diocesan Synod a discussion arose as to the dearth of clergy in the diocese.

The Rev. A. Killworth, of West Maitland, in supporting the motion said that there was no doubt a chaotic state of affairs existed in the diocese in connection with obtaining clergymen. For a considerable time he had been endeavouring to obtain a curate, but really could not get one.

Archdeacon Tollis said the difficulty was not peculiar to the Church of England. He then read the remarks of Principal Harper, D.D., of St. Andrew's College, appearing in this morning's "Herald." He said he wished to make these his own.

Bishop Stretch, president of the synod, said they had reached a stage now at which they had the men, and a hostel should be formed, not a college, because they did not wish to get in the way of present colleges. They had men in the diocese who were eminently fitted for the work. He thought Bishopscourt, Morpeth, could be used far more fittingly as a clergy hostel. The Bishop could have a more modest house somewhere else which would cost him less money. He could leave his library at Bishopscourt. These young men could be given board and lodging and pocket money. They could then wait there, pursuing their studies and reading and filling emergencies.

A motion appointing a committee to consider the obtaining and training of candidates was carried unanimously. The synod was afterwards prorogued.

TO MEET HIS ACCUSERS.

MR. THOMAS READY.

TELEPHONE DEPARTMENT ON TRIAL.

The Postmaster-General, whose administration of the telephone department has been the subject of indignant comment for many months past, has had the courage to announce that he will meet his accusers face to face in Sydney.

Subscribers have long desired such an opportunity as that which is now to be afforded, and a lively and instructive afternoon on Tuesday next is looked forward to. The Sydney Chamber of Commerce after making repeated representations regarding the mismanagement of the service succeeded in inducing Mr. Thomas to agree to hear complaints from the subscribers themselves, and the vestibule of the Town Hall has been secured for the purpose.

The meeting, which is timed for 3 o'clock on Tuesday, will be open not only to members of the Chamber of Commerce, but to all users of the telephone, and those present will be invited to relate their experiences. It is desired, however, that the subscribers shall confine their remarks to definite charges of a character which can be thoroughly substantiated, and a general discussion on the service as a whole will not be allowed. Already several lists have been prepared containing specific instances of delay, carelessness, and incompetence, and not only will the numbers of the telephones be given, but the dates and times.

Mr. Thomas will be accompanied at the meeting by Mr. John Hesketh, the Commonwealth Electrical Engineer.

FEW SAILORS.

TWO SHIPS WITHOUT MEN.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

There is a scarcity of sailors in Melbourne. Three sailing ships which have loaded full cargoes of wheat are "hung up" because of the difficulty in getting men. To make matters worse, a number of apprentices from two of the ships have deserted.

FEDERAL LAND TAX.

EFFECT OF TEST CASE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, said to-day that there appeared to be some degree of uncertainty as to the position of taxpayers who were not parties to the land tax test case, which is about to come before the High Court. He asked that it should be made known that any judgment of that Court in this case, so far as it might impair the validity of the Act or prohibit the Commonwealth from imposing or collecting a tax under the existing statute, would extend to non-parties as well as to the parties to the case. All would be in the same position. In the meantime all must pay the tax.

OUR MOTHERS.

DAY OF THE WHITE CARNATION.

WORLD-WIDE OBSERVANCE.

"Gentlemen, a toast—Our Mothers!"

To-morrow is "Mothers' Day"—the day in the year above all days on which we are asked to honour our mothers. The object of the day is a world-wide emphasis of the love and reverence men and women owe to a good mother.

It is a trite saying that no nation is greater than its mothers. And a nation of good mothers is a great nation. It was a happy thought that led to the setting apart of a special day in the year in remembrance of this fact. It was first introduced into Australia last year, and wherever observed it proved of great and lasting value.

In a little brochure issued by the Y.M.C.A. in connection with this movement, we read:—"True motherhood evokes the homage of every clime, country, class, creed, and its world-wide honouring will light the flame of brotherhood in stranger and in foe. Honour your mother—or her memory—through some distinct act of kindness, a visit, a letter. Live the day as your mother would have you live it. Have her as your guest of honour. Write her a letter of praise and gratitude. If she be not living, in glad recognition of her work, gladden the heart of some other mother. Stamp the day with kindness."

We shall wear a white flower in our buttonhole on Sunday, preferably a white carnation—it is Mothers' Day special flower. Its whiteness stands for purity, its form for beauty, its fragrance for love, its wide fields of growth for charity, its lasting qualities for faithfulness.

The movement began five years ago in America—it was started by a lady in Philadelphia—and this year the celebration will take place simultaneously in Europe, America, and Germany, the second Sunday in May having been definitely fixed for the crowning of the mother as Queen of the May in the hearts of her children.

HEALTH BOARD ATTACKED.

DR. THOMPSON'S REPLY.

A WORD TO DAIRYMEN AND BUTCHERS.

The enforcement of regulations framed by the Board of Health under the Dairies Supervision Act has met with a protest from some dairymen in the Manning district. The erection of covered sheds for the storage of empty cream cans was objected to, and suggestions were made that the Act should be amended and provision made so that in all matters relating to the dairying industry a practical man, representing a farming community, should sit on the Board of Health.

Commenting upon this Dr. Ashburton Thompson said he did not know why a system of management which was in operation over the whole of the State should not suit a farming community of the Manning district in particular. The usual origin of such complaints was in the dissatisfaction of one or two dairymen in a district, who were either intolerant of any control at all, or for some other reason chose to protest against an order applying to them which had been complied with by all their neighbours concerned. "This," added Dr. Thompson, "is the first I have heard of any complaint touching the district mentioned as a whole, but I have lately been very much occupied with the case of a number of dairymen whose views of the administration of the Dairies Supervision Act differ from those of the rest of the farmers in the district."

At a meeting of the Bathurst Municipal Council on Wednesday the regulations of the Board of Health with regard to butchers' shops were subjected to a good deal of adverse criticism, and complaint was made that the board did not appear to know its own mind. In reply to this criticism Dr. Ashburton Thompson said yesterday:—"It is not the case that oiled paper was put on the butchers' shop walls at the instance of the board. In point of fact, the removal of the oil paper has been required because it is not in accordance with the regulation made to govern the matter. As to the floors, whilst it is very desirable that they should be impervious in the case of butchers' shops, still, in the administration of these domestic by-laws circumstances alter cases. In those shops in which the existing floors have been shown to be at present sound enough for all practical purposes, though not, perhaps, all that could be desired, the department, in its discretion and anxiety not to put tradesmen to expense that may be avoided without injury to the public interest, will permit exceptions to any general order such as is contained in the regulations and ordinances. This, it is thought, should be a matter for satisfaction to the persons affected—and also to Alderman E. T. Webb."

SYDNEY FERRIES FLEET.

AN INCREASE TO FORTY VESSELS.

TWO STEEL BOATS.

Negotiations of a preliminary nature have been completed by the directors of the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., with the Mort's Dock and Engineering Company, Ltd., for the building of two steel ferry boats of the Kirrule type. When these vessels are put afloat the company's fleet, inclusive of the three boats now in course of construction, will be increased to 40 vessels. All the present vessels are of wood, but the company has had to launch out into steel for the reason that, owing to the scarcity of labour, it was found to be impracticable for the builders to supply wooden vessels within a reasonable time. The five new steamers will be of the Kirrule type, and each will have certificates for about 1150 passengers. The steel steamers will occupy about 12 months in construction. They will be built at Woolwich, and be speedy and up-to-date in every respect.

LIGHTHOUSE EXPERT.

APPOINTMENT MADE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Customs (Mr. Tudor) announced to-day that he had recommended the appointment of Commander Charles R. W. Brewis, R.N., to the position of lighthouse expert for the Commonwealth at a salary of £350 a year and expenses. The successful applicant is a commander in the Royal Navy, 36 years of age, and holds a certificate of service as master mariner of a foreign-going ship. He joined the Royal Navy (training ship Britannia) in January, 1888, went to sea in January, 1890, and served continuously until his retirement, which was granted at his special request for domestic reasons on June 30, 1910, with permission to reside in Australia. He was lieutenant of H.M. surveying ship Penguin on the Australian station continuously for a period of six years and five months, was assistant surveyor, and circumnavigated the Continent of Australia on two occasions—1899 and 1900. Previous to this he was over three years a junior officer on the Australian station in H. M. ships Curacoa and Orlando. In 1902, on his return to England, he qualified specially as navigating officer and pilot of H. M. ships of the first-class, and was then employed as lieutenant and navigator of H.M. ships Essex, Cleopatra, King Alfred, Royal Sovereign, and Roxburgh. Whilst serving in the latter ship as first lieutenant and navigator he was promoted to commander (June, 1908), and as commander navigator of the battleship-cruiser Invincible, and battleships Agamemnon and Vanguard. He has had practical hydographical experience by navigating the British, continental, American, and Canadian coasts, lights, and fog signals (including fog signals of a submarine nature), also practical experience of compass adjustment, including the original adjustment of new vessels of the Royal Navy.

ALL-RED ROUTE.

MR. HUGHES' COMMENT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Reference was made to-day by the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, to the cabled report of Sir Wilfred Laurier's statement that Canada and New Zealand were awaiting action by Great Britain and Australia in regard to the all-re route.

Mr. Hughes said that the matter had never been brought before the Commonwealth Parliament, nor before the present Ministry, in any definite way. It could not be properly brought forward for consideration here until Great Britain was prepared to submit definite proposals. Pending development the scheme was very much in the air, but he had no doubt that Australia was prepared to play her part in a well-considered, practical proposal.

THE COST OF LIVING.

ROYAL COMMISSION.

WHERE INCREASED WAGES GO.

PROMPT GOVERNMENT ACTION.

The Acting Premier, Mr. Holman, was asked yesterday by a deputation representing the Sydney Labour Council, the Women's Organising Committee, and the Women's Progressive Association to appoint a Royal Commission of Inquiry into the food supply of the city and the increased cost of living.

Mr. W. L. Duncan said that members of the Sydney Labour Council were of opinion that in many instances the increase in the cost of the necessities of life was unjustifiable and unwarrantable. Wages had been increased through the Arbitration Court and wages boards to £2 10s per week, but that amount had not as much purchasing power as £2 had a few years ago. He believed that the increase was largely due to the operations of trusts and combines and other bodies.

Mr. Miller (vice-president of the Labour Council) said the tobacco combine was responsible for killing out the tobacco-growing industry in the Tumut district and on the Queensland border. The Sussex-street merchants two years ago were paying the growers of potatoes on the northern rivers £2 10s a ton. The cost of bringing these potatoes to Sydney was but a few shillings, and they were being sold to the retailers at £12 per ton. The sugar combine was one of the most gigantic combines that had ever cursed any country. Spreckels, the American millionaire, tried to organise a sugar company here, and although he made extensive inquiries a few years ago he found he would not have a chance at all against the Sugar Company. There was no doubt that the whole of the cold storage capacity in Sydney had been collared. The whole of the Pastoral Finance Association's cold storage capacity had been closed for over 12 months. The last matter he wished to refer to was the flour combine. Bread which was made from prime Australian flour was sold in England at 1½d per loaf cheaper than it was sold in Sydney, whilst the latter bread was made from the second and third quality flour.

Mrs. K. Dwyer said there was not the slightest doubt that it was a very great difficulty for the women of this city to make ends meet, although they had material increases in wages. It had been proved beyond doubt that the cost of living had considerably increased with regard to flour, bread, meat, vegetables, fruit, and fish. They knew that since the City Council took over the fish markets fish was more plentiful and more reasonable. Vegetables, however, were abnormally dear. With regard to the price of bread, if one farthing were placed on each loaf of bread it would pay the employer, in view of the fact that there had been a very substantial increase in wages. Instead of being satisfied with one farthing they put on an extra farthing, and put it into their own pockets. Preserved milk should receive more attention in regard to pure foods inspection. Much milk was bought of various brands, and it was of a very inferior quality.

Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald said the price of Australian butter in Shanghai was cheaper than in Sydney, so there must be something wrong about that. Flour, meat, vegetables, and all stuffs that could be canned were now being practically used as the food of the population in the East.

Mr. Stuart-Robertson said the increase in wages in the boot trade might have gone up 2d per pair, but evidence recently given went to show that the price of boots had gone up 1s 3d and 2s per pair. With regard to the meat supply, a friend of his sent some cattle to Sydney for sale. His account sales showed a certain deduction. He asked what the deduction was for, and the reply he received was that "that was general," and no further information was given. Some of the master grocers decided recently to import some sugar, and immediately upon this sugar landing in Sydney action was taken by the combines with the view of making the importers suffer a loss of £1 per ton. With regard to flour, the wheat crops were on the increase, and there was no reason why the price of bread should be higher.

Mr. Holman, in reply, said that he would take almost immediate steps to see that such inquiry was put on foot. "In the first place," Mr. Holman continued, "the matter of facilities of exportation must, of course, be carefully reckoned with. I am disposed to think that the effect of increased wages is very much exaggerated. With regard to the question of meat, I looked into this matter 18 months or two years ago, and there was clear evidence that butter was sold for less in the European market than in our own. The tariff is sometimes mentioned, but it is obvious that the rise in commodities is not due to the tariff at all. I was very much struck with what Mr. Stuart-Robertson said in regard to the proportionate increase in cost imposed by increased wages and the increase in price to the consumer. The increase in the price of bricks should have been 9d, whereas the brickmakers put on 4s. That is typical of what is going on. I am told bananas can be bought in Fiji for a shilling in bunches of about 15 or 20 dozen, and the cost of landing the same in Sydney would be about another shilling. These are retailed to the public at 6d and 8d per dozen. With regard to the fish supply, we have had some slight improvement since the council took it over, but I am assured that fish can be bought at one penny a piece at Port Stephens and will be sold in Sydney at 6d, while the cost of transport to Sydney is practically inappreciable. I believe that only the inferior meat is obtainable here, while the first-class meat is being sent abroad.

"This is corroborated by some information which was given me in connection with the rabbit industry. We are told that all rabbits that were unfit for export were returned and allowed to be sold in the streets for consumption, while others that were bruised were chopped up for sausages. I have no sworn evidence before me, but these are statements made to me by gentlemen in business. The bread question has also been mentioned. With regard to the question of vegetables that was mentioned by Mrs. Dwyer, there is possibly room for inquiry there. Mr. Stuart-Robertson and others who have spoken on the question of beef and preserved milk know that we have an Act which is intended to secure purity of the food supplies in this direction. It is, however, more or less ineffective, and instead of striking at the source of the evil it inflicts hardship on the retailer. I have cases before me, as Minister of Justice, where unfortunate women, fined heavily for selling some commodity, assure me that they sold it as they bought it, and did not know whether it was adulterated or not. The operations of that Act should also be inquired into by a Royal Commission.

"That brings me to the personnel of that Commission. We would want commercial experts and others who are able to discuss this matter from a public standpoint. There is nothing like having these things properly ventilated from every point of view, and also to represent all shades of public opinion. I shall only be too glad to consult my colleagues as to the necessity for appointing this commission of inquiry."

COMMONWEALTH AND STATE.

CONFERENCE OF MINISTERS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A brief conference was held this afternoon between the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, and the Acting Premier of Victoria, Mr. Watt.

Mr. Hughes subsequently stated that they had discussed State proposals with regard to the export of produce, in connection with which Victoria was erecting cool stores, and otherwise extending Governmental functions. The Victorian Minister had desired to know to what extent the Commonwealth intended to go in these matters, and how far their actions appeared likely to overlap. The question was also raised of the status and position of those employees now engaged in export supervision, who were paid partly by the State and partly by the Commonwealth. The request was, in brief, for an outline of the Commonwealth policy during the next two or three years, so that unnecessary clashing might be avoided.

The question of the Coronation Celebrations had also been discussed. Certain tentative proposals had been made, and he had been given a general idea of the schemes which had been entertained by the State. The desire was to prevent overlapping and produce uniformity of display. He had promised the Minister that he would give an answer in a week.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

To-day the Federal Cabinet considered the draft agreement for the transfer from South Australia to the Commonwealth of the Port Augusta-Oodnadatta railway, as submitted by the State Government. Certain recommendations by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor were reviewed, and an answer to the State Government was despatched asking for two or three minor alterations.

CYCLONIC STORM.

ROUGH COASTAL CONDITIONS.

MANY VESSELS SHELTERING.

LIGHT TO HEAVY RAIN.

The southerly gales predicted by the Commonwealth Weather Bureau raged on the New South Wales coast yesterday and considerably hampered shipping. The cyclonic storm began to intensify during the night, and by yesterday morning it had moved from the south to the central coast. As the disturbance worked north the gales were associated with heavy rain and rough to rising seas. The gale started in Sydney at 6.15 a.m. with a velocity of 30 miles per hour, and gradually increased until 35 miles was recorded between 11 a.m. and 12 noon, and a few gusts lasting a second or two reached 52 miles. At noon the wind eased down to 25 and 30 miles per hour. The heaviest rain in Sydney occurred just prior to the wind shifting to the south, when 10 points were recorded in five minutes. Substantial falls were again confined to the south-eastern districts, the following being the largest totals for the three days:—Moruya, 642; Ulladulla, 491; Bateman's Bay, 440; Bodalla, 365; Braidwood, 316; Nowra, 357; Araluen, 442; Bowral, 270; Jervis Bay, 226; Booligal, 195; Mossgiel, 178; Hay, 175; Hillston, 169; and Cobar and Rockley, 132. Little or no rain fell in the central parts of the State or west of the Darling. Cold conditions prevailed throughout the State, very few of the maximum temperatures reaching the seventies, the majority being in the fifties and sixties degrees. The minimum readings were not so very low, doubtless owing to the cloudy, rainy conditions. The only station to reach freezing point was Kosciusko.

When the new Blue Funnel liner Anchises and the Japanese mail steamer Nikko Maru arrived off the Heads it was too rough for the pilot's boat to be lowered from the Captain Cook. The pilots were therefore unable to get aboard. The customary procedure under such circumstances was adopted, the vessels following the Captain Cook into port. During the forenoon H.M.S. Torch proceeded down the harbour, intending to do a trial trip outside prior to setting out for the islands. When, however, she got as far as the quarantine ground she headed round again, and returned to her anchorage. Steamers coming from the north met the full force of the blow, and the Howard Smith liner Cooma, from Townsville, met it off Port Stephens, and had to fight against adverse conditions for the balance of the journey. The same also applied to the Cevic, from Brisbane. Many coastal vessels had to seek shelter. The Corra Lynn had to run into Newcastle. At Bellinger the steamers Rosedale and Myee, the schooners Sarah Hunter and Harold, and the ketches Aleda and Rozelle were all barbound. At the Tweed Heads the steamers Duranbah and Friendship were unable to cross out, and the Duroby was at anchor in the bay. The steamer Bellinger, coming south, turned round at Crowdy Head, and went north.

Rough conditions still prevailed on most parts of the coast last night. The reports at 6 p.m. were to the following effect:—

Tweed Heads, WSW, fresh, fine, bar rather rough; Byron Bay, W, fresh, fine, sea smooth; Ballina, W, fresh, fine, sea smooth; Clarence Heads, SW, light, cloudy, sea smooth; Woolgoolga, WSW, light, cloudy, sea smooth; Manning Heads, SW, strong, showery, sea rising; Port Stephens, S, strong gale, cloudy, sea rough; Newcastle, S, fresh gale, showery, sea rough; Lake Macquarie Heads, S, fresh, squally, showery, sea heavy; Catherine Hill Bay, S, fresh, squally, showery, sea heavy; Barranjoey, S, gale, showery, sea rough; South Head, SSW, strong, thick rain, sea rough; Wollongong, SW, fresh, showery, sea slight; Kiama, S, strong, thick rain, sea rough; Crookhaven Heads, S, strong, showery, sea rough; Jervis Bay, S, fresh gale, squally, cloudy, sea heavy; Ulladulla, S, light, raining, sea rough; Bateman's Bay, calm, cloudy, sea smooth; Moruya, S, fresh, squally, cloudy, sea slight; Eden, SW, moderate, squally, cloudy, sea moderate; Green Cape, SW, moderate, squally, cloudy, sea moderate; Gabo Island, W, fresh, squally, showery, sea moderate.

RAINFALL REGISTRATIONS.

Details of the rainfall registrations up to 9 a.m. yesterday were the following:—

Additional registrations to 9 p.m. were the following: Port Macquarie 155 points, Seal Rocks 89, and Gabo 26.

SQUALLS AT THE HEADS.

The weather was very thick at Sydney Heads late last night, with heavy squalls, and the sea making rough. The German-Australian steamer Sonneberg, bound to Madeira, via Melbourne and Geelong, did not venture out, anchors being dropped in Watson's Bay for the night.

BOOYONG.—A heavy thunderstorm occurred on Thursday, when 24 points fell in half an hour.

CLIFTON.—A very heavy downpour of rain fell on Thursday night, and continued till the early hours of Friday. On Friday the weather was exceedingly boisterous, with occasional fierce rain squalls.

COONABARABRAN.—Farmers had almost despaired of rain, but the downpour on Wednesday night has enabled them to plough.

EMMAVILLE.—The weather is threatening and very cold, with a tendency to snow. Thursday's rain put a little water in the dams.

GOODOOGA.—70 points of rain fell here on Thursday.

LISMORE.—Light showers fell on Thursday.

QUEANBEYAN.—After a spell of over six weeks dry weather, vivid lightning and thunder occurred on Wednesday, accompanied by steady rain. The fall, besides replenishing the water supply for domestic purposes, will enable farmers to proceed with ploughing operations, which were at a standstill. Sixty points fell up to 9 a.m. on Thursday, but it has been raining steadily all day. It is reported that a heavy storm occurred at Ginindera, which did considerable damage to fences, etc.

SUTTON FOREST.—The rainfall amounts to 135 points.

SHELLHARBOUR.—A cold southerly squall prevailed on Friday, accompanied by showers, and 70 points were registered till 5 o'clock, making a total of 2 inches. The present fall is the best since February.

TEMORA.—Splendid general rain has fallen throughout the district, averaging over one inch. Farmers were waiting rain before sowing, and will now commence putting seed in. A good deal of new land will yet be ploughed and sown with late seed, mainly bunyip, which last year gave splendid returns. Erin Vale Estate, Sebastopol, sown as late as August 4 by Messrs. J. T. and T. Fitzpatrick with Bunyip yielded 14 bushels per acre, and was ripe nearly a month before Federation and Hart's Imperial.

UNANDERRA.—On Friday morning 65 additional points of rain were recorded, making a total fall so far of 198 points. A cold wind accompanied the rain. The milk yield has materially decreased.

WEE WAA.—Nice rain has fallen here since Wednesday, but an inch or two more would be very useful.

WOLLONGONG.—Heavy rain fell again on Thursday night and Friday morning. The strong southerly wind had the effect of bringing up a heavy sea.

LAND TAX OBJECTIONS AND APPEALS.

The Deputy Commissioner of Land Tax notifies that objections and appeals may be lodged within 30 days after service of notice of assessment, and that assessment notice will be deemed to have been served at the time when such notice would, in the ordinary course of the post, arrive at the place to which it was addressed, or to the post town or post-office nearest to that place, whether it has or has not been received by the addressee.

AN INTERESTING RELIC. FROM THE ILL-FATED YONGALA.

A few days ago particulars were published respecting the finding of a lot of parcels and other mail matter near Cape Bowling Green, in the immediate vicinity of the spot where the Yongala was wrecked.

Among these were several for people resident in the Cloncurry and other districts of Queensland, the addresses being quite readable, despite the action of the soakage in the seawater.

The contents of one of these parcels should prove of considerable interest to women—not that this particular specimen is of any use at present—but because women generally are interested in these things. These were a pair of Royal "P.D." Rustless Corsets, which, although having been perhaps "a hundred fathoms deep," or more, for a very considerable time, yet retains a great deal of its original shape, and scarcely any signs of rust.

Such a fact is truly worthy of notice, as it speaks eloquently—and far more effectively than mere assertion—of the wonderful designing and workmanship of these justly celebrated French corsets.—Advt.

ENGINEDRIVERS' AWARD.

MR. JUSTICE HIGGINS' DECISION.

PREFERENCE TO UNIONISTS REFUSED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Mr. Justice Higgins, President of the Commonwealth Arbitration Court, to-day delivered his judgment in the dispute between the Federated Engine-drivers and Firemen's Association and the Mount Lyell Mining Company and others.

Mr. Justice Higgins said it had been contended that the Conciliation and Arbitration Act did not permit the registration of an association comprising a special class of workers, common to undertakings of such a varied character. He thought it would be well to submit this point, with others, to the High Court, but felt himself free to say that if such an association was not permitted by the Act, it ought to be permitted. He had no doubt, having regard to the demeanour and character of the witnesses, and to the intense and often fruitless struggles of the unselfish and thrifty to make ends meet, that there were among the men in all the five States involved general unrest as to their conditions of labour. The evidence as to the cost of living was not satisfactory, though there seemed to be no doubt that the cost was increasing. The evidence, however, did not justify him in saying by how much, or in altering the amount which he now called the basic wage by any definite sum. It could not be too clearly understood that he did not affect to appraise the value of each individual employee's work. He merely fixed the minimum to be paid to any man who performed work of a certain class, and if the employer desired to secure the services of a workman of exceptional qualification and ability there was nothing to prevent a contract for more than the minimum.

In regard to the claim for preference to unionists, other things being equal, Mr. Justice Higgins said that the Act gave him no direct guidance. He was, however, very loth to interfere with the employer's absolute discretion in choosing his employees, without the consent of the employers, or some very strong necessity. The absolute power of choice was one of the recommendations of the minimum wage system from the employers' point of view, as he could choose the best men available when he had to pay a certain rate. This freedom of choice tended to the efficiency of the industry, bracing up the men to show their powers. The burden of proof lay in the claimant to show that preference should be granted, and that burden had not yet been satisfied in this case, though circumstances might change, and, therefore, his refusal to grant preference now was without prejudice to any future application for it.

Mr. Justice Higgins then read the minutes of his proposed award:—

That the minimum wage be as follows:—Locomotive or winding enginedrivers, who have sometimes or always to carry passengers, or raise or lower human beings up or down a vertical or inclined shaft, 12s a day; similar enginedrivers, who have not to carry passengers or raise or lower human beings, 11s a day. In the case of the Mount Lyell and Broken Hill Proprietary companies, the rates of enginedrivers, as above, to be 13s and 12s a day respectively; other engine-drivers, including crane and winch drivers, 10s and 9s a day, according to the nature of the work, or if in charge of a plant 11s a day; firemen, if working two or more boilers of locomotives, 9s a day; firemen working one boiler only, 8s 4d per day, but in the case of the Mount Lyell and British Broken Hill companies 10s and 9s 4d a day respectively; greasers, trimmers, and engine cleaners, 8s a day, but 9s in the case of the Mount Lyell and British Broken Hill companies; boiler cleaners, 1s 6d an hour for "dirty" work, and 1s per hour for other work. Mr. Justice Higgins appended a number of definitions, which fixed eight hours as a day's work, and 48 hours as a week's work. It was directed that time and a quarter should be paid for the first two hours' overtime, and time and a half for overtime exceeding two hours. All work on Sundays and holidays to be paid for at the rate of time and a half. Holidays are to be Christmas Day, Boxing Day, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, and Eight-hours' Day (or Labour Day), or such other days as the employer may prescribe with the consent of the claimant association.

Mr. Justice Higgins said that he proposed to refer the following questions of law to the High Court:—(1) Is the association of land enginedrivers and firemen an association that can be registered under section 55 of the Act? (2) If not, is the objection fatal to the claim that the case comes on for hearing in this Court? (3) Are the respondents, or any of them, and if so which, subject to an award of this Court? (4) Is this Court "bound by the common rules of evidence" when evidence is tendered to show or to negative jurisdiction? (5) Is the certificate of the Registrar to be tendered as prima facie evidence of the fact of the existence of a dispute relating to an industrial matter in connection with the Engine-drivers and Firemen's Association, or any other association? (6) Has this Court power to include in an award provisions for a period of reference as appearing in the proposed award, or otherwise, and if so, how otherwise?

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

CONGRESS IN ADELAIDE.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

At the congress of the Associated Chambers of Commerce on Thursday, Mr. R. Knowles (Melbourne) moved that in all cases of Government or municipal trading or industrial undertakings annual balance-sheets in respect thereof should be issued as soon as possible after the closing of the financial year, showing the supervision and other charges, including interest, allowances for depreciation, etc., in the same manner as public companies are compelled to do. He said fuller information was highly important, in view of the tendency towards nationalisation. The present practice was unfair to outside firms.

Mr. A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.A. (Sydney), moved to add to the motion, "and that the balance-sheets should be certified to by a public chartered accountant."

The motion as amended was carried.

Mr. H. W. Berry (Melbourne) moved,—"That it is of the most importance that the Government of the Commonwealth should at the earliest possible moment open negotiations with the Government of Canada with a view of establishing mutual trade relations between the two countries; also that consideration be given to establishing similar relations with the Dominion of New Zealand and the extension of reciprocity with United South Africa." Carried.

Mr. Sinclair, M.P. (Ipswich), moved,—"That in order to afford greater safety to shipping on the Australian coast the Commonwealth Government be urged to expedite the installation of wireless telegraphy at all centres on the coast where necessary to provide a complete system of wireless communication."

Mr. Frank Johnson (representing Charters Towers) moved,—"That this conference respectfully, vigorously, and emphatically protests against the inadequate lighting of the northern coast of Queensland and the lack of proper communication between the outlying lighthouses and the mainland." Carried.

Mr. H. W. Berry (Melbourne) moved,—"That the Commonwealth Government be requested to open negotiations with the British and Canadian Governments with a view to their jointly acquiring control of the cable across the Atlantic Ocean from Canada to the United Kingdom."

Mr. H. W. Berry (Melbourne) also moved,—"That the Commonwealth Government be urged to arrange a mail service between Australia and Vancouver on the expiry of the existing contract, and in view of the desirability of our not only holding, but increasing, the export trade to Canada, provide that all steamers employed under any new contract call at Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane." He remarked that the present contract expired in a couple of months, and it was time Australia had a service of her own.

The motion was carried.

Mr. P. T. Berry (Brisbane) moved,—"That where the tariff law or regulations are not framed in agreement with world-wide business customs such alterations should be made by the Federal authorities in the regulations as will permit of business usages being recognised."—Carried.

Mr. W. W. Kerr (Melbourne) moved,—"That this council is of opinion that a policy of State-aided immigration of suitable settlers, vigorously maintained and scientifically conducted is essential to the wellbeing and progressive development of Australia, and directs attention to the urgent necessity for providing adequate means of transport for intending emigrants from the United Kingdom."—Carried.

It was decided to hold the next congress in Melbourne if possible during April.

Mr. A. S. Cheadle (Adelaide) was elected president, Mr. H. W. Berry (Melbourne) vice-president; Mr. S. J. Jacobs (Adelaide), hon. treasurer; and Mr. J. A. Reilly hon. secretary.

LATE COMMERCIAL.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

Wheat was steady at 3/4½ to 3/5 per bushel, trucks Port Adelaide, farmers' lots. Flour was quiet, and unchanged. Oats had nothing doing at 2/4 f.o.b., quoted selling value. There was still an inquiry from Western Australia for chaff, but the price, £3/17/6 per ton f.o.b., bags included, militates against business. Egg supplies, owing to the partly cold weather, were decidedly shorter, and a sharp advance occurred to 1/7. Butter stocks, largely from Victoria, had a good market, and the previous quotations, /11 to /12½ per lb for factory, dairies /10½ to /11½, ruled. Cheese was firm. New was in good demand at /5½ to /6½. Prime honey brought /2 to /2½. Branche's almonds brought /6½.

MOTOR SHOW.

MEETING OF THE TRADE.

ANNUAL EXHIBITION TO BE HELD.

A well-attended meeting of those interested in the motor-car trade was held yesterday afternoon at the rooms of the Royal Agricultural Society, to consider the advisability of holding an annual motor-car exhibition.

Mr. H. M. Somer, secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society, welcomed, on behalf of the council of the society the representatives of the motor-car firms present. When he proposed to the council to hold a motor-car show they unanimously agreed, and left it in his hands to make the necessary arrangements. The idea was to run the show as much as possible in the interests of the motor-car industry, and he would like to impress on the representatives of the firms that the society was not out for spoil, but wanted to give the motor-car people a chance to see the splendid workmanship that he was sure they could put before them. The interest in the motor business was growing every day, and particularly in the country. The idea of holding the show during the Metropolitan race meeting was to take advantage of the country people who came down then in considerable numbers.

Mr. H. D. Morton, who was voted to the chair said the council of the Royal Agricultural Society had authorised Mr. Somer to organise a motor-car show, to be held during the Metropolitan race week. It was for the meeting to say whether they would inaugurate the show in the interests of the trade generally. As one interested in the trade, he thought they should take advantage of the invitation to hold a great exhibition. It would give the people of the State an opportunity to inspect the various machines, and he appreciated the action of the Royal Agricultural Society. He suggested that a resolution be carried accepting the invitation of the council of the society to promote a motor car exhibition.

In reply to questions asking for the proposed details of the exhibition, Mr. Somer said the idea was to exhibit the cars in two stands, and motor-car requisites in the narrow court between them, generally used for merchandise stands. He thought that the maximum number of exhibits would be 5016, and the charge for space would be nominal, the society having charge of the general management. They thought that something should be done in the way of a ring display to show visitors what the cars could do. There could be a driving competition, or something in the nature of a gymkhana. Arrangements would be made for those who desired to take visitors for a run into Centennial Park. He mentioned that the Automobile Club was anxious to hold a gymkhana, and a day might be set apart at the show for that purpose by arrangement between the two bodies.

A discussion took place as to whether the show should be held at night, and an offer was made to illuminate the two stands free of cost.

Mr. Brown suggested that motor-cycles should also be exhibited. The Motor Cycle Club would render valuable assistance.

After further discussion it was decided to hold the show during Metropolitan week, to be open from 10 a.m. till 10 p.m.

A motion was carried that the following subcommittee be appointed to confer with the secretary of the society in the allotment of space on receipt of applications:—Motor-cars, A. H. Davies and Alick M'Neil; motor-boats, G. H. Norman; cycles, L. Marks; body-builders, H. A. Sweeney; accessories, including oils, lubricating, tyres, and tubes, H. A. Brown.

Mr. H. J. Vale, chairman of the tourist committee of the Automobile Club, announced that the club intended to hold a gymkhana in two months, and were desirous of co-operating with the meeting.

It was decided to appoint the following committee of seven to confer with the Automobile Club, as to the holding of a gymkhana, and submit a report to the next meeting after consultation with Mr. Somer.—Messrs. Skinner, Kloster, Morton, Browne, Innes, Davey, and Hamilton.

"UNBRITISH ACTION."

MR. VERNON'S PROTEST.

AUDIT DEPARTMENT'S WITNESSES.

ROYAL COMMISSION INQUIRY.

Strong exception was taken yesterday by Mr. W. L. Vernon, the Government Architect, to what he describes as the un-British methods being pursued by the Audit Department, in connection with the investigations now proceeding into the administration of his department.

The inquiry was resumed by Acting Judge Hamilton, sitting as a Royal Commission, into the administration of the Government Architect's Department relating to the supply of prime cost items for Government contracts. Mr. L. Armstrong appeared for the Minister, Mr. W. Loveridge for the Audit Department, and Mr. Vernon for his department.

James Joseph Giltinan, of Giltinan and Co., gave evidence that his firm could supply the sanitary ware in the Waterfall Hospital at considerably less than the prices charged. For instance, his price for eight certain articles would be £9 10s, as against £10 10s each, for eight others £5, as against £6 each, 16 at £4, as against £5 15s each.

Mr. Armstrong: Would your ware be as good as that supplied.

Witness: In my opinion, it would be.

Mr. Vernon: I wish, your Honor, to protest most emphatically against the un-British action of the Auditor-General's Department in putting rival tradesmen into the box to belittle the goods of their opponents. It is a most unheard of thing to bring forward evidence of that description. It would be different if the Auditor-General brought forward some independent expert, but when a gentleman is put into the box, who is a rival tradesman, and who very often quotes for us, I absolutely protest against evidence of that description being put before you.

His Honor remarked that he could only take the evidence as it was put before him, and he was bound to assume that it was the only evidence that could be got. The fact that the witness was a rival tradesman did not discredit his evidence.

Mr. Vernon: Who is to judge when we have two rival tradesmen, one running down the price of the other?

Mr. Giltinan, in reply to Mr. Vernon, said he would allow a trader 10 per cent. off the prices quoted. He was not in business 2½ years ago, when the particular goods were supplied, his prices being to-day's. He had no grudge against Waterfall Hospital.

Mr. Vernon: How can I cross-examine when there are two rival traders.

Mr. Armstrong explained why the evidence was called.

Mr. Vernon: The evidence is called to belittle my officers, and it is called in a most un-British way, too.

Mr. Armstrong: Other firms should be considered besides Tylor and Sons, and the evidence is called for that purpose solely.

Mr. Vernon: If the Auditor-General likes to call an independent expert, I will be perfectly content to accept his verdict, whether my officers are right in my judgment or not, but I won't accept the opinions of rival traders.

Mr. Armstrong: Can you suggest anyone?

Mr. Vernon: No; I shall not ask any more questions. I will let the inquiry go for what it is worth.

His Honor informed Mr. Vernon that he was there only on sufferance, and he could not allow such assertions to be made. He did not see any other way in which the matters could have been brought forward, and he did not see anything unfair in it.

Witness gave similar evidence regarding sanitary ware supplied to the Long Bay Penitentiary. Cross-examined by Mr. Vernon, he said he was aware that there were five or six qualities of porcelain baths. In some baths of German manufacture the iron could almost be seen through the glaze, and to the ordinary buyer there was no difference between them and those supplied by Tyler and Sons. He agreed that Tyler and Sons' ware was good.

Mr. Vernon: If the order had been sent to you for these goods, could you have supplied them at once?

Witness: No; not all of them.

There are some you do not stock at all?—Yes.

So that if they were wanted at the time you could not supply them?—No; not on the spot at once.

You would have to import them?—Yes.

Mr. Armstrong said he was not attacking the officers in the architect's department, but the system.

Mr. Vernon: I don't know what you are attacking.

CENSUS COMPILERS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Of 1064 candidates who presented themselves at the examination held on April 8 for temporary employment in connection with the compilation of the census, 184 were successful. The majority of the candidates were Victorians, and 122 passed the examination in this State. The numbers of successful candidates in other States were as follow:—New South Wales, 48; Queensland, 11; Tasmania, 2; Western Australia, 1.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"The Dollar Princess" will be reproduced at the Theatre Royal to-night for the opening of Messrs. J. C. Williamson's New Comic Opera Company, when Dr. Leo Fall's fascinating light-music, and the laughable plot, will be presented by a much strengthened cast, the principal characters now being allotted as follows:—Alice Conder, Miss Olive Godwin, Olga Libinska, Miss Florence Young, Freddy Fairfax, Mr. Reginald Roberts, Dick Conder, Mr. Langford Kirby, all for the first time in Sydney; Daisy, Miss Lottie Sargent, Earl of Quorn, Mr. Frank Greene; Bulger, Mr. W. S. Percy; and Harry Q. Conder, Mr. Bert Gilbert.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"The Gay Gordons" will be staged at the Criterion Theatre this evening, when the Clarke-Meynell English Opera Company will appear. All the artists will be new, excepting for the welcome return of Miss Maggie Knight in a new character as Janet M'Leod. Mr. Frank Lincoln will appear as the hero, Angus Graeme, and Miss Florence Imeson as the heroine, Peggy Quainton. The cast will further include: Nat Siddons, a showman, Tom Graves; Edmond Siddons, David Jefferson; Andrew Quainton, W. L. Montgomery; John Smith, Frank Compton; Marquis of Dalesbury, Alfred Deery; Archibald Speedy, Fred. Winn; Victoria Siddons, Nell Finnis; Charlotte Siddons, Nell Cosens; Mary M'Leod, Kathleen Starling, etc., etc. Mr. Albert Vernon will conduct the music.

WELCOME TO SOUSA AND HIS BAND.

Sousa is one of the most picturesque personages appearing before the public to-day. A poet, writer, philosopher, and musician, he is admittedly famous as a conductor. His fellow bandsmen of Sydney have accordingly decided to give the "March King" and his band a royal reception on their arrival here on Monday morning. The newcomers will be welcomed with musical honours, and afterwards, in conjunction with other musical societies and leading public citizens, will be entertained at the Town Hall. Sousa's first concert will be held at the Town Hall on the evening of Monday, in the presence of Lady Dudley and Adeline the Duchess of Bedford. The programme will consist of numbers from Rachmaninoff, Beethoven, Semetana, Filipovosky, Halonsen, Friedmann, Sousa, Liszt, and some of the popular music of the day. The various bands will mass at the Central Railway Station at 10.30 a.m. on Monday.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"Jack and the Beanstalk" will be performed at a matinee at Her Majesty's Theatre to-day, as well as in the evening, when another great audience is sure to witness the beautiful spectacular production of the fairy legend. Misses Sybil Arundale, Firmin, and Eaton, Messrs. Neil Kenyon, Jack Cannot, and Rupert Darrell are all prominent in the new piece, in which the Pantzer's acrobatic turn forms the star specialty.

"A WOMAN IN THE CASE."

The final performance of "A Woman in the Case," with Miss Mabel Trevor and Miss Elinor Foster as the deadly rivals in the thrilling plot, and Mr. Hugh Buckler as the level-headed lawyer, drew a crowded audience to the Criterion Theatre last night. The George Willoughby Company will this evening appear at Goulburn, and will play at Cootamundra, Wagga, and Albury on their way to Melbourne, where they open at the Theatre Royal, under the Clarke-Meynell management next Saturday. Last night's performance terminated amidst a scene of enthusiasm, during which heaps of flowers were handed up to the favourites of the company. Finally, Mr. George Willoughby was called forward, and in a speech of cordial thanks for the wonderful support accorded during the season, stated, amidst cheers, that there would be a return visit next February, when "A Fool There Was" would be staged for the first time.

ADELPHI THEATRE.

At the Adelphi Theatre, where "The Bad Girl of the Family" has drawn large audiences ever since the big new playhouse was opened, Mr. George Marlow announces the last nights of Melville's popular drama, for which "Under Two Flags" will shortly be substituted. This emotional drama, founded on Ouida's novel, will be presented in a spectacular form, with a great scene, showing the desert, and a sensational tableau, showing Cigarette (Miss Ethel Buckley) galloping on her charger. In the meantime, no date can be fixed, as "The Bad Girl" is still crowding the house.

The regular Sunday night sacred picture concerts will be continued to-morrow night at the New Adelphi Theatre under the direction of Mr. E. J. Kilpatrick. An excellent orchestra will augment a programme, which will embrace the latest sacred, scenic, and dramatic pictorial subjects. The doors will be opened at 7 o'clock.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

At the Tivoli Theatre this afternoon and evening Mr. Harry Richards' company will be joined by the Kavanagh Boys, novelty racquet-spinners, and eccentric club jugglers, and Scott Gibson, a new Scottish comedian, will also make his first appearance. The Seven Perezoffs in "An Animated Night" will present a star juggling turn. Reichen's Dogs will excite wonder and amusement; the last five nights of Peggy Pryde are announced, and "Black and White" Cadwall and Verne, Brown and Robinson, and Tom Dawson (last nights) are all in the bill.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

The star new-comers in to-day's performances at the above, afternoon and evening, will be the Four Valdares, sensational comedy trick cyclists, whose present increased number (two ladies and two gentlemen) have vastly improved their act. Hassan, in his extraordinary eye-lifting act, Harland and Rollison, the National Duo, Watts and Lucas, the Tit-bits trio, George Banveen, the Rowell sisters, Olga Pennington, Walter Whyte, Charles Pope, and others will strengthen the entertainment.

The second of the series of sacred concerts in the National Amphitheatre will be held to-morrow (Sunday) night. An approved programme of a suitable character will be submitted.

LYCEUM—SPENCER'S.

The last nights of the most successful local production from Mr. Spencer's factory of "The Fatal Wedding" and "Tin-can Band" are now announced. The new film has been showing for some time to record business. To-night a new programme will be submitted in connection with the above, including the splendid star subject, "The Fall of Troy," and comic and romantic stories. There will be the usual matinee.

WEST'S AT PRINCESS AND PALACE.

This afternoon and evening, both at the new Princess Theatre (a few yards this side of the Glaciarium), and at the Palace Theatre, West's Pictures will include the sensational "Trial of the Camorrists," and the Australian love story by local artists, entitled "A Hundred Years Ago." The "Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race," "Interstate Eight-oar Race," and other films will be shown. On Monday the new star series, "The Fall of Troy," will be the central attraction.

Next Saturday the much-talked of "Henry VIII." pictures, showing Tree, and other artists, will be produced. The conditions for competitors for West's prize essay are duly notified in another column.

WALTER THOMAS MILLS' LECTURES.

To-night Walter Thomas Mills, M.A., opens his season of interesting lectures in the Protestant Hall, the subject being, "What is Socialism?" Mr. Mills' writings on social, political, and industrial problems are regarded as standard works throughout the world, especially his book, "The Struggle for Existence." As an orator also he is credited with a great reputation. The subjects for his season next week will be:—"Australia, America, and the Yellow Peril," "Winning the World's Markets Without War," "England, Germany, and the Dreadnoughts," "The Fall of the House of Lords and the Rise of Democracy," and "Evolution, the Ascent of Man and the Progress of Society." The plan is at Cole's Book Arcade, George-street.

SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

The fourth of Mrs. Haffenden-Smith's series of Saturday Popular Concerts will take place in the Y.M.C.A. Hall to-night. An attractive programme will include such favourite artists as Miss Bessie Beattie, Mr. F. Mowat Carter, Signor Zanelli, and Mr. Walter Bentley, in association with Misses Gertrude Palmer, Katie Rappeneker, Mab Fotheringhame, Aileen Neill, E. Murden, J. Coleman, and Sid. B. Brown. The plan is at Nicholson's.

MR. NICHOLAS J. GEHDE'S CONCERT.

At Mr. Nicholas J. Gehde's concert at the Town Hall to-night popular items will be presented, including the special features of the recent Good Friday concert. Mr. Gehde's original "Storm Fantasia" will be repeated. Miss Vera Parker, the Queensland contralto, Miss Elsie B. Peerless, and Misses Lilian Frost (organist), Irene M'Pherson, Ivy Allen (violinist), Messrs. Maurice Chenoweth, Ernest Archer, R. Irvine (flautist), Roy Allen, A. R. Richards, Master Jack Hendley (boy soprano), and the Meistersingers' Male Quartette, will assist. Thirty-five cathedral chorister boys will sing "Estudantina" (Lacome) and "Gipsy Laughing Song" (Glover). The plan is at Paling's.

LYRIC AND COLONIAL THEATRES.

At the Lyric Theatre, near Rawson-place, and the Colonial Theatre, also in George-street, and at the Colonial Theatre No. 2, Mr. J. D. Williams presents continuous entertainments from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., showing a different programme at each of his handsome photo-play houses. The star attraction at the Lyric on Monday will be "The Fall of Troy," showing how Paris, son of the King of Troy, steals Helen from Menelaus, King of Sparta, and carries her away with the help of Venus, and how the Greeks thereupon make war upon Troy; and all the wondrous scenes that follow.

STANDARD THEATRE.

Two performances nightly, at 7 o'clock and at 9 o'clock, meet the convenience of patrons of the Standard Theatre, where the bright vaudeville entertainments are equally available to those who arrive at eight and wish to see the second performance.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

At the Empire Theatre, Oxford-street, a new programme of the latest moving pictures from Europe and America will be shown this evening, in conjunction with vaudeville turns, including Victor Martin, "l'Incomparable Jongleur."

AMERICAN PICTURE PALACE.

At the American Picture Palace, Pitt-street, continuous picture entertainments are the rule from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m., and the latest songs are also rendered, with beautiful illustrations.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.

Continuous photo-plays will keep the Alhambra Theatre open morning, afternoon, and evening, when the latest star films of current events abroad will also be shown.

NORTH SYDNEY COLISEUM.

At the North Sydney Coliseum, where the roller-skating over the vast available surface is proving popular, the adjoining theatre offers the latest moving pictures from 7.30 to 10 p.m.

SYDNEY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

The Sydney Symphony Orchestra will give the second concert of its fourth season in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon, May 27, at 3 o'clock. Several works new to Sydney will be performed, including Saint Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C Minor, for orchestra, combined with first piano (Miss Bessie Beattie), second piano (Mr. Robinson), and grand organ (Mr. G. Christian Hellemann); Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody in F major No. 1; Romanza from "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; and Marche Marocaine (Berlioz), will be rendered. Subscribers will be entitled to seats at the great concert, in conjunction with the Sheffield Choir.

MISS JOSIE MILES' CONCERT.

Miss Josie Miles, a prominent contralto, will make her last appearance in Sydney at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Tuesday next. Miss Miles will sing a scena from "I Promessi Sposi," and another beautiful number, "O Love From Thy Power" ("Samson and Delilah"), and favourite ballads, besides the duet, "The Harbour Lights," with Mr. Larsen. The contralto will be supported by Miss Alicia Nolan, and Messrs. Cyril Monk, Charles Larsen, George S. Holburn, and a double quartet from the Garcia School of Music. The plan is at Nicholson's.

LAWRENCE CAMPBELL RECITALS.

Mr. Lawrence Campbell's second recital of the 1911 season will take place in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday evening next, when the popular entertainer will present "Enoch Arden," Tennyson's great poetic idyll of love, duty, and self-sacrifice. This is a number in which Mr. Campbell won applause right throughout the Commonwealth and New Zealand. The plan is at Nicholson's.

MISS MADGE HELLMRICH'S CONCERT.

Miss Madge Hellmrich, who is to receive a complimentary concert in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Wednesday, 24th inst., will have the assistance of an able committee working with enthusiasm. Miss Hellmrich will sing, and will be assisted by Misses Kathleen Cummings, Lynn Mills, Ella James, and Dorothy Hellmrich, Messrs. Bryce Carter, J. Tristram, Harry Neil, Harry Leston, Charles Larsen, and Dudley Hellmrich. The plan opens at Paling's next Wednesday.

AUSTRAL STRING QUARTET.

The Austral String Quartet (Cyril Monk, Alfred Hill, Vost Janssen, and Carl Gotsch) will open the 1911 season of Four Chamber Music Concerts in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thursday next, when a programme of much musical importance will include Alfred Hill's new string quartet in B Flat. The assisting artists will be Madame Cecilia Waldron and Mr. Laurence Godfrey Smith. The plan is at Nicholson's.

WALTER BENTLEY RECITALS.

The May Costume Recital of the Walter Bentley College of Elocution and Dramatic Art will take place on Thursday next in St. James' Hall. Judging from the box plan at Paling's the audience will only be limited by the size of the hall. Scenes from "Lord Fauntleroy" and "The Lady of Lyons," with the farce, "The Spectre Bridegroom," for the students by themselves, and a scene from "The Taming of the Shrew," with Mr. Bentley as Petrucio, and the amusing Scotch play, "The King and the Miller," with Mr. Bentley as Jock Howieson, will be included. Seatholders are requested to be seated by 8 o'clock.

MLLE. ANTONIA DOLORES.

Mlle. Antonia Dolores, who has been spending a pleasantly profitable season of four months in New Zealand, will shortly return to Sydney, and commence a brief return tour of the Commonwealth. Her experience of the Dominion has been most satisfactory in every way, and she speaks glowingly of her reception there. Mlle. Dolores is expected to be in Sydney on or about June 6.

The Australian Life Biograph Company announces that the film, "One Hundred Years Ago," shown at the Princess and Palace theatres, was produced at the factory at Manly.

MOTOR TRACTION.

A REMARKABLE TRIAL.

An interesting trial of motor traction brought a group of representative men out to the works of the Auburn Brick Company, Ltd. yesterday. A 60-80-h.p. road tractor, manufactured by the Caldwell Vale Motor and Tractor Construction Company, Ltd. was loaded up with 2080 bricks, and three horse lorries with the shafts removed, each carrying 1000 bricks, were coupled up. The total weight of the bricks is estimated at 20 tons. The motor tractor was placed on the up grade leading from the yard on a very loose surface. The trial was for the tractor to carry its own load and trail the three laden lorries from the yard to Duck Creek wharf, about three miles. At the word "go," when the temporary couplings of the trailers had been fixed, the motor tractor started straight away. Just on the crest of the rise the motor was stopped to allow of a photo being taken, and, without a hitch, the motor went on again. Twice during the journey a halt was called for photographing purposes at the worst part of the hill, and each time the tractor started off at the word. It is estimated that some of the grades surmounted by the tractor were one in ten, and it was easily seen that the motor could make up pace on the level, as the loose horses that were following had to keep up a fast trot to keep pace with the waggons. The motor tractor, which was all made in New South Wales, except the carburetter and magneto, has a four-wheel drive. Every wheel is driven by the motive power, by a patent device, and this enables the motor to run over rough roads and even surfaces, and on good roads to give the maximum power. The makers claim that the tractor will carry six tons, and, in addition, trail from 15 to 20 tons. Among those present who witnessed the trial were the Lord Mayor of Sydney, Alderman Allen Taylor, Mr. W. J. Johnson, M.P., Senator Allan McDougall, Mr. De Burgh, representative of the Minister for Works, the Tramway Advisory Committee (the Hon. F. Flowers, M.L.C., Acting Chief Secretary, and Messrs Kneeshaw and Conyers). Messrs. Burrows, R. Cropley, H. J. and F. J. Vale, A. H. Yabsley, and D. Malone were also present. Mr. Cook, manager of the brick works, overlooked the loading, and Mr. F. Caldwell, manager of the motor traction firm, looked after the motor.

CASUALTIES.

HANGED FROM THE BANNISTERS.

An inquiry was held yesterday at the City Coroner's Court concerning the death of James Alfred Scholefield, a middle-aged man, which occurred at 190A Cumberland-street, on Tuesday last. Deceased, who was a bricklayer's labourer, was of temperate habits, but recently was not in the best of health. On Monday night last he was unwell, and said that he thought he was going to die, and was not afraid. He did not say anything about taking his own life, but on the following day he was found by one of the inmates of the house hanging by a strap round his throat from the bannisters. There was also a gash in his throat. A razor with congealed blood on it, together with a basin containing blood, were found in his room. A verdict of self-inflicted death was returned.

FALL FROM A LORRY.

Charles Overton, 24, residing at Allen-street, Pyrmont, fell from a lorry in Sussex-street, yesterday, the wheels passing over his head. He was seriously injured, and after gasping "Tell my wife" lapsed into unconsciousness. The Civil Ambulance conveyed the man to Sydney Hospital. He regained consciousness during the night.

FOR THE DOGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A lost dog is the most pitiable of all creatures, because it depends entirely on the kindness of human beings for its support and happiness. I am sure if people would only think for a moment of the anguish felt by these dumb creatures they would gladly send a small subscription to the only existing home for lost dogs in Sydney, Grasmere-road, Neutral Bay. This home is sadly in need of funds to meet increasing expenses, and to enlarge the accommodation, which is now quite inadequate. It is entirely kept up by voluntary subscriptions, and hundreds of dogs who otherwise would have starved have been found good homes. Help is needed for these long-suffering dumb creatures. It will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the undersigned. I am, etc.,

ADELA COMPTON LEGGE.
Hon. Sec. Northern Suburbs Stray Dogs' Home, Abbott-street, North Sydney.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The gracious permission of Queen Alexandra to allow King Edward's name to be added to the Home for Dogs is a great satisfaction to its supporters. For, so far, it is the only definite memorial we have in New South Wales to the memory of the late King, and as far as the animal world is concerned, it is a fitting one to a man who, throughout his life, showed consideration and sympathy to dumb creatures. The objects of the home are:—(1) To clear the streets of diseased and stray animals; (2) to provide homes for sound and curable dogs; (3) to let those badly diseased pass out by means of a lethal chamber, instead of being shot, as at present; (4) to provide a home for pet animals during their owner's absence or convenience; (5) to give an opportunity for lost dogs to be reclaimed by owners. The land is secured, the fence erected, a temporary house for the attendant and a good number of kennels and yards are in course of construction, and it is to be hoped that within two months the home will be in full swing. But we need money for an ambulance and its up-keep, and wish to have the first year's expenses in hand. We have no hesitation in asking the public for subscriptions towards this object.

I am, etc., E. MACKINNON,
President King Edward Home for Dogs.

Shortly before 7 o'clock last night the tram traffic in George-street was temporarily suspended, owing to a car while negotiating one of the curves leaving the rails.

SHIPBUILDING PROGRESS.

From the returns compiled by Lloyd's Register of Shipping, it appears that, excluding warships, there were 480 vessels of 1,374,904 tons gross under construction in the United Kingdom at the close of the quarter ended March 31. The tonnage now under construction is about 242,000 tons more than that which was in hand at the end of last quarter, and exceeds by 217,000 tons the total building 12 months ago. The warship tonnage building at the present time is the highest recorded in the society's quarterly returns for the last 10 years. Of the vessels under construction in the United Kingdom at the end of March, 378 of 956,289 tons were under the supervision of the surveyors of Lloyd's register with a view to classification. In addition, 73 vessels of 244,776 tons were building abroad to the society's classification. The total building at the present time under the supervision of Lloyd's register was thus 451 vessels of 1,201,065 tons.

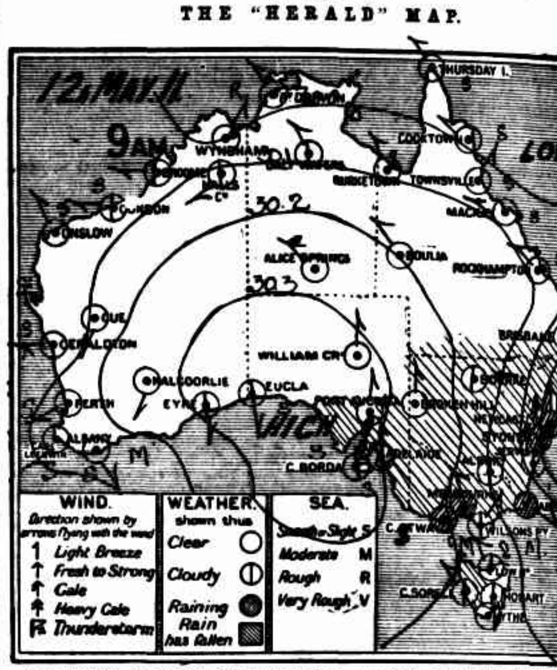
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The cyclonic disturbance has intensified on our coast, and is now centrally situated off Newcastle. This disturbance is resulting in moderate to strong southerly gales and heavy rain, with rough and rising seas between Jervis Bay and Port Macquarie. The high pressure has moved eastward about 400 miles, and has lost one-tenth in barometric values. The centre is now about Fowler's Bay.

Ocean Forecasts.—Gales on New South Wales coast; becoming squally off the Leeuwin.

RAID AT WOOLLAHRA.

SIXTEEN MEN ARRESTED.

The police last night made a successful raid on an alleged gaming house in Oxford-street, Paddington.

The place has been under observation for some time past, and last night Sub-inspector Branston decided to attempt to gain an entrance. A number of police wearing civilian clothes, under Senior Constable Lonsdale and Senior Constable Robertson, sauntered up to appointed places near the house about 9 o'clock. Their presence was unsuspected, and when they rushed the house the occupants were taken by surprise. The demand by the police for admittance was unheeded, and they immediately set about breaking down the doors. This they accomplished, and rushing upstairs witnessed a scene of wild excitement. Several of the occupants were attempting to get through the window, but they were quickly secured and handcuffed. Others tried to force their way through the police guard, while a couple of the more daring climbed on to the roof. A couple of constables, however, went in pursuit, and succeeded in securing the men. Sixteen men were captured, and a quantity of gaming paraphernalia and money secured.

The prisoners were placed in cabs and conveyed to the Paddington Police Station, where two were charged with assisting in conducting a common gaming house, while the remainder were charged with being found on the premises without lawful excuse.

The premises are situated close to the Waverley Tramway depot, and it was stated that several of the men arrested were tramway employees.

NEWCASTLE HARBOUR TRUST.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

A meeting of city aldermen and representatives of the other public bodies was held at the council-chambers, Newcastle, on Thursday to consider the proposal of a Harbour Trust for Newcastle. Alderman Sheddon, Mayor of Newcastle, presided. A motion was passed, protesting against the Newcastle Harbour being placed under any other than local control. It was arranged that a deputation wait upon the Acting Treasurer, Mr. Carmichael, on the occasion of his visit to Newcastle, in order to place the views of the meeting before him.

FINANCIAL.

AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL FIRE.

The annual report of the Australian Mutual Fire Insurance Society for the 12 months ended March 31 shows an income for the period of £52,837, which, less expenditure, including losses of £35,731 and £653 brought forward, made £17,759 available. This the directors have applied as follows:—To contingent fund, £5000; to reserve fund, £1500; to bonus of 20 per cent. on premiums, £10,279; leaving £979 to be carried forward. The bonus of 20 per cent., halved between the shareholders and policyholders, amounting to £10,279 was the largest yet distributed. The society's invested funds now amount to £231,228. The following comparisons may be made:—

	Year ended March 31. 1908.	1909.	1910.	1911.

The shareholders met yesterday, Mr. S. H. Cary presiding. The report was adopted. Mr. James P. Johnson was re-elected director, and the retiring auditor, Mr. William H. Perry, was also re-elected.

GERMAN-AUSTRALIAN TRADE

From Herr W. de Haas, Commercial Attache to the German Consulate, we have received a return of German-Australian trade for 1909. The following is a summary of the figures:—

	1908. £	1909. £		Inc. (x) or decrease (—) £
Imports into Germany—
Merchandise	9,293,450	11,654,850	x	2,361,400
Total	15,092,600	11,857,050	—	3,235,550
Exports from Germany	2,896,700	2,918,600	x	21,900
Total Trade	17,989,300	14,775,650	—	3,213,650

This comparison reveals a considerable increase in the German imports of Australian produce, mainly due to larger purchases of wheat, and a still more considerable decrease of the gold shipments. The exports from Germany to the Commonwealth have only slightly increased. Leaving out the gold shipments—which are made on account of English banks or other Australian creditors—the balance of trade in favour of Australia has grown from £6,396,750 to £8,736,250. The Commonwealth statistics for 1909 give the following figures:—

Exports to Germany—
Merchandise	£5,944,634
Gold	450,000
Total	£6,394,634
Imports from Germany	£4,538,612
Total trade	£10,933,246

The discrepancy between the two sets of figures is explained by German purchases of Australian produce in London and elsewhere (wheat to the Channel for orders), and the sale of German manufactures to the Commonwealth, via the same and other places. If the import figures for 1909 of both statistics are accepted as correct, the following result is obtained:—

Imports into Germany	11,654,850
Exports to the Commonwealth	4,538,612

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

During the present month grocery lines generally have been more active than at any previous period of the present year, and for import of many lines there have gone forward large orders, especially in all fish goods. New season's ling fish, for shipment from Norway in July and August, and until the end of the year, has been in first-class demand, and large contracts have been made. Prices this year are higher than those of previous years. Canned lobsters are receiving support, and the new season's shipments just to hand are turning out in excellent condition. In sardines the markets at the other end are very quiet, and packers advise a small business only. The factories generally are quiet, which state will probably rule until July or August, when the summer catch will take place. There is a good demand for Norwegian sardines. Buyers are still anxious to obtain the option of booking more salmon when the catch is known. Some packers are enlarging their canneries in the endeavour to meet the demand, but it is almost certain that full quantities will not be available for Australia. Merchants are anxious to procure Californian prunes, which will not be packed till October next, and all firm offers which have been made from San Francisco have been readily accepted by buyers here. Sales made in coffee have been for satisfactory amounts, prompt shipment from San Francisco being contracted for. Prices are higher than at this time last year. All Singapore produce continues to maintain very high rates. That offers, on being sent up at shaded quotations, which are usually accepted, should have been refused is direct testimony that sellers are not anxious to operate. Canned asparagus is finding ready sale, and appears to be getting more popular each year. Although Californian packers are expecting a good crop, they advise that owing to the demand being so much heavier than in previous years, prices are sure to be maintained during the season.

Very little private business was done in teas yesterday, though there was good inquiry for these lines, of which the market is practically bare. At the auctions, of the 536 Indians offered, only half were sold, at prices ranging from /7¾ to /9¼. Of Ceylons, 390 packages were offered, and practically all were sold on market valuations up to /10 1-8.

In the metal market tin plates to arrive were, in sympathy with the cabled quotation of a few days ago, a little easier, 17/9 being asked. Spot quotations were unchanged. Cement showed further easing of about /6 a cask, large lots being obtainable at 13/6, and small lots at 14/. Large sales of strychnine were made at 2/9. An easier tone prevailed in all paint oil. Though linseed oil had not changed, there was an impression that all brands would be a little lower next week. The cable quoted Thistle brand, June to August shipment, at 3/7 net naked for raw, f.o.b. Glasgow. For turpentine the market generally was lower, Pratt's being quitted at 5/10, Pinetree at 5/7, and Russian at 4/6. Castor oil was about a penny cheaper distributing, and white leads were about 10/ per ton cheaper. Both castor oil and rapeseed oil were cabled firm in the Eastern markets, and prices will consequently advance here. Fish oils found no relief from the ruling high prices, and even June and July shipments will make no material difference in this market.

The jute market was firm, with an advancing tendency. Sales of new season's woolpacks to arrive were made at 2/5. No branbags could be obtained under 4/1½, and cornsacks were quoted at the lowest at 5/7, some houses asking 5/7½. Sales were made of 20oz orebags at 3/3. Sixteen-ounce orebags were hard to obtain. From Calcutta it was cabled that the market was strong, and that speculators were operating.

SORTING AND STACKING CHARGES.

The arrangement with the shipping companies that all cargo from the United Kingdom, the Continent of Europe, and the east coast of North America will be sorted and stacked, and will be subject to a sorting and stacking charge, has been discussed by the mercantile community during the past week. The consensus is that the scheme in principle is good, but that in some details it should be modified. The first question which arises is, Can the scheme be carried out? Expressions of opinion which have been given are that it cannot be carried out on every wharf. On some wharfs the accommodation and arrangement will permit of it being done, but as to others it is considered that their construction will be against the scheme. But when this objection is disposed of there remains the further objection that in some instances charges will be made for very little work done. If sorting and stacking are performed it is acknowledged that the mercantile community will be greatly benefited, and that they will be saved expense, of cartage for example, as perhaps it will mean that the distance travelled by the waggons will be reduced by one-third, occasionally more. Thus where a ship has for her cargo a large number of small packages of many different marks sorting and stacking will be of great assistance to the consignee. There will not be the struggle to obtain the goods from the wharf which is now the practice. For such convenience a charge should be made. But the case is altogether different with bulky lines of cargo, or in cases where a ship brings goods of perhaps only two or three marks. Rock salt, for instance. How can that be sorted? What benefit would sorting and stacking be to the consignee of such a shipment? Then, again, we have pigiron and scrapiron. These are usually delivered into lighters. A charge of /3 and /6 a ton entered up to "sorting and stacking" these lines is considered too heavy. It is also considered that should these charges be enforced, and owing to the manner of sorting and stacking there should occur delay in obtaining possession of the goods, the shipping companies should be responsible. On the other hand, there is a suggestion that with these charges in force a longer time should be allowed before a claim is made for storage.

EXPORT OF MEAT.

A proclamation published in the "Government Gazette" announces that the Governor-General with the advice of the Executive Council, acting under the Customs Act, 1901-10, prohibits the exportation of any meat unless it has been certified by an inspector appointed under the Commerce Act to be fit for export.

BUTTER STATISTICS.

WEIGHT OF CORNSACKS.

THE RISK OF FORFEITURE.

The rigid enforcement by the Customs Department of the regulation that the standard cornsack shall weigh not less than 2¼lb on importation may cause something in the nature of a deadlock in the trade. The Calcutta millowners will not guarantee to buyers that each particular cornsack, which they supply according to the specifications of "8 porter and nine shot," will be the full weight on arrival in Australia. These millowners declare that they will not accept responsibility for any conditions which the Commonwealth may put upon their manufacture, and add that Australian buyers must abide by the customs of the jute mills, which are recognised all over the world. The Calcutta manufacturers have offered to guarantee that in each bale 90 per cent. of the sacks shall not vary more than 2oz above or below the 2¼lb, and that each bale shall weigh 690lb, which is 15lb above the weight were each sack the exact standard weight. It is pointed out by merchants here that in the voyage from Calcutta jute may lose 5 per cent. in weight, or as much as 7½ per cent. in weight. Cornsacks are shipped at the height of the monsoon, and therefore are full of moisture, but in the dry hold of the steamer the moisture is lost. This fact, it is contended, should be taken into consideration when administering the regulation. The main thing is the specification of "8 porter and 9 shot," and it is contended that if the sacks are up to specification in this respect, the fact of their being slightly underweight should not entail confiscation, which action the department threatens to take. A proposal has been made that buyers here and representatives of Calcutta houses should wait upon the Minister, point out their position, and ask that the regulation should be administered in a reasonable spirit. At the present time, it is asserted, the officer inspecting takes five bags from a bale of 300, and if one of these bags is found to be short, then the whole bale is condemned. At this meeting proposals would be put forward for making a fairer test, and for providing for some appeal from the decision of the Customs inspector. In any case the matter needs prompt attention, as orders should now be going forward for the season's shipments, but millowners refuse to ship unless at risk of Australian buyers, and buyers are delaying orders because they are not willing to take the risk. Should the department be obdurate the only alternative will be the ordering of 2½lb bags, which would mean increased cost to the wheat-growers on the already high prices of sacks.

MERCHANTS CONSIDER THE POSITION.

Yesterday the merchants importing jute goods held a meeting to consider their position with regard to the forfeiture regulation. The matter discussed was the respective liability of buyer and seller of a consignment of cornsacks which are sold "ship's slings," and which the Customs afterwards forfeits, on the ground of their being underweight. It was generally considered that under present conditions any loss by forfeiture would fall on the seller, who, therefore, to provide the bales to be had sold, would have to go into the market, and to satisfy his customer, would be compelled, perhaps, to purchase at a higher rate than he sold. To safeguard against this contingency, a suggestion was put forward that the contract should include a clause stipulating that, in case of forfeiture, the contract might be voided. This would practically mean that all business would be done on the basis of "goods delivered." Another suggestion was that the Sydney Chamber of Commerce should approach the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, and ask that a committee of arbitration should be appointed in Sydney to deal with disputes regarding weights. The proposals were remitted to a small committee for report.

BREADSTUFFS.

Wheat was unchanged yesterday at 3/4½ to 3/5 per bushel ex truck Sydney. The rains in the country have been of a most serviceable nature, soaking well into the soil, and doing far more good than a heavy downpour, which would for the most part all run off the land. All the wheat-growing area seems to have participated in the fall, except a small district between the Murray and Murrumbidgee, where only small amounts were recorded. It is expected that these rains will release a lot of wheat now in farmers' hands, as the start of the new wheat is now certain. Millers were buying at 3/6½ for best samples. London was cabled steady. Our own cables show that the Continental demand continues.

Flour was quiet and unchanged at £8/10/ a ton.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 502 tons wheat and 164 tons flour were manifested to arrive.

LONDON MARKET CABLES.

SILVER.

LONDON, May 11, 6.40 p.m.

Bar silver is quoted to-day at /24⅜ per ounce standard, an advance of ⅛d since yesterday.

WHEAT MARKET.

May 12, 1.40 a.m.

The wheat market closed yesterday a shade easier on the decline in the American markets, this decline being due to better weather reports, but the strong Continental demand continues, with some British speculation, which renders a serious relapse improbable, although the European crop outlook is favourable. Holders are asking 35/6 per quarter for South Australian steamer cargoes January shipment, and 35/3 for New South Wales steamer cargoes April shipment.

Sales of the following cargoes are reported:—

Cumberland, ship, Adelaide March 11, 33,832 bags, at 35/1½ per quarter of 480lb c.i.f.

Calluna, bq, Port Victoria (S.A.) February 20, at 35/3 per quarter of 480lb c.i.f.

Downshill, bq, Port Pirie March 11, at 35/3 per quarter of 480lb c.i.f.

An improved demand exists for Australian wheat on spot at 37/ to 37/6 per quarter of 496lb. New Zealand wheat new crop is selling at 35/6, and old at 34/ to 34/6. There is more activity on c.i.f. terms.

FLOUR.

In the flour market South Australian and Victorian May shipments are selling at 23/6 to 23/9 per sack of 280lb. There is a slow demand for flour on spot at 24/6 to 25/ per sack (practically unchanged on the week).

OATS.

The market for oats is firm, but high prices are restricting sales. Gartens are selling at 20/ to 22/ a quarter, sparrowbills at 19/6 to 21/6, and La Plata May-June shipment at 14/9.

BEANS.

The supply of beans on spot is small. Quotations are 35/ to 35/6 per quarter.

FREIGHTS.

The market for freights is quiet. An Australian steamer fixture for May-June has been made at 24/ a ton.

BUTTER.

Butter is quiet and unchanged. A few of the choicest colonials arriving, sell readily Australian salted at 96/ to 98/ per cwt, occasionally 100/; unsalted at 102/, a few at 104/. New Zealand salted is selling at 104/ to 106/, and unsalted at 108/. Secondary qualities are neglected. European supplies are increasing rapidly.

[Dalgety and Co. are in receipt of a cable from their London office, advising "the imports of butter into the United Kingdom last week were 81,000cwt, as compared with 92,000cwt for the corresponding period of previous year, the decrease being 11,000cwt. Quotations in London for finest butter are:—Danish, 112/ per cwt; New Zealand, salted, 106/ per cwt; Australian, salted, 98/ per cwt; Australian, unsalted, 102/ per cwt. Good to fine Australian, 96/ to 94/; inferior, which is quite neglected, is quoted at from 76/ to 80/ per cwt. Owing to warmer weather, and an increase in the home production, there is less demand for imported butter. In order to preserve the quality a proportion of the Australian consignments being received on account of factories are going into cold store to be marketed as favourable opportunities offer." A similar cable has been received by Foley Bros., Ltd.]

CHEESE.

The market for cheese is steady. New Zealand coloured is in better demand at 62/ per cwt. (unchanged).

METALS.

Closing quotations yesterday were:—

Cornsacks on the spot were quoted at 5/6 to 5/7½. Branbags brought 4/1½ to 4/3 on the spot. Woolpacks made 2/6, forward delivery. Fair business was done in linseed oil to arrive. Distributing quotations on the spot are 5/6 and 5/8 for Blundell's, and /1 less for other brands. Pratt's turpentine was quoted at 5/6 for distributing lots.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

ONIONS DOWN.

The expected fall in chaff, that was predicted for the end of the week, if rain eventuated, was not apparent on Friday. It was stated by those who are authorities on the chaff market, that there is at present a genuine scarcity of chaff. And also there have been large shipments of chaff to New Zealand, and Western Australia is ordering large consignments, so that there is any quantity of chaff going out, and prices are maintained. Another surprise that was found on the street on Friday, was the firm price of prime maize. Contrary to expectations the price of 2/9 was general, and very steady, for it was generally expected that the wet weather would cause a slump in the yellow grain. The reason for the firm price is to be found in that same weather that was expected to deaden the market. The rain is from the south, and is accompanied by violent southerly squalls, which have had the effect of closing the coastal harbours and all the maize that was expected to come in and relieve the market is penned up inside impassible bars. Onions on Friday were down to the low figure of £2/10/, as very highest for the vegetable, while some merchants mentioned having disposed of large lots for the still lower price of £2/5/. The cause of this drop is oversupply, and bad condition of the arrivals. Other lines of produce were unaltered.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

NEW-LAIDS MUCH QUIETER.

The only alteration apparent in the prices quoted on Friday was in new-laid eggs, which were decidedly easier. There were some merchants who still hung on to the high price, but they were in a decided minority. In the other extreme were those who quoted their new-laids at 2/ generally, with a few choice a 2/2, an average quote would be 2/ to 2/3, with a few at 2/6. Other lines of dairy produce showed no alteration in price, though cheese was if anything a little more hopeful in tone. As usual Friday was a quiet day, the business for the week ending, practically, on Thursday.

The following prices were ruling:—

Butter.—Selected grocers' brands 92/; other prime brands, 88/ to 90/, secondary 78/ to 83/ per cwt, pastry 70/ to 76/ per cwt.

Lard.—Bulk, /5½; packets, /6½; special packets, /6½; bulk, /6½ per lb.

FIREWOOD.

There were 45 trucks of firewood sold at the following rates:—

Best box 19/ to £1, good 18/ to 19/; ironbark and stringy, 12/ to 17/; best bakers', 15/, good 14/ to 14/6.

AUCTION SALES.

THE RAILWAY MARKET.

CHAFF EASIER.

Chaff occupied the greater portion of the sales at the Redfern yard on Friday. Of the 65 trucks offered 45 were of this commodity. Of the remainder 15 were potatoes. Wheaten chaff, in consequence of the over supply, showed a decline of 5/, choice cuts going out at 4/4 to 4/11, prime 4/, good 3/8 to 3/11, and medium 3/4. Oaten chaff remained stationary at 4/ to 4/3 for prime, and 3/6 for good. Medium truss lucerne hay brought 2/4. Prime chickwheat declined /1, prime selling at 3/3½ and 3/4. Prime potatoes found purchasers at 5/2 to 5/10, good at 4/ to 4/5, and medium at 3/ to 3/9.

FRUIT MARKETS.

TRADE VERY DULL.

The fruit markets on Friday presented a very quiet appearance. Trade was practically dead in all lines but apples and pears, which showed a little animation. Lemons especially were dull of sale, and pineapples were very little better. Small and inferior grapes were practically unsaleable. Other lines of fruit were hanging fire. Bananas, however, were very scarce, and the quotes below are only nominal, as practically none are to be obtained.

Current quotations were:—

Apples.—Dessert, extra choice 9/ to 10/, choice 6/ to 7/, medium 4/ to 5/, small 2/6 to 3/; cooking, choice 4/6 to 5/, medium 2/6 to 3/; jam lots, 2/ per gin-case. PROPERTY MARKET.

The sales for the week show a keen inquiry for investment lots in all directions. The small allotment for the thrifty man is now a great favourite, and business in these lots maintains a very steady tone. Several large estates and building sites have been disposed of also, and generally speaking business has been very good. Below are the reports of several of the leading property agents, showing the extremely healthy tone of the market at present prevailing.

Hardie and Gorman have sold by public auction and private treaty during the week the following:—Redfern, terrace, comprising two shops and one house, for £1685; Glebe, two houses, Nos. 69 and 71, Darghan-street, and cottage, No. 15 Cardigan-street, for £825; Mount Wilson, W.B. Cottage, known as Nooroo, and 11½ acres of land, for £800, block of unimproved land, about 53½ acres, for £130; Brookvale, in conjunction with E. A. Grain, on the ground, last Saturday, 15 allotments of the Brookvale Beach Estate, for £472; North Sydney, in conjunction with Fowler and Costello, block of land, Lane Cove-road, for £368; Blackheath, block of land, fronting station-street and Murri-street, for £215; Hornsby, in conjunction with J. G. Edwards and Co. and H. J. C. Robinson, 5 allotments, portions of the Mount Pretoria Estate, for £220; also allotment, portion of Hornsby Junction Estate, for £42; Wyong, in conjunction with E. Woodbury and Co., farm block, Macpherson Estate, for £173; Randwick, in conjunction with Alldis and Co., Ltd., allotment, Roberts Estate, for £120; Newport, in conjunction with King and Humphery, allotment, Ocean Beach Estate, for £35.

FORTHCOMING SALES.

Croydon.—Richardson and Wrench, Ltd., will offer for sale by public auction, on the grounds, at 3 p.m. to-day, the estate known as Melvern Hill, Croydon. The allotments are all excellently situated, are under Torrens title, and will be sold under a building covenant of £400.

Bengalla Subdivision.—In connection with the Bengalla subdivision it is to be noted that no residence conditions are imposed, so that it is quite optional whether purchasers reside upon their holdings.

MINING.

SILVER VERY FIRM. COPPER WEAK.

OTHER DIVISIONS LIFELESS.

The state of the market yesterday morning may be explained in a few words, but the cause of that state is an entirely different matter. Briefly stated, the market was remarkably buoyant in the case of silver shares, was weak in copper stocks, whilst the other divisions—gold and tin—were lifeless.

One could very well understand the easier feeling prevailing in the case of copper shares, because the cabled information to hand stated that the price of the red metal was still on the down grade, having reached £53/10/, with the London Stock Exchange on Wednesday disclosing a sympathetic weakness in Australian copper shares.

On the other hand, the continued upward movement in the leading Broken Hill silver stocks was a puzzle to some operators, though there were others who held that the movement was due to the advance in the price of spelter, the recovery of lead to £13, and the firmness of silver. Some idea of the strength of the demand for silver shares may be formed from the fact that, on top of previous advances made during the week, B.H. Souths contg., B.H. South Blocks, B.H. Junction North, and B.H. Junctions sold at better rates; while improved offers were made for B.H. Souths paid, British Broken Hill, both old and new, and Sulphide Corporation, with North Broken Hill firmly held. Firm offers were also made for Zinc Corporation preference, but Amalgamated Zinc was a fraction easier.

As before remarked, the gold and tin divisions commanded very little attention.

In the afternoon the tone of the silver market continued firm, but the reverse was the case with copper stocks, sales being booked on the downgrade in Mount Elliotts, Hampdens, and Great Fitzroy. Both the tin and gold divisions were again dull.

MINING NOTES.

Gold-dredging yields:—Araluen Central, No. 1 dredge, 127 hours, 31oz 16dwt; and No. 2 dredge, 125 hours, 52oz 4dwt. The Araluen Redbank dredge did not wash up this week, owing to the yearly overhaul.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company has received a cable message, dated London, May 11, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/0⅜ (official quotation); lead, £12/17/6 (buyers' price); shares, £1/16/6 (buyers' price); spelter, £24/5/ (buyers' price).

The Great Britain Sluicing Company, Limited, has declared a dividend (No. 16) of 1/ per share, with a bonus of 1/ per share, payable on Friday, May 26. The transfer books will close on Monday, May 22. The seventh half-yearly general meeting will be held on May 26.

MINING IN THE STATE.

GULGONG, Friday.

The Mount Boppy Company has taken over the Red Hill Extended gold mine, and commenced operations. They intend to start sinking immediately.

WOLUMLA, Friday.

Monson and Hill are raising very good milling ore on a private property lease, and about 20 tons are ready for treatment. A new lense of ore has been discovered in Meaker's lease in very hard country. The New Venture tributers are rising on a rich vein of ore from the 200ft level.

TEMORA, Friday.

A Temora syndicate recently acquired the right to the 10-acres lease of the Eureka gold mine at Muttama, near Cootamundra. A five-head battery was purchased from the Morning Star Mining Company at Sebastopol, and was erected on the Eureka mine. The syndicate opened out on reefs from three different shafts at depths varying from 15ft to 50ft, the ore showing good gold. Assays made prove gold in the reef at the deepest level. The average to widen as it goes down. At the present time it is 2ft wide. About 80 tons are at grass awaiting rain for crushing purposes.

TIN AND WOLFRAM MINING.

DROUGHT STOPS WORK.

EMMAVILLE, Friday.

Just now this field is experiencing a very critical time, and the dredging industry is almost at a standstill for want of water. The Bourke's Hill and Great Britain plants are the most affected, and the question of ceasing work is only the matter of a short time, unless we have a good fall of rain to replenish the dams. In the event of these plants closing down, it will take some time to recover. Besides the dredges, prospecting is also for now ruling for tin, this is to be regretted, for the miner can eke out good wages from anything like a fair show, and the claims that have been abandoned for years are now being worked profitably.

The syndicate recently formed to locate tin at Ruby Hill has abandoned the venture. The last shaft bottomed on 4ft 6in of nice-looking wash, but only a small percentage of tin was obtained, not near sufficient to hold out any encouragement to continue prospecting. Experts assert that tin exists in this locality, but, although several syndicates have been formed to test the country, and a deal of money expended in prospecting, nothing of a payable nature has yet been discovered.

The Stanthorpe Proprietary have secured a large area of land along Graveyard Creek for dredging purposes. This ground carries good tin values, and should prove a paying investment for a bucket dredge.

Satisfactory work is now being carried on at Rose Valley deep lead, and the prospects of the mine have much improved, there being very rich wash in some of the drives. Last week, two tons of tin were obtained. The success of this venture will mean a great lift to the Emmaville field.

In regard to some of the dredging leases, there are certainly labour conditions to be complied with, and it is up to the Miners' Union to see that these conditions are carried out. It is manifestly unfair for a company to take up hundreds of acres of good tin-producing land, and be permitted to hold and work it when they think proper; whilst a prospector, on taking up a four-acre block is compelled by the act to work that land under certain labour conditions. There has been a lot of this sort of thing going on in this and other fields, and the sooner the owners are compelled to comply with the provisions of the Act the better it will be for miners generally.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Tattersall's Club caters for racegoers at Randwick this afternoon; Melbourne sporting folk assemble at Moonee Valley; at Morphettville the South Australian Jockey Club brings its autumn meeting to a close; and the Brisbane Thousand will be decided at Albion Park.

On Monday next, at 4 p.m., entries close with the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, for the six events on the programme for its May meeting on the 27th inst. The prize money totals £525, of which £125 goes to the Rosehill Handicap and £80 each to the other items, which include a Hurdle Race.

Lovers of trotting will be catered for on Monday next at Epping by the New South Wales Trotting Club, and the bill of fare is one of the best yet presented by that body. There are 94 entrants, including the best talent in the State, and several of the events will have to be run in divisions.

Maltman and Exmouth have joined C. Wheeler's active service brigade at Caulfield, where Kabibinokka, Radiator, Tornea, and Miss Bobadil have resumed work after a spell.

Though racing over obstacles is included in most of the programmes in the Metropolitan district of Victoria, the jumping season practically opens at Moonee Valley this afternoon, when a race over the battens and one over the big fences are included in the card. That useful horse Vernier holds the premier position in the Federal Hurdle Race with 11st 11lb, while Alcium heads the list for the Commonwealth Steeplechase with 11st 7lb.

TATTERSALL'S CLUB.

MAY MEETING.

Randwick will be the rendezvous for patrons of horseracing this afternoon, when the bill of fare provided by Tattersall's Club will be the attraction. Though fields will not be as large as usual, the racing bids fair to be of a very interesting character. The track should be good going, having benefited by the late rainfall. The customary means of transit will be in vogue, a special tram service running from Circular Quay and the western suburbs direct to the paddock gates, while motor cars, cabs, and 'buses will also be available.

The sport opens at 1.30 p.m. with the Hurdle Race, in which Contorp, Pakau, The King, and Minore should have most to say towards the finish, and the elect of Noud's stable—Contorp or Pakau—should be escorted home by Minore and The King.

An interesting contest is promised for the Flying Handicap, in which the brunt of the battle should fall to Grist, Miss Corelli, Hot Air, Maltster Maid, and Gladswood, and the numbers may be hoisted for Grist, Miss Corelli, and Hot Air.

Alca, Flava, Prince Yattendon, and Belle Vive should have the settlement of Tattersall's Stakes among them, and the judge may declare for Belle Vive, Prince Yattendon, and Alca.

The Two-year-old Handicap should bring about a good battle among Omar Khayyam, Malheur, Dr. Hart, and Malt Blossom, and the places may be filled by Malheur, Dr. Hart, and Omar Khayyam.

Lady Wilde, The Reckoning, Call Boy, Loyal Blue, and True Spec read as well as anything in the Winter Stakes, and the situations may be occupied by Call Boy, The Reckoning, and Lady Wilde.

The Welter Handicap will bring the afternoon's sport to a close, and the most likely to fight out the finish seem to be Gold Thread, Safrano, Torquay, Torula, and R. F., and R. F., Torula, and Safrano may pass the post as named.

DUBBO JOCKEY CLUB.

SHOW MEETING.

POTOSI WINS SHOW HANDICAP.

DUBBO, Friday.

The annual show meeting of the Dubbo Jockey Club was held in ideal weather to-day. The track was in good order owing to the recent rain, the attendance was large, and the racing good. Results:—

Opening Handicap, 6f.—J. Anthony's Coachman, 1; J. Ayer's Fulgur, 2; C. Alderman's Cranlight, 3. Four starters. Won easily. Time, 1m 18s.

Trial Handicap, 6f.—G. Mack's Choice Goods, 1; M. J. Gibbs' Icarus, 2; T. Gardiner's Clymond, 3. Six starters. Time, 1m 16s.

YASS PICNIC RACING CLUB.

ANNUAL MEETING.

SCHOONER CAPTURES YASS CUP.

MR. P. GARRY RIDES FIVE WINNERS.

YASS, Friday.

The Yass Picnic Racing Club held its annual race meeting to-day in fine weather. The attendance was poor, and, taken all through, the meeting did not come up to expectations, the fields for the most part being small. Mr. C. Massy's Schooner won the cup in fine style from Hake, and the locally-owned winner had a fine reception as he returned to scale. Mr. P. Garry, of Mylora, Binalong, rode five winners. A fall occurred in the Douro Stakes, Vexation coming down, and Makeshift falling over him. Mr. Manning, the rider of Makeshift, sustained a fractured collarbone and other injuries. He was taken to the Yass Hospital. Results:—

Eulomo Trial Stakes, 6f.—Mr. J. M. Massy's Chiromantist, by Epinicion—Elvira, 10st 10lb (Mr. Lyne), 1; Mr. H. C. Osborne's Havana, 10st 11lb (Mr. Manning), 2; Mr. C. Massy's Teirei, 10st 12lb (Mr. P. Garry), 3. Easter and Bagadang also started. Betting: 6 to 4 v Teirei, 3 to 1 v Havana, 3 to 1 each v Bangadang and Chiromantist, 5 to 1 v Easter. After running together for the greater portion of the journey Terei and Havana were displaced by Chiromantist, who won cleverly.

Redbank Bracelet.—Mr. W. C. Roberts' Sampson Brass, by Niagara—Marchioness, 11st 12lb (Mr. Lyne), 1; Mr. H. Middleton's The Secretary, 10st (Mr. A. C. Dowler), 2. Betting: 20 to 1 on Sampson Brass, 10 to 1 v The Secretary. Sampson Brass took command at the fall of the flag, and won by a couple of furlongs.

Douro Stakes.—Mr. P. J. Garry's Bonnie G., by War God—Emerald mare, 10st 7lb (owner), 1; Mr. R. B. Love's Noreen, 10st 7lb, 2; Mr. F. R. Quodling's Rejoice, 10st 7lb, 3. Vexation and Makeshift also started, but both fell. Betting: Even money on Vexation, 2 to 1 v Makeshift, 3 to 1 v Rejoice, 4 to 1 v Bonnie G., 20 to 1 v Noreen. Bonnie G. raced beautifully, and won a good race.

Yass Cup (presented by Mr. A. B. Triggs).—Mr. C. Massy's Schooner, by Sir Tristram—Corvette, 10st 10lb (Mr. P. J. Garry), 1; Mr. R. M. Osborne's Hake, 11st 5lb (Mr. A. C. Dowler), 2; Mr. Colin Wallace's M.D.R., 10st 8lb (Mr. M'Cracken), 3. Cataract (Mr. Lyne) also started. Betting: 6 to 4 v M.D.R., 2 to 1 each v Schooner, Hake, and Cataract. The pace was made by Schooner and Hake, and the former, taking command shortly after entering the straight, came along and won a great race.

Vale Bader Plate.—Mr. R. M. Osborne's Dust Cloud, by Orzil (imp.)—Ricochet, 12st (M. McCracken), 1; Mr. C. Massy's Teirei, 10st 12lb, 2. Betting: 4 to 1 on Dust Cloud, 3 to 1 v Teirei. Teirei established a great lead, and entered the straight looking a sure winner; but Dust Cloud came with a splendid run and got up in time to beat him by a neck.

Bowreong Bag.—Mr. R. M. Osborne's Hake, by Argonaut (imp.)—Triarqua, 10st 12lb (M. P. Garry), 1; Mr. Colin Wallace's Bangadang, 10st 11lb, 2. Betting: 6 to 1 on Hake, 3 to 1 v Bangadang. Hake led all the way, and won easily.

Beckham Handicap.—Mr. P. J. Garry's Bonnie G., 11st 10lb (owner), 1; Mr. C. Massy's Vexation, 11st 6lb, 2; Mr. Coen's Makeshift, 11st 5lb. Rejoice also started. Betting: 6 to 4 on Vexation, 3 to 1 v Bonnie G., 3 to 1 v Makeshift, 4 to 1 v Rejoice. Bonnie G. won a great race.

Eulinbal Handicap.—Mr. R. M. Osborne's Havana, by Fighting Floty (imp.)—La Gaie, 10st (Mr. P. J. Garry), 1; Mr. W. C. Roberts' Cataract, 10st 5lb, 2; Mr. Colin Wallace's M.D.R., 10st 7lb, 3. Betting: Even money on M.D.R., 2 to 1 v Havana, 5 to 2 v Cataract. A great race; won by a neck, with Cataract finishing very fast.

CYCLING AND MOTORING.

TO-DAY.

Opening run N.S.W. Cyclists' Union, to assemble in the Sydney Domain at 2.30 p.m., and run to Coogee Aquarium.

Union Club.—Union opening run.

Open Runs.—Australia, Ashfield, Parramatta, and Peerless clubs.

Burwood (League) Club.—Ten miles members' road handicap, Homebush course.

Entries Close.—Gilgandra sports (May 24) and Young sports (June 3) with the general secretary League of New South Wales Wheelmen.

BIRTLES, THE OVERLANDER.

Francis Birtles, the overlander, accompanied by R. Pirrim, will leave at 2.30 this afternoon on a cycle tour across Australia. The cyclists are mounted on Anthony Horderns' Universal bicycles, built at the firm's Redfern factory, and shod with Dunlop tyres. The overlanders will leave the New Palace Emporium, George-street, Brickfield-hill. Birtles' Universal bicycle is loaded with 2¾cwt, and his companion's machine will carry just on 2¼cwt.

LEAGUE NOTES.

The Deniliquin sports resulted as follows:—Half-mile Handicap: C. A. Piercy, 40yds, 1; J. M'Donald, 60yds, 2; G. Lawrence, 80yds, 3; A. H. Chadwick, 90yds, 4. One mile handicap: J. M'Donald, 120yds, 1; A. H. Chadwick, 130yds, 2; G. Lawrence, 160yds, 3. The report states that the racing was good, and general satisfaction was expressed with the handicapping.

C. Connington, hon. secretary of the Australian B.C., states that the team race between his club and the Burwood Club announced for to-day will not take place. The Burwood Club suggested to-day, but the Australian Club members thought it was too early in the season, and suggested June 24. He further states that the Australian Club is willing to meet any other league club in a team race, preference to be given to either the Parramatta or Auburn clubs.

A Coronation sports is to be held on the Dubbo Show Ground on June 3 by the Manchester Unity Independent Order of Oddfellows. The bicycle races, which make the best part of the programme, are to be run under the League of New South Wales Wheelmen, and entries are due on the 24th inst.

Entries are due on May 20 for the Ashfield Club's 20 miles open road race.

Nominations will be received up to May 16 for the Deepwater sports, on May 24.

The handicaps for the Burwood League Club's 10 miles road race, over the Homebush course, this afternoon are:—R. Hazleton, T. Watson, N. Aplin, scr.; H. Lickner, 15s; W. Erskine, 25; C. Daft, L. Tracey, 30; E. M'Gregor, C. Dredge, 55; F. White, W. Rates, 1m 10s; J. Trinear, R. Reid, 1.15; A. Ryan, C. Reid, 1.35; C. Lawson, 2m; E. Creighton, 2.15; H. Shadbolt, M. Lickner, H. Spurway, J. Watson, C. Bolton, 2.25; P. Bruckard, T. Tracey, 2.30; G. Day, 2.35; S. Whattes, W. Barnes, 2.45; H. Harris, 3.5; W. Day, 3.15; J. Aldrid, 3.20; L. Mitchell, 3.25; G. Lynott, C. Shepherd, 3.30; J. O'Farrell, 3.45; J. Barker, 4.5; C. Swain, 4.30.

F. Watson, secretary of the Burwood League Club, writes:—"The Australian Club has decided to call the team race off with the Burwoods, as they cannot raise a team to do the club justice for another two months, and the Burwoods will only extend their date another two months. Under the circumstances, the Australian Club had to withdraw, as the Burwoods had the right to make the date, being the challenging team. The Burwood club will now accept the Auburn club's challenge for a team race, £1 per man, five men to each team. The Burwood club will probably make this match for June 6."

The week-end run of the Ashfield club is to Windsor.

UNION OPENING RUN.

The opening run of the season of the N.S.W. Cyclists' Union is to be held this afternoon. The procession will form up in the Domain at 2.30 p.m., and start at 3 o'clock, and proceed by the usual route to Coogee.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

The house committee held its weekly meeting last night, and referred several matters of importance to the general committee, a meeting of which is being called for next Thursday evening. The membership of the club has at last passed the 300 post to be strictly correct, there are 303 members—and in addition there are several membership proposals to be dealt with by the election committee. Under the revised rules the membership is now unlimited as regards numbers.

CLUB CHAMPIONSHIPS.

A number of the clubs completed their championship contests this week, and some interesting finals were played as follows:—

RANDWICK.

R. Widerstrom and G. Gordon, who met in the final, were very evenly matched, as when seven heads were played the scores were equal. They were also equal at the tenth, the twelfth, the sixteenth, the eighteenth, the twentieth, and the twenty-eighth heads. Then Widerstrom got 2, and that made him 30. In the final head Gordon was lying the shot, but Widerstrom came down with his second wood, and knocked one of his own bowls right up alongside the jack. This gave him the championship, the scores being 31 to 29.

CHATSWOOD.

In this club's final match G. A. Chapman and W. H. Gartrell met in what proved an exciting game, Chapman winning by 30 to 29. At the seventh head the players were 7 all. Then Chapman drew away from his opponent, and at one period of play led by 20 to 10. But the game was not over, for while Chapman got 11 points in the next dozen heads Gartrell registered 19. The card then showed 30 to 29 in favour of Chapman. In the following head Chapman secured the necessary point, and thus won the championship of the Chatswood Club for the sixth year in succession. This is regarded as a record in championship play in this State.

ASHFIELD.

Moses beat J. C. Harrison in the final, which was played this week. The scores were:—Moses 31, Harrison, 16. The following are the details of the competition:—

4.—Final (conditional).

The annual meeting of the Petersham Lawn Tennis Club was held on Thursday evening, the president, Mr. J. J. Cohen, M.L.A., being in the chair. The report and balance-sheet showed the club to be in a satisfactory condition. Mr. Cohen was re-elected president, and the Mayor of Petersham, Dr. Lawes, and Messrs. G. F. Maguire and Thomas Pratt vice-presidents. The election of officers resulted in the retiring committee being returned unopposed, viz., Mrs. Maguire, Misses Day and M. Deer, and Messrs. Armstrong, Paton, and Watts; also, Mr. R. W. Willis as hon. treasurer and Mr. C. H. Turner as hon. secretary. For the selection committees, Misses Day and M. Deer and Messrs. Armstrong and G. F. Maguire were chosen. The committee was authorised to take steps to obtain renewal of the lease of the courts, the tenancy of which expires on December 31. At the close of the meeting the chairman, on behalf of the members, presented Mr. Turner with a tennis bag, and in recognition of his services as hon. secretary.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The scores in the Lindrum-Williams match now stand:—Lindrum (in play), 13,966; Williams, 6515. The principal breaks were:—Lindrum, 305 and 399; Williams, 109 and 96.

BOXING.

LANG AND LESTER TO-NIGHT.

The long-talked-of boxing contest between Bill Lang, of Melbourne, and Jack Lester, of America, is to take place at the Stadium to-night, when it is anticipated that there will be a large crowd present. The men yesterday underwent a medical examination, and passed it satisfactorily. They are both in excellent condition, and are prepared to stand a vigorous battle. An advertisement in this issue gives all particulars as to prices of admission and other information.

PANTLIN v LES. SMITH.

To-night, at the Gaiety Athletic Club, Claude Pantlin, an ex-amateur lightweight champion of Australia, will meet Les. Smith, of Surry Hills, in a 20-round contest. Two preliminary contests will precede the principal bout. The first contest will start at 8 o'clock.

RESCUE WORK IN MINES.

An invention, intended for rescue work in coalmines, and other places where noxious gases and otherwise dangerous atmospheres are likely to be encountered, was tested yesterday afternoon at the Mines' Museum in the presence of Mr. Alfred Edden, State Minister for Mines, Mr. A. A. Atkinson, Chief Inspector of Collieries, Mr. W. Humble, Senior Inspector of Collieries for the Newcastle district, and Mr. Kearsley, M.L.A., together with Mr. Richard Thomas, Mr. Sidney Croudace, and Mr. Ernest Humble, colliery managers. The "Meco" apparatus, as it is called, is in the form of a helmet to which is attached a reservoir of oxygen, which is automatically regenerated and cleared of all moisture and carbonic acid gas, sufficient to last two hours. The apparatus, which has been acquired by the Government, did useful work at the Whitehaven colliery explosion. In the present case two men from the Killingworth colliery donned the helmets, and, after wearing them for some time without any discomfort, were placed without injury in a chamber filled with fumes of sulphur.

SWIMMING.

The presentation of trophies in connection with the Western Suburbs Ladies' Swimming Club took place at the Town Hall, Ashfield, on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Robson made the presentations, and Mr. Robson, M.L.A., acted as chairman. Miss Fanny Durac received the gold medal for winning the 150 yds championship of N.S.W.; also the diving prize in inter-club competition. Miss N. Tutt received the gold medal for the 50 yds club championship.

WUNDERLICH CEILINGS.

How much it cost, or should not be the first question when buying Ceilings. The questions of durability, beauty, and safety should be thoroughly answered, and then the cost.

Wunderlich Ceilings supply answers to these questions in the most satisfactory way, for they are, on account of their material (the best Sheet Steel per ...), durable. Steel will not crack, warp, nor shrink, and as fixed as they are on battens, the Ceilings will never fall down. The first cost is the last.

Our designs comprise styles from the most artistic periods. There is no scheme of furnishing that we have not designs to harmonise with, besides which, being thoroughly primed on both sides with a coat of lead and oil, the sheets form an ideal ground for the decorator.

Send for our Catalogue, which gives full particulars and directions how to buy.

INVEST YOUR MONEY AT BANKSTOWN.

BANKSTOWN, on the Belmore Line, is going to be one of Sydney's biggest suburbs—property values there will increase enormously in the next few years. Listen. When the Belmore line is extended to Liverpool the Melbourne-Sydney express will come that way. Bankstown will be the first stop out of Sydney—the last stop in. It will be the Strathfield of that line—Strathfield prices will rule for land. Then we have sold lots on GREENACRE PARK (right at Bankstown Station) to over 500 people. Most of them will build homes there in the next two or three years. This alone guarantees Bankstown a big population, and an enormous sum spent on improvements guarantees a very big increase in property values.

The acre blocks, building lots and business sites, on GREENACRE PARK offer most promising investments. Acres, £42 10s each; Building Lots, 66 x 200 ft, 11s 6d foot. Terms, £1 down, 10s monthly for each £20 of purchase money. Send for plan and booklet to Dept. H.

REGARDING THAT SLUMP!

We pointed out a day or two ago that according to the Census returns the population of the Metropolitan area had increased by 120,000 in the last 10 years, and that the returns were not yet complete. That over 7000 people had been driven out of the city to the suburbs to make room for business and factory premises, was also pointed out. Now we want to give another evidence of coming slump, which is supplied by the returns of the Sydney Bank Clearing for the period from Jan. 1 to the second week of May. In 1908 it was £77,000,000, in 1909 it was £82,000,000, and in 1911 £104,000,000, an increase on last year of nine and three-quarter millions. Isn't it awful? Is it not rather an evidence that Australia is beginning to come into her own at last? The era of prosperity is just dawning, and the eyes of the world are beginning to turn towards the Southern Cross. Those who have closely studied the history of the New World will begin to put their little savings in land, and smile in their sleeves when their effete neighbours talk slump to them. One of the best Estates around Sydney to invest in is the DOBROYD POINT ESTATE, and we will have a representative on the Ground on Saturday afternoon, with plans, to show buyers over and give any information. Take the Abbotsford tram to the Haberfield Section, and go straight down the intersecting road to the Estate. The views are superb, and the afternoon out will not only do you good, but astonish you. You did not know there was such an Estate on that side of the City.

THE HAYMARKET P. L., B., AND I. CO., LTD.,
750 GEORGE-STREET.

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

we have arranged for a Salesman to be on the ground from 2.30 until 5 p.m. this afternoon at

HOMEDALE ESTATE, HURSTVILLE.

The demand for the unsold lots on this Estate is increasing daily, and we are taking this means of enabling our clients to obtain full information right on the spot. Deposits can be paid and allotments secured on the ground, which is an important item, as several intending purchasers who left the matter over for a day or two found they were just too late when it came to securing the blocks of their choice.

HOMEDALE ESTATE, HURSTVILLE,

is one of the most attractive real estate offers that has ever been put before the public. Within about ten minutes of the Railway Station, this Estate occupies one of the choicest residential sites in the suburb, commanding magnificent views of the George's River and Botany Bay. The air is clear and invigorating; the soil good, and the price is low.

Allotments, 66ft frontage, from 5/6 per foot. Torrens Title and Easy Terms from £1 down and 10s per month.

A few fine 3-ACRE BLOCKS still available, from £10 per acre. Just the thing for a poultry farm. Plans, etc., from Dept. H.

VISIT THE PLACE OF BEAUTIFUL HOMES,
HABERFIELD.
"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

FINE COTTAGES FOR SALE.

Haberfield is now a Suburb of nearly 600 beautiful Homes, and to-day its attractions appeal more forcibly than ever to everyone visiting it. It has been modelled as an ideal Garden Suburb, with Cottages artistically designed, thus providing a place where home-builders find all they seek.

As this Garden Suburb scheme nears completion the advantages of the special building restrictions, arrangement of tree-lined streets, the superior architecture and construction of each cottage, the pleasant, undulating nature of the land, are more noticeable, and make Haberfield superior to other suburbs.

A large staff of competent architects and tradesmen is continually planning and erecting cottages that are triumphs of house construction. Each month about a dozen new places are finished, and thus Haberfield always has an interest for those anxious to own a place which provides the best outlay for the money.

Liberal terms enable you to at once own any of the Cottages now for sale. There are about 30 in all, priced from £575 to £1785—all charming Cottages, which you are invited to inspect.

Decide to reside at Haberfield. See them this afternoon, and you will at once determine to purchase. Take the tram direct to Haberfield and alight at O'Connor-street stop. We will motor you round the Estate, and give you all the particulars you require.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—Probate Jurisdiction.—In the Will and Codicil of DINAH ISAACS, late of Paddington, near Sydney, in the State of New South Wales, Widow, deceased.—Application will be made after fourteen days from the publication hereof that Probate of the last Will and Codicil thereto of the abovenamed deceased may be granted to ELIAS DAVIS, the Sole Executor in the said Will and Codicil named, and all claims must be rendered to and all notices may be served upon the undersigned. BRETNALL and SON, Proctors for the Executor, 84 Elizabeth-street, Sydney.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application is intended to be made to the Parliament of New South Wales during the next ensuing Session thereof for leave to bring in a Bill to continue the provisions of the "Warwick Farm Railway Act," whereby EDWIN ERNEST ALLAN OATLEY, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns were enabled and authorised to construct and control a Railway from and connecting the line of Railway from Sydney to Liverpool with the Warwick Farm Racecourse, commencing at a point between the Liverpool and Cabramatta Railway Stations, distant in a southerly direction about one thousand three hundred yards from the Cabramatta Station, and thence along the land as now fenced and used for the purposes of the said Railway from the Great Southern Railway line to the Warwick Farm Racecourse, situate at Warwick Farm, and to use, work, and manage the said Railway, and to carry passengers and goods thereon, and to charge fares and make charges in respect thereof, and to do all such acts and things as might be necessary for constructing, controlling, and working the said line of Railway, and for purposes consequent thereon and incidental thereto.

By the terms of the said "Warwick Farm Railway Act" the provisions therein contained authorising the construction and control of the said Railway in the manner therein provided were thereby limited to a term of twenty-one years from the passing of the said Act.

The aforesaid period of twenty-one years has now expired, and an Act of the Legislature is necessary to authorise and enable the said Edwin Ernest Allan Oatley, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns to continue the construction and control of the Railway aforesaid.

Dated at Sydney this 21st day of April, A.D. 1911.

P. J. HOURIGAN, Solicitor for the said Bill, and the said EDWIN ERNEST ALLAN OATLEY, Temple-court, 146 King-street, Sydney.

FOR SALE.

A WARM BATH,
A HOT BATH,
OR A HOT SHOWER,
AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE!

Oh, what a humbug some so-called bath-heaters are. The old story of "a few shavings," or "just turn on the gas for a few seconds," has allured many into the purchase of an inferior machine, which upsets tempers for the day.
Still, there are many good Bath-heaters made on good plans; and there's one we consider best of all. That one is the

FLETCHER RUSSELL
GAS BATH HEATER.

The Reasons why are these, and others:
It is a safe and rapid heater. No explosions!
Heats one to four gallons a minute to from 60 to 105 degrees of heat.
It has a patent safety tap, which prevents the gas from coming in unless the water is turned on.
Provides for the luxury of a hot shower, if desired.
The Gas only heats the water—doesn't go through it, or come in contact with it, as with some machines.
To sum up, it is

RAPID, SAFE, ECONOMICAL.

Costs from £5/5/- upwards, and we are the Sole Agents.
Call and have it demonstrated, or write for further information.

THE ORIGINAL STOTT.
Twenty-six years ago Mr. Sydney Stott commenced the FIRST BUSINESS COLLEGE in Sydney, in Victoria Arcade. In 1908 he purchased the finest building for teaching purposes in Sydney, at 70 PITT-STREET, every room being twenty-one feet high, and having the best light and ventilation procurable.
PARENTS, you must consider the health of your children, as well as the best business education for them.
You have a responsibility—a heavy responsibility—to provide that your boy or girl on leaving school shall enter upon a career which will ensure good prospects and eventual success.
The EMPLOYMENT DEPARTMENT of Stott's Business College has placed 10,000 youths and young ladies in good positions in leading Business Houses and Government Departments during the last twenty-six years, and can do the same for your boy or girl.
SUBJECTS: Shorthand (Pitman and Gregg systems), Typewriting, Bookkeeping (Budget system), and COACHING for all examinations.
Term commences from date of entry.
Write or call for our Illustrated Prospectus.
OUR MIDWINTER SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION will be held on the 17th June, 1911. Send for particulars.

THE HABIT OF BEAUTY.

Wellington said: "HABIT IS TEN TIMES NATURE." IT IS.

Tenfold will your natural beauty increase by the habitual use of Valaze. Cultivate the Valaze habit, and a healthful, clear complexion will become habitual to you.

And it will not be a complexion "laid on" from without, but the one Mother Nature has already given you, and that has been lying dormant.

The tonic properties of the Valaze Face-cream keep the skin in healthful stimulation, with the result that it remains sound and supple, free from lines, muddiness, blotches, and freckles. Price, 3/6, 6/6, and 6d postage.

Valaze Snow Lotion is an exquisite skin lotion for outdoor use. It imparts a soft, fresh clear appearance to the skin, overcomes greasiness, blotches, coarseness, and softens and whitens the skin. 3/6, 6d postage.

Novena Cerate, the finest skin cleanser and soother. Preserves the skin, prevents dryness, looseness of skin, and wrinkles. Especially beneficial for a sensitive skin. 2/ and 3/6.

Valaze Lip Lustre protects the lips from the wind and cold. Prevents chaps, sores, and cracks. 2/ and 3/.

Valaze Powder for greasy skins, Novena Poudre for dry and normal skins. 2/ and 3/.

All Valaze preparations obtainable from Helena Rubinstein Prop., Ltd., Dept. "E," 158 Pitt-street, opposite The Strand, Sydney, and 274 Collins-street, Melbourne.

CREME SIMON is perfectly pure, is not sticky, is delicately perfumed, and is a perfect skin food.

GOOD Warm Winter Undershirts, 4s 6d, 4s 11d, 5s 11d, unshrinkable, lambswool. Lowe's.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.
SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

2 TESTIMONIALS
WHICH MUST CONVINCE YOU.
Elizabeth Bay.

Dear Miss Maddocks,—
It is now 7 months ago since the operation was performed, and I cannot express to you how very thankful I feel, since my child has made no remarks regarding Mother's Beard. Again thanking you for your successful treatment, and wishing you every success for the future, I remain,
Yours very truly,
Mrs. W. T.

And this:
Ultimo.

Miss Maddocks,—
Dear Madam,—Having returned to Sydney after four months' absence, I wish to continue your treatment for Superfluous Hair, whenever you can appoint a time for me. So far your treatment has proved entirely successful.
Believe me,
Yours sincerely,
(Miss) B. T. M.

WHAT IS THE REASON I ADVERTISE

A FREE TRIAL TREATMENT

to any Lady who is troubled with SUPERFLUOUS HAIR?

Because it at once convinces anyone of the impossibility of having a new growth where Hairs have once been removed by me. No other specialist in Sydney has ever offered to do this, and my reason for this free treatment is to convince you once and for all of my success. This trial treatment costs nothing, nor does it bind you to subsequently come to me for further treatment.
One thing more.

MOLES HAIRY MOLES.

These unsightly marks can be removed in a single treatment, almost painless, and without the slightest danger. No after effects are felt or seen.
The Fees are very moderate. Individual Waiting Rooms and Personal Attention.
